Whitcomb's Remedy

ASTHMA,

Rose Cold and Hay Fever.

The late Jonas Whitcomb of Boston, visited Europe a few years since for the benefit of his health, which was impaired by frequent attacks of Spasmodic Asthma. While under the treatment of an eminent German physician his asthma disappeared; he procured the recipe which had done so much for him. This remedy has been used in thousands of the worst cases with astonishing and uniform success. It contains no injurious properties whatever.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

Discussion on the Zulu War.

REJECTION OF A VOTE OF CENSURE.

Verbalities With Afghanistan—The Agricultural Depression.

LONDON, March 27.—In the House of Commons tonight Sir Charles Dike moved his resolution of censure in the Zulu war matter, similar to that introduced by Lord Lansdowne in the House of Lords on Tuesday night. In his speech he confined himself principally to a severe review of Sir Bartle Frere's policy. He charged the Government with not censuring the latter until notice was given of the present motion, although despatches were constantly arriving which showed that he meant war.

Col. Mure (Liberal) moved to add to Sir Charles Dike's resolution that the invasion was undertaken with insufficient forces. He said that the recent reinforcements for India, stated that no information had been received by the Government from India that the negotiations in Afghanistan had failed, and that an immediate advance of the troops had been ordered.

Mr. Hanbury reopened the debate on the Zulu war in a speech which was warmly received by the Government and Sir Bartle Frere.

Mr. Lowry urged the recall of Sir Bartle Frere, but having lost his notes, broke down.

Sir Robert Peel (Conservative), attacked Sir Charles Dike's declaration that the blood of the soldiers spilled in the Zulu war was upon the head of Lord Chelmsford. He said that he should be acquitted by a court martial.

Sir Henry Russell (Conservative), condemned the resolution of the Zulu war, and said that the Government was responsible for the war which they sought to blame the latter. The Government contended that Sir Bartle Frere was not responsible for the war, but that it was the result of the action of the Zulu king, who was responsible for the Isandula disaster.

In the House of Lords the Marquis of Hartington declared that he had made into the depression of commerce and agriculture.

The Marquis acknowledged that the depression of the agricultural interest was unprecedented; but the depression was widespread. The number of sheep had diminished eighty million pounds, and the area of land under cultivation had diminished a million and a half acres. He said that the Government was responsible for the war which they sought to blame the latter. The Government contended that Sir Bartle Frere was not responsible for the war, but that it was the result of the action of the Zulu king, who was responsible for the Isandula disaster.

THE ZULU CAMPAIGN.

Anxiety Concerning Col. Pearson's Column.

The situation still critical—Arrival of reinforcements—Public feeling in England.

CAPE TOWN, March 11.—A British steamer landed the first reinforcements at Durban, Natal, on the 10th inst. A troop ship with the 57th Regiment arrived at Durban on the 10th inst. The relief of Kwa-Zulu was attempted yesterday, but unsuccessful. A general advance was made yesterday to communicate with the Kwa-Zulu garrison by signal. King Cetywayo's brother Zuywa's overtures for submission were a ruse to cover his retreat to Swaziland. The reports that Cetywayo with messengers to sue for peace are false. A body of Basutos crossed the river Tete on the 9th inst. and stole some horses and fired on the colonial troops, who repulsed them with a loss of 200 men.

LONDON, March 28.—A Cape Town despatch says it is reported that the rebellious Basutos have already deserted their chief, Col. Wood is entrenched at Fongolo, waiting for reinforcements, in consequence of several unsuccessful attempts to dislodge the enemy in the direction of the coast.

CAPE TOWN, March 11.—It is stated that a serious breach has occurred between Governor Frere, of Cape Colony, and Governor Bullmer, of Natal, in consequence of the harsh measures sanctioned by the former to suppress the natives.

No direct intelligence from Colonel Pearson has been received, and the anxiety is becoming general. Several natives and soldiers have been killed by large rewards, returned for Kwa-Zulu, but the roads are destroyed, and the approach is commanded by the Basutos, who are swarming with Zulus. Pearson's supplies will be exhausted by the end of March. An expedition for his relief, now amounting to fourteen companies of regulars, will be pushed forward, as soon as the natives are sufficiently weakened.

LONDON, March 31.—The Government in the House of Commons this afternoon announced that they had received, advised the Marquis of Hartington, that a considerable number of the reinforcements which had been sent out, and that it was hoped these would speedily enable communication to be opened with Col. Pearson, whose isolated condition has for some days been a source of considerable anxiety and apprehension. The statement was received with applause. The condition of affairs in Zululand is not so serious, and there is no strong feeling that negotiations should precede any further hostile acts on a large scale.

LONDON, April 1.—Public feeling over the Zulu war is much divided, and the Government are engaged in a struggle between the two parties. There is a feeling of great anxiety in the House of Commons, and the Government are being pressed to take more decisive action. The Government are being pressed to take more decisive action.
