LES MISERABLES

Story of Jean Valjean Repeated at the Auditorium.

In his own inimitable manner Dr. S. Cleaver told the story of Jean Valjean at Montreal last night. For two long hours or rapt attention to Victor Hugo's great I ly portrayed in "Les Miserables."
In simple, easy narrative, the lecturer clearly pictured to his hearers the story of the heautiful Cosette and her unfortunate mother; the horrors of such prison life, the unerring yigilance of the French police, and the great heart of Jean Valjean.
Dr. Cleaver has delivered this lecture in London on previous occasions, but its popularity increases with its repetition.

and Three Glasses of Milk.

Morris Plains, April 21.— After a fast of 85 days Annie Gesellt, 30 years old, light of build and not very healthy, today partook of food again. A half-dozen glasses of milk and half an orange were all the food she had durling her fast.

Miss Geselli went to the Passle general hospital early in February for a pain in her side. On her first day she drank a glass of milk and ate half an orange. She maintained that an Adjutant Lily Bond a Delegate to Congress on Sociology.

Adjutant Lily Bond, matron of the Riverview Avenue Rescue Home of the Riverview Avenue Rescue Home of the Salvation Army, has gone to London. England, where she will attend the strmy congress on sociology to be held in May.

The congress will be presided overly Gen. Booth, and will be devoted entirely to sociological questions, and the best methods, from the army standpoint, of dealing with the great social problems of the present day.

It is expected that a great deal of good will result from the holding of the congress, which will be different from any Salvation Army convention previously held. A number of delegate will be present from Canada.

More Than Last Year.

Toronto, April 20,-The final year the closing exercises will be held in Toronto, April 21.—After having spent three days in concention at the University of Toronto, the eight hundred educationalists who come to Toronto every year for their annual gathering, left for their houses last night, well pleased with the results of their instity, with enough material in their notebooks to keep them studying for several months to come.

The papers which have been read during the convention were carefully prepared and as carefully discussed, and with the exception of the superannuation scheme, which will be more thoroughly discussed next year, the business of the convention were carefully prepared and as carefully discussed, and with the exception of the superannuation scheme, which will be more thoroughly discussed next year, the business of the convention was carried through to a satisfactory conclusion.

Among the topics- under discussion at the final meetings of the convention were the suggestion that commissions should be appointed to conduct the business of rural schools, on the business of rural schools, on the firm of the superannual to their professed economical views, which made them very marrow and had a tendency to make glucation too narrow.

The Government was thanked for his new bill passed at the last seasion of the Legislature, making holidays in rural schools the same as those in town and city schools. The meagre outlays for school purposes by many school boards was criticised.
