With this suspicion once conceived, she could not rest until she had sifted the matter; therefore she had that afternoon informed Mrs. Remington that she was going upon a little shopping expedition, and instead had directed her steps to No. 10 — Court, where Mr. Archibald had told Max that he could be found any day after four o'clock.

The heart of the luxurious Laura had failed her, however, when she was ushered into the eccentric old bachelor's gloomy apartments, which were as quaint and ancient in their furnishings as the peculiar, would voluntarily live in such comfortless manner if he had plenty of money at his command.

For a moment she was half inclined to go away as quietly as she had come, and never let him know of her presence in the city; but, upon second thoughts, she concluded to "beard the lion in his den," and ascertain for herself what he was like. Mr. Archibald sat so long silent, after that last remark of his, that Laura began to grow restless and un-silent, after that last remark of his, that Laura began to grow restless and uncomfortable, and to think that he was a disagreeable enigma which she neither could nor cared to solve.

She was just on the point of rising to take her leave, when he lifted his head and fixed his keen glance again upon her.

"One would never suppose that you were the daughter of a poor woman," he abruptly remarked, pointing to her rich dress. "Where did you get all those fine furbelows?"

with an insinuating smile:

"Mamma always thought it wise to purchase good material and if one has taste and skill, it requires no more time or labor to get up a handsome toilet than a dowdy one. We always made all our own clothes, Uncle Joseph."

This was a downright falsehood, for Miss Pomeroy never troubled herself with work of any description if she could avoid it; but a few lies now and then did not count with her, if thereby she could serve her own ends.

Mr. Archibald's expression softened a trifle at this statement. It was a praisetrifle at this statement. It was a praise worthy trait if the girl was industrious, he thought, and there might be considerable to her in spite of her questionable antecedents.

"It is all nonsense for poor people to array themselves as if they were worth a million," he ungraciously snapped.

"Yes, I know that I am poor," Laura said, with a heavy sigh; then, with a swift, sly glance at him: "Are you poor, Uncle Joseph? I—I thought you were rich."

"Eh? rich! this doesn't look much as if I was a Rothschild or a Vanderbilt, does it?" he sharply retorted, as he glanced about the shabby apartment.

"But you were always so generous to mamma," the girl said, with an inflection that pleased him and made him re-gard her more kindly than he had yet done, "and I thought—we both thought that you must have plenty."
"Hum! well, people will sometimes do certain things from a sense of duty that they wouldn't do from any other motive," replied, growing brusque again.

am afraid you have denied yourself many comforts for our sake. I am sure is was very kind and noble of you," said the girl softly. She was determined to learn all that was possible from him. if a little flattery would serve to thaw him out.

If she could but get him to commit himself in any way to show that he had property, in spite of the evidence against such a fact, it would be worth while to curry favor with him. If he had nothing, she would drop him at once and forever.

CHAPTER VIII.

"I will make a proposition to you, Laura," Mr. Archibald remarked, after another season of meditation and ob-serving her with a searching glance." The girl turned her bland and smiling face toward him, thinking perhaps he might be going to continue to her the annuity which he had given her mother, and that she would be very well satisfied with it for the present.

"I've lived alone all my life," the old man went on, with a plaintive note in his tone. "I've never know what it was to have a home since your grandmother his tone. Twe never know what it was to have a home since your grandmother died, and I'd really like to see how it would seem once more. If you will come to me, to keep house for me, and try to make life comfortable and pleasant for me, I will take as good care of you as I know how. What do you say to the plan?"

"And-live-here?" gasped Miss Pomeroy, growing pale with horror and anger at the bare suggestion.

