

MURDER OF A FAMILY.

Mother and Three Children Butchered in Their Sleep.

Woman's Paramour Committed the Awful Deed.

Gashed Her Own Throat—Jealousy the Cause.

Nottingham, Eng., July 26.—A terrible tragedy was discovered early on Saturday morning at Arnold, a small mining village near Nottingham, by which four persons lost their lives and the assailant lies in a precarious condition.

Samuel Atherley, a laborer, lived in Front street with a woman named Lambert and three children, and, suspicion being aroused, neighbors entered the house at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning.

A pathetic scene met their gaze. The dead bodies of the woman and three children, with their throats terribly cut from ear to ear, were discovered by the horror-stricken searchers, and in another room lay Atherley himself, with a similar gash in his throat.

Dr. Harvey Francis was called in to attend to the injured man, but he could do nothing more for the others than to pronounce them dead.

The names of the four dead are: Matilda Lambert, aged 27; John Lambert, aged eight; Annie Lambert, aged five; Samuel Lambert, aged three.

Atherley had been living with the woman Lambert for six years. He is himself a married man separated from his wife. The woman and three children were apparently all murdered in their sleep with a razor, which was found in the bedroom grate.

Atherley has been out of work for some months, but is generally said to be hard working and steady. Nine weeks ago the woman left Atherley and went to reside in Robinson's yard, a quadrangle off the main street, in which there are three or four two-room tenements.

A fortnight ago Atherley followed up the woman, and the neighbors say that he talked her round again. At any rate, the couple the strongest three children, occupied one house, and beyond occasional tiffs nothing out of the ordinary occurred.

The discovery was made a few minutes after ten o'clock. A man named Marriott saw the face of his neighbor, Samuel Atherley, gashed while he, but all streaked with blood, coming from out of a broken window, with a gash across his throat, blood was pouring from it as he hastily saturated clothing. He presented a horrible picture, but Marriott cried to him to come down and open the door, which was locked. Atherley staggered down, and Marriott saw him fell swooning into the arms of Marriott, but still had sufficient life to indicate that an even more terrible condition of things existed inside the cottage.

Marriott left the man and rushed upstairs. The sight which met his eyes was one to thrill the bravest. Lying on the floor were four corpses. A woman, her head almost severed from the trunk, lay on the bed. In other parts of the little room, similarly mutilated, were three little children. The youngest, which had been a pretty baby of three years, seemed to have received the cruellest treatment of them all, for the knife passed through its tender neck.

The place had the aspect of a slaughter house. Everything was splashed or saturated with blood. So awful was the scene that when Marriott completed from the house he broke down completely, and sobbed like a hysterical woman. In the meantime an alarm had been given, and as the news spread like wildfire along the street, people flocked in hundreds to the scene.

Atherley then lay in an almost unconscious condition, but there was still life in him, and he wisely the police turned their attention. It was very obvious that the four unfortunate creatures upstairs were beyond all earthly aid.

A neighbor named Ryan declares that Atherley told her of his intentions. Atherley, she said, came to her and asked her about a strange man and his woman. Mrs. Ryan stated that she never saw a strange man about, but Atherley was obdurate. "I shall do her in," he said, with an oath, and turned upon his heel. Mrs. Ryan apparently did not pay much heed to the threats; at all events she did not give any alarm, treating the matter as a idle boast.

Lambert and Atherley were both natives of Arnold, but the latter had been abroad in service with the 7th Warwick.

Jealousy is undoubtedly the cause of the crime.

MAPLE LEAF PARK.

The attendance at Maple Leaf Park on Saturday night was one of the largest this season with the exception of the public holidays and was an encouraging sign to the management. There were about 10,000 people on the grounds. The popular amusement park. The street car service to and from the park was never better and patrons need have no fears from that quarter.

Those who visited the park on Saturday were astonished by the wonderful act performed by the Berry family. It is thrilling, difficult and amusing. It will be here all this week and is worth going to the park to see alone.

LOCKJAW.

Little Helen Kelly Died in the Hospital on Saturday.

As the result of running a nail in her foot last Wednesday Rachael Helen Kelly developed lockjaw, and died at the City Hospital on Saturday. The little girl was only eleven years of age, and while playing the nail ran in the little toe of her right foot. No bad effects were felt until the next day, and then Dr. Baife was called, and did all he could to assist her, but lockjaw developed on Friday, and she passed away on Saturday at the City Hospital, where she had been taken. After Dr. Baife had been called he used serum to try and counteract the effects, without avail. The funeral took place this morning from the parents' residence, 404 Cannon street east, to St. Patrick's Church, thence to Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Rev. Father Coffey officiated at the church and grave, and the pall-bearers were: William O'Shaughnessy, John Gordon, James Linklater, Ed. McDermott, Harry McGoff and Bernard Miller.

Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, officially confirmed this in the House of Commons this afternoon, saying that after a very anxious and careful examination into the shipbuilding conditions of foreign countries the Government had come to the conclusion that it was desirable to take all necessary steps to insure the laying down of four additional Dreadnoughts in April to be completed in March, 1912.

