WASHINGTON advices of Monday inform us that the international commission has adjourned the Opposition candidate would have been elected. But, until January the 5th. It is further stated that the next session is not expected to occupy more than two weeks. It is pretty generally suspected now that the results of the commission's deliberations are likely to be of small consequence. We shall see.

Four elections for the Provinical Legislature were held in Quebec on Monday last, and the results have given the Marchand Government a little bit of a surprise. All four seats were previously held by the Government. The constituencies were: Beauharnois, Levis, Mississiquoi and Vercheres. In Beauharnois, Plant, Conservative, was elected by 55 majority. In Levis, Langelier independent, was elected, defeating Bourassa, Government candidate and also the Conservative candidate by 160 plurality. Collin, Liberal was elected in Mississiquoi, by only 49 majority, as against 405, the majority received by the Government candidate at the general election. In Vercheres, Blanchard, who had been unseated, was re-elected by a reduced majority. It will thus be seen the Marchand Government got quite a set back in these bye-elections. The Patriot's rooster was not out last evening.

We notice that the Patriot, in reply to some remarks of the Exprise and the montangup and Lemieux, are taken into account their success is not to be wondered at. It is true that Ba

The prices of produce, however, had scarcely advanced from our last quotations. Yesterday, although the snow had, for the most part, disappeared and wheels were in use, there was quite a large market and business was quite good. Oats brought from 32 to 33 cents a bushel, the ruling price being about 32½, with a fair supply. A good deal of pork was offered and the competition among buyers was pretty keen; still the advance in price was scarcely perceptible. 5 cents a pound was the ruling price, with possibly 5½ for extra good. The most notable advance in prices was in the case of eggs which sold at from 22 to 24 cents a dogen. There will be a market on both Friday and Saturday, and should we have good sleighing very large crowds of people may be expected.

Mrs. McManus possessed many estimable traits of character which made her a general favorite in the circle in which she moved, and endeared her to a large number of friends and acquaintances. She was kind and gentle in disposition, a cheerful companion, a sympathetic friend, a loving wife and tender mother. Above all she lived an exemplary life, and fortified by the Sacraments of the Church, and surrounded by loving relatives and friends ashe died a truly Christian death. Her demise in the prime of life, leaving a sorrow ing husband and five small children, one being but a few days old, (since deceased) is particularly sad, and has cast a shadow of sorrow over the community in which she resided. Her remains were interred on Wednesday, the 7th inst., at St. Ann's Church, Lot 65, where a Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Pastor, Rev. D. B. Reid. His Lordship Bishop McDonald and Father James Ænas McDonald, uncle of deceased, occupied seats in the Sanctuary. His Lordship performed the Absolutions, the choir being assisted by the Rev. Fathers Doyle, Monaghan, T. Curran, and J. J. McDonald. The last rites being performed the remains were consigned to their last resting place in St. Ann's Church.
