The Bryant crossing of the C. P. R was the scene of a terrible tragedy on Sat-tirday evening by which Wesley R. Warner and his two daughters were hurled into eternity. The victims of the tragedy had been in the city attending the market and were crossing the railway track when they were struck by the eastern-bound tassenger train, which is due in this city at 5:25 p. m. leavored to cross in front of the train will never be known. The engine struck the tragon fairly on the whifletrees and MILLED THE THREE OCCUPANTS OUTRIGHT. The collision threw the unfortunate victims against the smoke box of the engine, which in turn pitched them a distance of twenty yards upon the bank at the right hand side of the track. The horses were also killed instantaneously, being thrown on the opposite side of the track, while the wagon was reduced to splinters. The engine was reversed and the air brakes applied, but

THE ENGINE DRIVER'S STORY.

The train which struck the Warner family's wagon with such fearful results was in charge of Conductor Thompson, with Thomas Rutledge, of this city, as driver. To a reporter Mr. Rutledge said: "I cannot understand how it happened. Even the second whistle should have saved him. I had the first signal sounded at about the resual distance of 400 yards, and again just efore we came upon the crossing. There is a little rise in the ground at the crossing and when I first saw the danger Warner's lorses were just at the side of the track, a unother instant the engine was upon hem and all was over. When we had run ack the body of the father was found on the hillside, the older girl's body was in se ditch, while the younger child lay close the rails."

THE CORONER NOTIFIED.
On the arrival of the train the railway othorities immediately notified Coroner Smith. As an inquest was deemed necessary he empaneled the following jury: Messrs. Walter Bartlett (foreman). Harry Bapty, Michael Donoine, John Goble, Thomas Whittaker, William Mason, William McGuffin, P. A. O'Dell, William awkins, William Wyatt, James Perkins, L. Yerex, James Liddell, C. D. Johnson, Mitcheltree, G. W. Pitt and Alfred Davis. The jurors met at the morgue on Sunday morning, and after viewing the bodies adjourned until Wednesday evening.

Maggie L. Warner, 9 years old. Injuries-Fracture of the skull; injury over the right portion of the frontal bone; compound fracture of the humerus; injury of the left elbow joint. Cause of death, injury to the brain.

Hundreds of citizens made their way to the fatal crossing yesterday and carried off portions of the smashed wagon, bits of the harness and other memonics of the disaster. The C. P. St. officials placed a special train at the disposal of the coroner's jury at 3 o'clock Sunday afternon, and the jurymen, accompanied the railway officials went out to the crossing. The first objects that met the gaze of the dead horses which lay against the carcasses cance on the left side, where they and been thrown by the locomotive. Just at the other side of the crossing is a twenty-foot cutting. The bank on either side is steep, and would prevent any one from seeing an approaching train until within twenty feet of the rails. The approach to the crossing is of a rising nature, the highest point being reached about a wagon's length from the track. The fence guarding the approach to the track, which was demolished by the flying horses, had been rebuilt and its presence puzzled many to account for the position of the animals inside of it. To give the jurors an idea of the crossing the train was backed up the grade for several yards, and after a warning whistle was run over the crossing. A brief inspection of the surroundings comploted the afternoon's work, and the jury again boarded the train and were conveyed back to the city. At the depot Foreman Bartlett moved a vote of thanks to the C. P. R. officials for their kindness in placing the train at the disposal of the jury as well as for their cheerful assistance in helping the jurors to arrive at a proper conclusion with respect to the accident.

twenty yards upon the bank at the horses were also killed instantaneously, being thrown on the opposite side of the track, while the wagon was reduced to splinters. The engine was reversed and the air brakes applied, but too LATE.

