Oerman Socialist Bill Defeated.

IN, Jan. 27.—The Reichstag was with visitors Saturday despite the mat admission could only be gained by s holding tickets, which were unusually ult to get. The feature of the day was defeat of the Socialist Bill, a Governcereat of the Socialist, comed the debate by declaring that the recution of the Government had had no to in suppressing Socialism. He was surprised, he said, that the Governit should desire to make the suppression cocialism nermanent, but Social Demo-

it was tresspassing upon the limits of the law. A majority of the Socialists clung to the doctrines preached by the London founders of the movement. The Socialist leaders in Germany did not represent the masses of the people and, least of all, the workingmen. They represented rather those who did not want to work.

Prince Schonaich Carolath (Moderate Conservative) reminded the House of the statement made by the Socialist Dietz at Thursday's meeting that the author of the pamphlet printed in Zurich entitled "A Woman's Hand in German Policy," was Duke Ernst of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The manuscript, it was asserted, had been the manuscript, it was asserted, had been the manuscript, it was asserted and been to meet the demands of her creditors, was in the demands of her creditors, was was Duke Ernst of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The manuscript, it was asserted, had been sent to the publishers with some hundred mark notes. The Hamburg police had suppressed a poem about a railroad employe sacrificing his life to save a train, but this Zurich pamphlet was not suppressed, though English ladies of high rank and a German lady of exalted position, who, though cradled in England, has been comnected with Germany for weal or wee for 30 years, were insulted in it. The pamphlet had to find a publisher outside of Germany in the Socialist press of Zurich. The Queen of England and her daughter could not be insulted in Germany with impunity.

The vote on the whole bill was soon afterward taken, as the Government abstained from any declaration, showing its willingness to accept the bill without the expulsion clause. The Conservates voted 'no' with the Progressits, the Center party and the Socialists, against the combined yeas of the Imperialists and the National-Liberals. The bill was rejected by 160 against it to Imperialists and the National-Liberals. The bill was rejected by 169 against it to

The bill was rejected by 169 against it to 98 in favor.

As soon as the vote was concluded Herr Boetticher, amid the suppressed excitement of the occasion, announced that the session was closed, and requested the deputies to convene at the Schloss at 6 p.m. The Emperor received the deputies in the white hall of the Schloss at that hour, and readito them his speech closing the session. The absence from the speech of all political allusions, and the failure to make any mention whatever to the Socialist Bill surprised every one.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.] OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 27.—Dr. W Elgin, told me this morning that it is not at all likely that he will re-introduce this session his bill to relieve the action of trades unions from the conspiracy. He withdrew it last year, it will be remembered, at the request of the Government, who promised to incorporate some such measure with their labor legislation promised for this session. Hence Dr. Wilson thinks that if it is to come up as a a private bill at all this session it should be introduced by some supporter of the Government. Memorial Services in Knox Church-

London South, yesterday, the services partook of a memorial character. Before beginning his sermon, the pastor (Rev. Mr. Ballantyne), in pathetic terms, referred to the harvest which death had gathered from the flock during the previous week, and many of the large congregation present were visibly affected. In the course of his remarks, the reverend gentle-