Her companion smiled grimly.
"Hum-you think the gewgaws and furbelows you like to wear would look to be out of place inside such dingy.

rather out of place inside such dingy rooms and sweeping these carpetless rooms and sweeping these carpetless floors, etc?" he returned, with stinging sarcasm. Then he continued more gravely, and with something of earnest appeal in his voice. "No. Laura; if you will agree to my proposal, I will take a convenient house, say of six rooms on Michigan avenue, but with substantial useful furniture; keep one servant to do the drudgery, and you shall manage the rest. More than this," he added, as if he were about to propose something wonderful, while he leaned forward and watched her with the keenest interest, "more than this," I will allow you a hundred and fifty dollars a year for your clothes. How does the plan strike you?"

During this speech Laura Pomeroy had grown as pale as the handkerchief which that had taken possession of her.

A slip-shop, red-faced girl in the kitchen as cook, and to do general housework; no second girl, no laundress, no seamstress, and—a paltry hundred and fifty dollars, hardly the price of a single costume—to clothe herself for a whole year! That would, of course, mean print dresses for everyday, with a single second-rate suit for church and visiting; consequently, she could neither give nor attend any parties, balls, etc.—she would have to give up the theater, opera, and all the gay pleasures which her selfish heart craved.

heart craved. she was speechless from anger and mortification and disappointment, and an almost uncentrollable impulse seized her to rush forward and smite the contemptible old miser in the face for his niggarly offer. He had given her mother a thousand dollars a year; he might at least have offered her half that sum for her own use.

Perhaps she might wheedle him out of it even yet, though she sickened at the thought of living such a life as he had was really no house to manage.

She might have explained that they had lived in this way in order to enable her mother to have more time to devote to the fashionable millinery establish-ment where she worked so tirelessly for the sake of gratifying the extravagant whims of her selfish daughter.

Do Not Carry Your Load of Disease Into the Spring Season.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Makes Rich, Pure Blood, Strong Nerves and Gives a New Lease of Life.

Too often people drag with them into the spring season a load of disease that has proved a heavy burden during Laura Pomeroy shivered.

One might as well be buried alive as to be obliged to live in such a vile hole, boils, eruptions, neuralgia, rheumatism, boils, eruptions, neuralgia, rheumatism, kidney disease, liver trouble, dyspepsia and nervous complaints claim thousands of victims throughout the land. The cleansing, healing, and life-renewing work of Paine's Celery Compound in the past should be sufficient guarantee to every sufferer that it will surely and quickly overcome every form of disease just referred to. In every case Paine's Celery Compound is the one remedy that will completely and permanently bring back the health, make pure rich blood, regulate and build up the weakened nervous system. Mrs. Admanson, Head of Millstream, N. B., who, after years of sickness and suffering at last found a new life in Paine's Celery Compound. writes thus:

"I feel it a duty to briefly testify regarding the value of Paine's Celery Compound. Since childhood I suffered from sick headaches, neuralgia and constipation. Hadl attacks once a week which kept me confined to my bed. Have been treated by a number of physicians without beneficial results. I procured six bottles of Paine's Celery Compound which was strongly recommended to me, and after a short time I found that new life and health coming that I had so long wished for. Two years have passed and I have not had a return of my old troubles. I can never say too much in favor of Paine's Celery Compound."

INCREASE OF RATES TO THE OLD MEMBERS

Will Be Proposed at the Chosen Friends' Annual Meeting To Be Held Today.

Toronto, March 25 .- The executive of the Order of Chosen Friends at a meeting here last night, completed preparations for the annual meeting here today at which there will be a battle royal over the proposed increase of rates to old members.

There are over 22,000 members, 3,772 having joined last year. The older members get very low rates, and the newcomers have to pay on a schedule considerably higher. The Ontario insurance department has warned the order that these old rates are likely to ad the order into difficulties, and W. J. McCameron, of Bellevile, the grand councilor, in his address says: "We are kindly warned and advised by the inspector of insurance, a gentleman who has made a thorough study of the science of life insurance, that our existing rates are below the standard of safety. We are also warned by the information published by the National Fraternal Congress of the United States that our rates are below the minimum of safety. Every fraternal society doing business in Canada today in discussing the question of rates. Will we continue to plow a lonely furrow?"

