RED SOX WILL COP SERIES BY WINNING ONE MORE GAME

HUGH BEDIENT HOLDS GIANTS TO THREE HITS AND BEATS MATHEWSON

Youthful Red Sox Pitcher Jumps Into Glare of Limelight By Winning Fifth Game of World Series for Boston on Saturday.

TWO THREE-BAGGERS IN SUCCESSION AND DOYLE'S ERROR BEATS GIANTS

Not a Boston Player Reached First Base After Third Inning-Giants Scored in Seventh on a Double and an Error -Stahl's Men Look Like Winners.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 12 .- Boston had to drag a man out of obscurity today to make a hero of him, all the regular, licensed heroes being otherwise engaged.

Hugh Bedient is the name of this person suddenly thrust into the Temple of Fame, and he certainly ought to feel right at home there. This was a case of having greatness thrust upon one, but the man on whom so much honor suddenly descended richly deserved it and will wear his laurels modestly for he is a cool, unemotional sort of lad, whose aplomb neither adversity

A few hours ago very few of the good people of this United States could have told off-hand whether Bedient was the name of a ball player or a disease or something to drink. Now everyone is hailing him as conqueror of the New York Gients, and a game and gifted hurler. Instead of being just one of Boston's second string pitchers, almost overlooked in the fess being made over Stahl's club, he has become in less than two hours the great Bedient, whose name will be handed down in baseball history, as the man who made good in a pinch. For he outpitched the peerless Mathewson all the way and gav: Boston the lead in the series, three games to one.

Boston's batsmen did all that Bedient required of them in the third inning, when they made two runs on a combination of a pair of three base hits and an error by Capt. Doyle, of New York. Hooper began the big fuss with a smash almost over third base. The ball rolled down the left field foul line and sought the narrow opening between the permanent bleachers and the new temporary affair. It would be something of a feat for a batsman to take the tall in his hand and hit it into this space, but Hooper was lucky and the sphere, with Devore in hot pursuit, disappeared from view.

Hooper Makes Three. Before Josh could get the pellet for the man handling ground balls to attend in play again. Hooper was on back in play again, Hooper was on third. Then up came that sterling pinch-hitter, Yerkes, and smote the first ball pitched him on a line over Fletcher's head. The white horsehide was past Snodgrass before he cut across and intercept it, and, striking the low fence in front of the stand, went bounding and skipping along toward deep centre. Snodgrass had to cover a lot of ground to follow the various tacks taken by the missile, but finally got hold of it and threw to Fletcher, who relayed to third just a fraction of a second too late to get Yerkes.

Hooper had scored, of course. on Hooper had scored, of course. on Steve's larrup and the terrible Tris Speaker came along with a runner on third and nobody out. Like a star sometimes will do in a pinch. "Spoke" made a rather weak effort, rolling a little grounder at Doyle, who was playing in. The chance looked so soft that Yerkes didn't even start home, but Doyle didn't even start home, but Doyle when he tried to take second on from the fine performances of Joe Wood and "Rube" Marquard, fair-minded fans who saw today's game are willing to admit that Bedient's performance was the best that any clinger has given by connected with Gardner's failure to make a play that, while difficult, was by no means exceptionally so.

a play that, while difficult, was by no means exceptionally so.

Eedlent Works Coolly.

In pinches or out of them, Bedient worked deliberately, calmly, sometimes almost carclessly, he was so sure of himself. With the assistance of Forest Cady, who some day is going to be hailed as the best catchor in baseball, the youngster allowed nothing to rattle him, nothing to interfere with his making that ball do just what he wanted it to do, which usually was the thing that the Giants least desired or expected. It was positively dishonorable the way Cady kept crossing McGraw's champions up. Hitting the bad ones and leting the good ones go by was the New York specialty, just as it has been in other games of the series.

Speed, curves, good control and the cunning to hand up something the batter was not expecting, were Bedient's stock in trade. More deadly perhaps than anything he had on the ball was the splendid blending of the various ingredients. Many pitchers have more speed and a quicker break on their curve ball than had this kid today, but none can boast of a finer nerve and greater ability to outgress the kid today, but none can boast of a finer nerve and greater ability to outguess the hitters.

No hit killing catches, stops or throws were needed to make the pitcher's performance the success it was. With two exceptions, every chance offered the Boston team was in the A B C class of defensive work, a stop by Yerkes and a catch by Speaker being the exceptions. Nor were the Glants hitting liners unluckily aimed. Fifteen of the McGraw party perished on fly balls of which number eight furnished pop-ups for the indeed or catcher. Four more struck out, which did not leave a great deal of work the four New York safeties, the Giants did not hit the ball on a line in the entire afternoon, this in itself being a testi-

Nothing To Be Ashamed Of. Christy Mathewson, even in defeat, has nothing to be ashamed of. Except for the third inning, in which the Red Sox got he three-base hitting habit, he did won-didn't even start home, but Doyle runners at first and second, and only one let the ball percolate, through him and roll out into right field. Then, self together, and until he had disposed of course, Steve galloped in Speaker of two batters reckoned dangerous, look-was a little too ambitious and ed like the unbeatable pitcher of a few years ago.

The test to which the veteran was put when he tried to take second on the error, Murray, who had come in very fast, threw him out. And Speaker was the very last Bostonian to see first base in the ball game.

The field was a trifle sloppy in spots, and the mud holes prevented many fast pays. However, in the first three quarters some good football was pulled off by both teams, and the last quarter was equally as fast, only some minor injuries caused several delays.

Sarnia Strong.