All that remained of the home-returning trio was the three dead bodies, which, in view of the terror-stricken passengers, were picked up, placed side by stide in the aggage car, and covered with blankets and iffalo robes. The news of the calamity traveled almost as fast as the speeding train, so that when it backed into the siding 4-bit city depot, the number of spectators was swelled by a large crowd who visited to satisfy their morbid curiosity by azing at the bruised and mangled remains of the victims. They occasioned the rail asy officials no end of trouble until the rpses were conveyed to Ferguson's lorgue.

The VICTIMS IDENTIFIED.

While the dead bodies were lying on the saggage truck soveral farmers identified them. Warner was a well-to-do farmer, about 51 years of age. He was well known in the city, and many of those who looked with sorrow on his mangled remains had seen him but a few hours before on the market.

Yesterday morning when his cell was opened and he was ordered to arise and prepare for his ride to Jackson, he passed out of the cell, walked to the end of the corridor, ran as fast as he could and dashed his head against the stone wall, stunning himself and badly bruising his head. He was handcuffed and carried to the train, crying aloud the entire distance—nearly a mile.

Fatal Fight Between Neighbors at Strathroy.

William Rowe Charged with the Murder

STRATHROY, Ont., March 23.—Saturday afternoon a most melancholy affair occurred on the town line between Caradoc and Metcalfe, about six miles from this town, by which a young man lost his life at the hands of a neighbor and relative. As far as can be learned at present an old feud had existed between Robert Murray of lot 1, con. 13, Metcalfe, and Wm. O. Rowe, of lot 2, on the same concession, over some Government drain that runs through their joint properties. Saturday afternoon, as Mr. Rowe was talking to Mr. Herrington at the corner of the townline and the 13th concession of Metcalfe, Robt. Murray and his wife drove up on their way home from Strathroy, and with an oath Murray said to Rowe that if he did not get out of the way he would ride him down. This he did, running over Rowe and throwing him in the ditch. Blows followed, in which it is said that both used clubs, Rowe apparently getting the worst of it, and had to be helped to his home, some half a mile distant.

Word was subsequently brought to

as an old standing quarrel.

The melancholy affair has cast a gloom over Strathroy and the entire neighborhood, as both deceased and accused were highly respected by their friends and neighbors.

A MUSICAL STROLL.

Recent Events Canvassed by a Musical Correspondent.

The Latest Popular Melodies at the Stores.

My last "stroll" dealt largely with the "Canadian Society of Musicians," endoavoring to explain its object and extend its influence. There has lately arisen a point of discussion which I think it well to mention. Many members are of opinion that the chief point of attraction at the annual conventions should be the music. By this I mean really good music—nusic that can be appreciated by the members and also by the general public. The concerts of the convention are like any other concerts, convention are like any other concerts, inasmuch as the public can pay the usual prices and attend them; therefore it is undoubtedly the best policy musically and financially to secure the very best attractions that can be afforded. It is, I believe, conceded by all who have belonged to the C. S. M. from its inauguration, that we in London, at the third convention, gave the best musical programmes. All who took part in them naturally feel honcerd, although we do not hesitate to admit that the Detroit Philharmonic Club was the chief attraction. I think all who may be inclined to become members of the C. S. M. may be pretty certain that a programme of really fine music will be provided at the next (December) convention in Toronto.

The concert season is growing brisker and more brisk. The first appearance of Mrs. Agnes Thomson in this city was greeted with a very good audience, as all know. NEW MUSIC.

The following has been received from the Anglo-Canadian Music Publishing Association, Toronto:

1. "Thoughts and Tears," by Hope Temple (compass E flat to F)—This is one of the most charming songs I have seen for some time. The composer has most effectually entered into the spirit of the sweet sad verses by Clifton Biugham.

2. "Remember," by Stanley Forbes (published in three keys)—Very melodious, and with a specially beautiful refrain, not in the conventional waltz measure.

3. "Gladsome Tidings," by Frederick Bevan (in two keys)—A good descriptive song of the "Storm at Sea" species; with some very tender touches introduced. A sure road to popularity lies in the fact that both voice part and accompaniment are simple.