INFANTICIDE AT WINDSOR. Windsor, Ont, March 24.-Two little children playing on the beach below the dock of the wrecker Saginaw noticed a bundle of clothing in the water and on pulling it ashore found that it contained the body of a baby. Dr. Bell, coroner, made an examination of the body and gave as opinion that the child had been alive at birth, but could not say whether it had died a natural death or had been drowned. This is the second child's body found in Windsor within a few days.

CHOYNSKI KNOCKED OUT. Chicago, March 25.—Kid Carter, of Brooklyn, knocked out Joe Choynski in the first round of a six-round contest last night at the America Club. Choynski last night at the America Club. Choynski had frequently reached Carter's Jaw and had him staggering, when the latter landed a desperate right in the pit of Choynski's stomach, doubling him up. Before he could recover Carter chopped him on the jaw. Choynski went down, but staggered to his feet and began slugging. Carter, though he received a beating, was the stronger. After missing several times he finally landed a full right swing on Choynski's jaw. It lifted Choynski clear off his feet, and he lit on the top of his head. It was thought that he had been seriously injured, but a physician brought him to. He was unconscious ten minutes.

But the body s built up just as the corn is, by the assimilation of the several chemical elements on which vitality depends. And what weeds are to the corn, diseases of the stomach and nutritive systems are to the body; they divert the necessary food supply from the proper channels, and the body becomes lean, sickly and ill-nourished. The proper digestion and assimilation of food is a primary essential of health. By healing diseases of the stom-ach and organs of digestion and nutrition, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery increases and sends to every organ of the body the rich red-corpuscled blood on which physical vigor and vitality depend.

"I took two bottles of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for stomach trouble," writes Clarence Carnes, Esq., of Taylorstown, Loudoun Co., Va. "It did me so much good that I didn't take any more. I can eat most anything now. I am so well pleased with it I hardly know how to thank you for your kind information. I tried a whole lot of things before I wrote to you. There was a gentleman told me about your medicine, how it had cured his wife. I thought I would try a bottle of it. Am now glad that I did, for I don't know what I would have done if it had not been for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

MOST LIKELY WAS MURDERED

James Quirk, of Brantford, Killed in His Barn.

Lived Only a Few Minutes After He Was Attacked—The Assassin Escaped.

Brantford, March 24 .- The Brantford Courier printed an extra this morning, giving the following particulars of last night's murder.

Mr. Quirk was around the hotel as usual Sunday evening. After 10 o'clock he went out with a friend, David Thomas, and had a dish of oysters at Flemings' restaurant. Returning to the hotel he was seen by his partner, Mr. Toole, who left him down stairs, Mr. Toole going to bed.

Bob Ryan, the cook of the hotel, was also sitting in the public reading room of the hotel at the time. About midnight, a bell boy named Eddie Kenny, whose room is back of the hotel and near the bar, heard a shout and the groans coming from the barn. Going to his window, and the groans still continuing, he ran down stairs and told Ryan he thought someone in the barn had been kicked by a horse. Ryan rushed out to the barn and found the electric lights turned on, and in the little harness room at the foot of the loft steps was horrified to see the body of Quirk, head downward, in a big pool of blood.

Mr. Toole arrived on the scene shortly afterward, and, raising the body, found that his partner had been terribly injured. Quirk opened his eyes once, but that was the only movement of life that he ever again made. The poor man was dead. A foul murder had been committed during the Sunday midnight hour. In the loft over the barn Quirk kept some valuable game cocks and chickens. The supposition is that at twenty minutes to twelve he went out to the barn to see the chickens, or perhaps he had been attracted there by hearing a noise. He put on the electric lights and then ascended the narrow steps. At the top he must have been attacked and struck with some heavy weapon. The top of his head was badly smashed in with two blows, while a deep gash was also made over the right eye. It was apparently a repetition of the Sifton murder.

could have produced such terrible wounds.

