In the commons to-day in the debate on the Hicks Beach motion of censure, Henry Chaplin, conservative, pronounced the conduct of the government in relation to Gordon as "an undying disgrace and dishonor to England."

Randolph Churchill made a bitter attack upon the government's policy. He believed that all England would say "Aye" to the question whether Gordon should be rescued. Gladstone would either have to submit to this demand or resign.

Forster, liberal, madea vehement speech attacking the policy of the government. He was frequently interrupted by vociferous cheers.

The motion of censure was rejected by a vote of 303 to 275. The Parnellites voted with the minority. The small majority for the government is looked upon as the sensation of the present session.

Thousands vainly endeavored to gain admission to the galleries of the house during the debate. The popular expression of feeling is strongly in opposition to the government. Up to the last moment the liberals had relied on the Irish vote. This is the fourth motion for censure that has been voted on this sesson and shows a fast dwindling away of the government's majority.

said all believed in the salvation of infants, therefore according to the same reasoning all infants should be put to death. He argued that a knowledge of the bible improves the condition of a people socially as well as morally. In conclusion he said that Christ is to conquer the whole earth through His disciples, and that their weapon is to be the word of God. Against Government Control of Tele-The McKim Case.
The following is a copy of the judgment of the magistrates in the McKim case, which has excited so much comment in Wellington on account of Mr. Peterson's conduct:

"The court being divided in their opinion, Mr. Halley considers that a prima facie case has been made out and the accused held answerable for the charge. Mr. Buschlen differs from this view, and considers that the charge should be dismissed. The county attorney considers that in consequence of this the case should be dismissed, and advises accordingly. The case is therefore dismissed.

An Eloping Couple Married on Borrowed

DUTTON, May 13.—A couple arrived here from the west yesterday. They were in great haste, and having hunted up great haste, and having hunted up the warden and secured a marriage certificate repaired to the residence of a minister who had previously been paid to perform the ceremony at any future time. The clergyman was absent and the young man was rendered almost wild by the fact that he expected the parents of the bride to arrive from Duart on the early train in search of their daughter, who had eloped after church Sunday. The bridegroom told his troubles to a few friends and they replenished his exchequer, assisted him to hunt up another clergyman, and the twain were duly wed.