LOVE AFFAIR.

Montreal, Que., July 26.—The 14-year-old daughter of an Assyrian merchant named Boosavra, 31 Bonsecour street, is missing and warrants have been issued for the arrest of two other Assyrians named Zegzeb and Zed Ailla, on charges of abduction. Not to be frustrated by parental objections, the girl disappeared with her lover, aided by a friend, and an appeal to the police was the result.

PEEK-A-BOO.

Minneapolis Minister Grills Wearers of Tight Gowns.

Prosecution Threatened by Some Photographed Women.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 25.—If doubt had existed in the minds of many as to his carrying out threats made several days ago that he would photograph women appearing on the streets in what he considered immodest dresses, it was dispelled when the Reverend Dr. G. L. Morrill delivered his illustrated lecture on "The Lewd and the Nude" at a local theatre this morning. The sermon was heard by a packed house, mostly women.

At least 25 pictures of Minneapolis women on Nicolette avenue yesterday were thrown upon the screen. Some wore low-neck dresses, while others were shown with tight, form-fitting clothes. Several women, photographed with gowns raised too high, were called by several pedestrians in for the greater share of criticism. Dr. Morrill also threw scenes of several animals found in the London Zoo, and compared the women with these.

"Any woman who is immodest enough to hold her skirts up to her knees on the principal thoroughfares of this city should be placed in the same category with these animals," he said. "It is in decent exposure at best and any woman who cares so little about herself as to pull her dress about her knees, probably so men can gaze on her fancy hosiery, should be considered no better than an animal."

Several nude paintings were thrown upon the screen. He compared these with present-day women, who seem to attire themselves in such a manner as to attract attention and display their own figures lasciviously. In this connection he made an appeal to young girls, declaring that the downfall of many was caused by paying too much attention to dress or lack of it.

Dr. Morrill spent most of yesterday afternoon securing the photographs. He caught several pedestrians who were aware, while others would dodge the camera as much as possible. Frequent attempts were made by men escorting women to demulish the camera and one barely missed breaking the lens. Mr. Morrill was threatened with prosecution by several pedestrians, followed the preacher as he walked from place to place, enjoying the procedure, but they did not interfere.

None of the names of those who appeared in the illustrations could be learned, their faces having previously been blurred, and Dr. Morrill refusing to make public their identity.

LOVE TRAGEDY.

Shoots at Girl Who Refused to Marry Him.

He Misses, Then Shoots and Fatally Wounds Himself.

New York, July 26.—Karl Lesowitz, a young east side tailor, rendered desperate by the refusal of Clara Zeiner to marry him, lay in wait outside her house for twenty-four hours and attempted to kill her when she finally made her appearance to-day. Believing her dead from the shot he fired at her, Lesowitz turned his revolver on himself and inflicted wounds from which he died shortly after.

Miss Zeiner encountered Lesowitz on the street. Revolver in hand, the man insisted that she marry him. Braving his threat to kill her she gasped out a final refusal and broke away from his grasp on her arm. As she ran up the stairway of her home a shot from Lesowitz's revolver followed her. He missed, but the girl fainted and Lesowitz, seeing her fall, shot himself.

Miss Zeiner, reviving, ran to the assistance of the wounded man. Taken to a hospital a prisoner, Lesowitz died soon after reaching there.

THAW TRIAL.

District Attorney Jerome Allowed to Enter Case.

White Plains, N. Y., July 26.—When court convened Deputy Attorney-General Rogers Clark, who is opposing Thaw's application on behalf of the State, called Justice Mills' attention to Mr. Jerome's presence, saying that he had consented to appear with the States Attorneys at their request.

Thaw's attorney immediately objected to Jerome's participation, recalling the New York District Attorney's affidavit before Judge Gaylor when an effort was made to hold the present hearing at New York instead of White Plains, to the effect that he could not act with the authorities of Westchester county. Justice Mills settled the matter by remarking that Jerome had never said he would not appear at the request of the State, and Mr. Jerome remained.

Expert testimony began with the first witness, Dr. Henry Ernest Schmidt, of White Plains.

Woman Shoots Husband Who Insisted on Running Graphophone.

Newport News, Va., July 26.—Because he insisted on playing the graphophone while she desired to sleep, Mrs. Josephine K. Eigwick to-day twice shot and seriously wounded her husband, John, who, refusing to hear his wife's pleas for rest, put piece after piece on the instrument.

Exasperated beyond endurance, Mrs. Eigwick seized a .22 calibre rifle and put a bullet in her husband's arm. Eigwick had the wound dressed and returned home, where, after quiet had been restored and dinner served, he decided to take another chance with his better half, and the music started. Mrs. Eigwick seized a revolver and shot him in the right leg. This time the wound was dangerous, and it took much trouble to stop the flow of blood. Eigwick was rushed to a hospital in a rather serious condition.