Sarnia came to London with a much stronger team than was anticipated, the Tunnel Town being represented by a likely organization this year. Bill McCart, one of the best punting backs in this district for several years past, was missing from the lineup, and in spots his absence was keenly felt by the visitors. McCart is attending Ottawa College this fall, and he played against Toronto Varsity on Saturday in Ottawa. However, the Sarnia back division was a strong one, and time and again its splendid work kept London from going over the line for a touch. "Dutchy" McGurk, "the Sarnia line, and Chatto tackled the man who recovered it before he could get it out. The slippery footing was a great find france, and many footing was a great find france, and many of the tackles and scrimmages were made in the mud. London seemed to be overeager, and repeated offsides were called, the linemen being largly responsible. Finally, Borland kicked the ball over the Sarnia line, and Chatto tackled the man who recovered it before he could get it out. It was the first point of the game being 1 to 0. Shortly before half-time barnia was forced to rouge again, and the half-time whistle blew with the score to be in favor of the locals.

OTTAWA COLLEGE LOST TO VARSITY

Toronto University Easily Outclassed Father Stanton's Team on Muddy Field.

OTTAWA WILL DROP OUT

Father Stanton Announces That College Will Enter Ontario Rugby Union.

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—The Toronto University football team easily defeated that of Ottawa College in the Intercollegiate Union at Varsity Oval on Saturday afternoon. The final score was 30 to 11. The field was very slippery, owing to a heavy storm at the noon hour, and the treacherous footing left trick plays out of the question, both teams confining their attacks to straight football, varied occasionally by end runs. If was a good game. sionally by end runs. It was a good game, however, and the college made a game fight against great odds.

In the first quarter, Phil Cornellier, the sensational full back of Father Stanton's team, was injured in trying to stop Mayard and then carried him off. Jack Sul-nard and then carried him off. Jack Sul-livan was also hurt, and later Jerry Har-rington and Bert Gilligan were forced to rington and Bert Gilligan were forced to retire. Gardner, the Varsity wing man, also dropped out as the result of injuries, Clarkson replacing him. Jack Maynard was badly hurt in the first period, and was only able to hobble about during the balance of the match, but Coach Griffith kept him on the field by his generalship, and Maynard played a splendid game under the circumstances. Dutch Gonter was the shining light. After the retirewas the shining light. After the retirement of Cornellier, Nagie and McCart did the kicking for College, but Gonter outbooted both and gained many points for Varsity by his punts. Gage played a fine game on the Varsity line, while Sheehy and Nagle starred for Ottawa. Father Stanton flashed his signals from the tensor Stanton flashed his signals from the top of the grand stand, but his youngsters were outplayed and outgeneralled

Father Stanton announced that it was the last game which Ottawa College would play in the Intercollegiate. They have practically decided to jump to the Ontario Union as the result of the action of the

BEAT ARGONAUTS

Inability to Kick Was the Chief Cause of Oarsmen's Defeat -Game Was Slow.

MALLETT WAS INJURED

Crowd of Five Thousand Witnessed the Game at Toronto - Result Was a Surprise.

Toronto, Oct. 14.—Hamilton Tigers came, saw and conquered on Saturday afternoon at Rosedale grounds, when they took Argonauts into their "jungle" by a score of 9 to 3. It was a great surprise to the local followers, who expected after Argonauts' win at Montreal last Saturday Oarsmen would pull out another victory The weather was fine, with the exception of a strong west wind, which gave the team playing in that direction a decided advantage. A crowd of 5,000 people saw the game.

Tigers the Best Team.

Tigers were the superior team, and won on their merits. Unlike the Argonauts, their half division is the strong point. Mallett, McKelvey and Burton are the members, and they all performed creditably. Mallett, until he was hurt, did the kicking, and performed in his usual good style. Burton was the same old "Dutch," and while he did not pull off anything spectacular, made ground on all his runs, McKelvey, the youngest member of the team, proved himself a coming star. He made every catch attempted, and a number of times evaded tacklers by good dodging. Unlike most dodgers, he runs fast, and even when tackled sometimes breaks away.

Was on hand for the fifth day of racing at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association this afternoon.

Most interest was shown in the Blue Grass Stake, valued at $2,000, for 2:10 class pacers. Four starters faced the flag in this, with Joe Patchen II, standing out over the other three. The game little son of Joe Patchen proved too much for the field, and a number of times evaded tacklers by good dodging. Unlike most dodgers, he runs fast, and even when tackled sometimes breaks away.

This is his first year in senior company, being a member of the Capitals last year. He was the only man who could make ground on his bucks, and proved himself to be a coming star in this respect. He did most of the heavy work on the line, and never failed to gain ground. He broke through also, and blocked Mallett's kick on one occasion, the only one of the game. McMurray, at the outside wing, proved a stumbling block to the Tiger rear game. McMurray, at the outside wing, proved a stumbling block to the Tiger rear guard, his tackling spoiling many a run that looked good. Every member of the wing line played nice football, and should hold their own with any in the union. Smirlle Lawson did some nice work, and plowed through for several gains. The plowed through for several gains. The Tiger wings, however, gave him little chance to run back punts, as they were always waiting for him. Murphy made some nice runs. His weight helped him.

O. R. F. U. Pass Up Ottawa College

The O. R. F. U. at a meeting held in Hamilton Saturday night, decided not to deal with Ottawa College's application for admission into the union, owing to the team having played two games in the inter-collegiate series. Should Ottawa College wish to enter next season, there is every reason to believe that they will be admitted. In the meantime, the O. R. F. U. wish it understood that they are no outlaw organization that will admit outlaw organization that will admit every team having a grievance in another league after the playing season starts.