The murderer apparently made his escape through the large door leading from the yard to Dalhousie street. This door had been closed and barred by the hostler. The bars were found by the police thrown down and the big gate partly open.

At the top of the loft steps and all about are heavy blotches of blood, while at the bottom of the steps is a large congealed pool of blood. Robbery was not the intention evidently as Mr. Quirk's pockets were untouched.

The murdered man was 43 years of age, and leaves a wife and two bright girls. His father is Conductor Quirk, of Wingham. There is no clue whatever to the murderer or the motive of the foul crime. It looks as though the blows showered upon the dead man had been made with an axe. The axe kept in the yard for chopping was found by the police, but there are no blood stains on it.

THE SMALLPOX

Party in the House the Night Before Small pox Developed on Grant Avenue, Hamilton- Disease on the Victorian.

Hamilton, March 25.-There are no ew developments in connection with the case on Grant avenue in this city. The patient is now sitting up. None of the other persons in the house show signs of sickness. It is stated that on Wednesday night, before Whiteman's case was pronounced to be smallpox. there was a party in the house, about 20 friends being present. Whiteman was then complaining. The health department has hunted up all of them and has vaccinated them all.

Ottawa, March 25. — A letter from Lieut.-Col. Thomas Evans, stated that upon the arrival of the troopship Victoria at Cape Town there was one case of smallpox on beard of a mild type, and no further spread of the disease was feared. A letter of a later date, however, states that three other cases developed, making four in all.

PADEREWSKI MAKES MONEY. Chicago, March 25 .- At the Paderewski matinee in the Auditorium Chicago Saturday afternoon, hundreds of the pianist's admirers were turned away, unable to gain admittance to the hall. The receipts were $6,800, the largest amount Paderewski has played to in America.

CHASED HIM 5,500 MILES. Wichita, Kas., March 25.-George Irons, an alleged postoffice robber, has been captured after a chase lasting thirteen months and covering 5,500 miles, and brought back to Kansas, where he is wanted on the specific charge of robbing the postoffice at Salva Feb. 18, 1901. A federal grand jury at Wichita has indicted Irons with Albert Gibbs, Ray Taggert and Albert Taggert on charges of postoffice robbery. The three last-named men have all confessed that they were members of a gang which committed many postoffice robberies in Kansas under the leadership of Irons.

COLLECTION OF BABIES. Buffalo, March 25 .- Martin Mock, of 238 Lemon street, now at work in Pittsburg, got the news on his own birthday, of the addition of three boys to his family. They were born at the family home. No physician attended the mother. The youngsters are mark-ed with red, white and blue to dis-tinguish them, in the order of their birth, and are named Cornelius, Nelson and Vincent. MY ELECTRIC BELT

The product of years of study, the realization of the fondest dreams of the weak and worn invalid. It is not a toy belt, but a powerful life-giving Electric appliance, which is now recognized by the highest and best in the medical profession as the only certain means of restoring power to weak and vital organs. The strength is quickly restored and losses corrected. Rheumatic pains are quickly dispelled and all functions of the body developed and made strong. It sends the blood with a gladsome bound through the veins, carrying health to the body and happiness to the heart of the despondent sufferer.

CAUTION! If you value your health, do not accept an imitation of my Belt. There are many on the market. Old style, blistering scorchers, whose only merit is their ability to burn and scar the flesh, are being offered with a cheap imitation of my Cushion Electrode. But it is a sham. Don't accept it. The best is none too good when you want your health, your vigor; so avoid imitations. The cushion electrode is my special invention. Without it all electric belts blister and burn holes in the flesh and can do no good. I take the other belts in trade.

FREE BOOK Every man who admires the perfection of physical strength should read my beautifully illustrated book. It tells how strength is lost and how I restore it with my Electric Belt.
