more could not be done for them: There were

No Complaints Made.
and the first we heard of such was in the somewhat moth-eaten witicism and trivial dialectics of the remain-at-home correspondent of the Daily News who most assuredly does not voice the sentiments of the people of Carbonear. We know this for a fact, because they have told us so themselves, although they subscribed their proportional part to the fund which was subscribed towards the expenses of the Carbonear crew wherever these expenses come in. Mr. Editor we think we have clearly and exhaustively proven our case, both by certificates from clergymen and other quarters and do not think the matter of sufficient importance to make any other future reference on the subject. It has conferred a benefit upon the Committee, because we shall always know how to act in future, so that even second-hand criticism will not be resorted to.

We remain, Mr. Editor,
Yours very truly,
JOHN TAPP, Chairman.

The Harbor Grace Regatta.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In the issue of the Daily News of the 20th inst. appears a budget of news from the regular correspondent of that Journal in Carbonear, purporting to give a true statement of the Regatta held at Lady Lake, or, at least, of that portion of the event in which the Carbonear crew figured so conspicuously as usual. The correspondent endeavours to pen his lines in a somewhat witty style, and has succeeded in so doing in about the same category as would be an exhibition of a memento mori in a Punch and Judy show. The correspondent of the Daily News should never attempt wit, because there is none in his composition. He should first and foremost endeavour to get at the truth of affairs and leave wit severely alone, or hand it over to those who are qualified to use it naturally. Mr. Editor we consider that the first duty of a correspondent should be to ascertain from personal observation the Reals Facts of the Question at Issue, because reports received second-hand are usually far wide of the mark, and are liable to subject such a good-goddy gentleman as this correspondent of the News to the imposition of the general public that he has been trifling or twisting one of those precepts which command that "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour." However, as has been the case with the Daily News correspondent upon more than one occasion such a manipulation of this precept does not appear to disturb the usual routine of his conscience. Now with regard to his charges against the Regatta Committee, and we shall endeavour to deal with them as briefly as possible. The News correspondent says: "Two crews from this town entered, the Boy Scouts and the Archibald Cup Crew. The former were lads under 18 years who, in conformity to the rules, produced certificates of age and membership; these documents were necessary for them, but for those competing being from a more favoured locality such formalities seem to have been superfluous." Now, our answer to this charge is: George Pike, Thomas Kennedy, Charles Snow and Graham Duff rowed in the race boat in the Brigade Race. Pike's, Kennedy's and Snow's certificates of age were received by the Committee from the clergyman of the denomination to which they belong, and these certificates clearly and distinctly stated that neither was Duff, he was not born in Harbour Grace, but his father who is one of the most prominent business men and respected citizens of this town has certified in writing that his son is also under 18 years of age.

It is necessary to publish these documents for the doubting Thomas of the Daily News? Again, the correspondent states: "Some people have a way of doing things, which show an unique peculiarity. Their modes are first and foremost conceived upon such patriotic principles, and their intense interest in the execution of them is a self-absorbing that obliviousness to anything beyond their horizon is not a cause for wonder." In answer to this we would say that the Harbour Grace and other crews would be perfectly justified in turning the wrong boot and thereby claiming and holding the cup as was done last year by the Carbonear crew. Now the next and probably the most sweeping of all the charges advanced by the Daily News correspondent is his Information Received Second-Hand by his interested fellow-townsmen. "The longing eyes cast upon the Archibald Cup seems to have been sufficient cause for the suspension of all rules, and a radius of several miles was swept in the endeavour to bring together a crew of fishermen, to whom it is strongly surmised, special inducements were given to capture the trophy from Carbonear amateurs—not that they loved Bristol's Hope more, but that they loved Carbonear less." Now, Mr. Editor, you will notice that the correspondent states above that "It is surmised special inducements were given, etc." There you see again that the charges are all speculative, visionary, and as may be readily believed, false. Let us explain in plain and emphatic language and see where no surmising is necessary.

Carbonear ordered their crew. James Howell, Bert Powell, John Taylor, Wm. Clarke and Wm. Taylor. On Regatta Day immediately previous to the race representations were made to the Committee that one of the oarsmen among the Carbonear crew belonged to Freshwater, and that his name was Davis. The Committee read out the names of the crew handed in to them by the coxswain on Monday night, and each man answered to the Treatment of the Carbonear Men.

They have always received a hearty welcome, and yet they have always endeavoured to manufacture a bone of contention. They have never subscribed one solitary cent towards the Regatta; they have always been provided with boats, oars, etc., which have been drawn by lots; they have never paid one brass farthing for entrance fee. After the Brigade-Race the Boy Scouts crew were invited to the King Edward ten. They have never subscribed every courtesy and the greatest possible hospitality was extended towards them, to which they were heartily welcome and for what they were very grateful, the only regret being that
