38 & 44 Cal. Rifles and Cartridges

There is a demand among sportsmen for a rifle of medium size and price, yet with requisite shocking power to effectually "stop" the game. The Remington eleven-shot repeater—38-40 and 44 calibre—is invaluable for general use. Accurate up to 300 yards.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

MORE ROADS TO HAPPINESS.

Someone was a pitying friend of mine because she could so seldom go to the movies on account of her three small children.

"Yes," she said, "I do miss the movies. Movies are fascinating, but then so are the children. You don't know what a lot of fun I get out of watching those children, and seeing their little minds and bodies developing."

"Now, there's the baby. He has just begun to creep and it was so interesting to watch him from the time when he couldn't move his body an inch one way or another, through the time when he could just drag himself along a few inches. I wanted to see just how he would do it. My first baby crept on his hands and knees, and Ruth sat on the floor and hatched, but Junior gets up on his toes and his hands and goes along something like a kangaroo. I simply love to watch him."

As Thrilling as the Final Close-Up.

"And then to see him overcoming obstacles—it's a regular drama. The first time he found a chair in his path he didn't know what to do but just sat and cried. But the next time he began to work around it and from that he learned his first lesson in steering. And this morning I had the greatest fun when I was sitting sewing, watching him trying to get through a door that was ajar just a few inches. First he gave it a push that only shut it closer. After he had thought that over for a few minutes, he took hold of the door and pulled it towards him, but he was so close to it that that wouldn't let him through and he was dreadfully upset. Then he seemed to think it over and finally he did it—he backed off just far enough and then he pulled that door open and went through."

She Was Holding Her Breath.

"You'll laugh, but I was just holding my breath towards the last when I was sure whether he was going to get the idea or not. I was just as excited as I am at the movies."

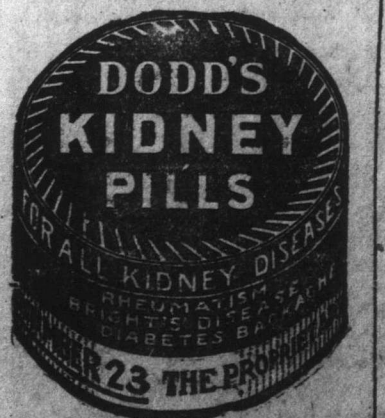

"Of course I don't claim it's all fun. Very far from it. There's an awful lot of plain grudging, but there's a lot of fun, too, if you are really interested in children. That's my good fortune—that I am."

I think she was very modest to call it just her good fortune, didn't you?

Somehow that conversation made me think of a passage from a recent magazine article by Mr. Edison.

Do You Get All the Joy You Can?

"One great trouble with the world to-day," says the great inventor, "is that people fail to enjoy the satisfaction and happiness which come from doing a job, no matter what it is, absolutely in the best way within

Victory!

The twelfth of March it was the day in nineteen twenty one, when money flew from hand to hand and mother told her son to mark right up for Cashin all in the great campaign. Then hoist the flag of liberty in good old Harbour Main.

Be careful in the booth room, don't mark your ballot wrong. Nor take a bribe from any one though the lure of gold is strong. That will do now mother let this not disturb your mind, That's not the sort of mettle that father left behind."

Remember what I told you or you may come to grief, For poor old Terra Nova is heading for the reef. Her crew they soon shall mutiny, she's sinking by degrees. She wants the sons of Harbour Main to buoy her on the seas.

"I know about that mother dear, with knowledge I am blessed. Six months ago I saw her fly the signal of distress. This is no hidden secret only known to me and you, But soon she'll be commanded by Cashin and his crew."

What ship can brave a storm please come and tell me now. With one captain on her quarter and another in her bow. Whilst the mate he stands between them, lips trembling with fear. While each gave different orders for the course they had to steer.

We dearly love our country up here in Harbour Main. (We fought and bled in Europe our freedom for to gain.) We're friendly with our neighbour, and we throw not sticks or stones. Yet we threw a shower of ballots which elected Lewis and Jones.

We are a class of people up here not easily bluffed. We may take little medicine and know when we've had enough. So here's good luck to Harbour Main and every hardy son. So well may they hold up their heads for the noble part they've done. WM. JOSEPH O'BRIEN. Topsail.

Obituary.

EUSEBIUS (FRANK) LEWIS.

There passed peacefully away at his late residence, Duckworth Street, a well-known citizen in the person of Eusebius Lewis. Frank, as he was familiarly called, was one of the old school, now alas, becoming very few. Born in St. John's in 1844, son of the late William Lewis, Master Pilot, he at the early age of fourteen, took up the occupation of seaman, which calling he pursued for upwards of twenty years, sailing to practically every part of the world. The Greeks named it white, hane to distinguish it from the blue acorn. The Greek word for white is "leukos," but by a blunder the "e" was dropped and the word became "lukos," which is Greek for wolf.

Location of Big Fight Known in Ten Days.

New York.—The location of the Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier bout will be known within a week.

"I will name the battle ground on April 1," said Rickard. "By that time I will have begun to build my arena. The bout will be conducted under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Sporting Club."

"Does that mean that you intend to hold the big bout in New York City?" Tex was asked.

Rickard said he would in all probability name the site of the international bout in a week's time. He has cabled Carpentier, asking for the extension of time. Kearns said that the old contract was still in force, but that in the end the men would box on a percentage basis.

Dempsey opens a six weeks' vaudeville engagement over the Pantages circuit in Minneapolis next Sunday.

Rickard exhibited a letter from Cochran, dated Feb. 3, which gives the English promoters' views on the bout. He still hopes, as may be seen by the letter, to bring the bout to London. The letter follows:

"I have been ill in bed for some weeks and business matters have been kept from me as far as possible. This morning I received a long letter from Mr. Brady, explaining the situation, and I have also been shown your cable of Jan. 21.

"There have been disappointed accounts in the English papers, but I did not realize until today that Kearns has not made the deposit on behalf of Dempsey. I had heard before that there is some difficulty in regard to Carpentier's deposit; exactly what I do not know. Descamps continues to state that he has forwarded the deposit.

"If all the conditions of the contract had been carried out I should certainly not wish to withdraw from my share in promoting the contest. I do not care, however, to take the risk unless the boxers have put up their money, as I have already suffered too much from boxers failing to keep their engagements, but expecting their full pound of fish on every occasion from the promoters. If the match falls through in the United States and the boxers are prepared to accept reasonable conditions to bring off the contest in the United Kingdom, I am prepared to join you and Brady in promoting it, but even then I should expect the boxers to make a proper deposit, to be forfeited in the event of their failing to keep their engagement."

When making eclairs, squeeze the butter through a pastry bag.

When making scalloped fish, use stale breadcrumbs, not dried crumbs.

Dates are delicious stoned and filled with almond fudge while still soft.
