FOR THE GROWING SCHOOLGIRL.

Between the ages of twelve and fourteen the schoolgirl grows so fast that it is almost impossible to keep her in clothes of the proper size. Her skirts seem to grow shorter daily and waists take on a snug fit that is neither attractive nor comfortable. To obviate this, very practical dresses, which might be called variations of the Russian blouse, are considered the best form of dress for girls of the above mentioned years.

Made of some serviceable fabric such as mohair or Panama, the material is cut in one piece from the neck to hem and laid in deep box plaits, either pressed or stitched to the waistline, and from thence they spring out to form the skirt fulness. The underarm seams, drawn from the waistline and the bottom of the skirt is finished with a deep hem for future alterations.

The back of the dress is made the same as the front, and there is a tall-erol belt which fastens in the front and through a strap like that on the under-arm seam, through which the belt is run.

A yoke effect is created in this model with light blue cloth braided with black soutache, and the neck is cut rousing.

Full sleeves, puffed to the elbow, are gathered into a wide stitched cuff of the serge, trimmed with two bands of hercules braid.

Skirts are longer this year than they have been in previous seasons and the hems are deep enough to allow for two and three inches alteration during the life of the frock.

HEALTH RULES FOR PUPILS.

The Journal of Education contains a number of "health rules for pupils" and instructions to teachers for carrying out the direction for the cleanliness of the school-room. The teachers are required to post a copy of these rules where they can be easily read, and are directed to give a series of short lessons on the rules and the reasons for them; in short, as far as possible, to see that they are observed. They are as follows:

"The germs which cause tuberculosis (consumption), pneumonia, la grippe, diphtheria and many other diseases, are found in the saliva, especially when mixed with secretions or discharges from the nose, throat or lungs. It is not uncommon for these diseases to exist in so mild a form that the child is hardly sick and yet such cases are capable of spreading the disease. The spit mixes with the dust on the floor, becomes dry, the germs are set free, rise in the air, enter the lungs and cause the disease.

"Children are not careful as to what they handle, and their chances of acquiring disease are much increased by putting their fingers into their mouths."

"The long passage from the nostrils to the lungs gives off, and is constantly wet with a sticky secretion, the object of which is to strain the dust, disease germs and other foreign substances from the air before it reaches the lungs. It will be readily understood that this secretion, even from a healthy person, might contain disease germs."

"Both paper money and coins are capable of carrying dangerous germs. Remembering that money is frequently handled by persons affected with the most loathsome diseases, the necessity of this rule will be at once understood."

NERVE TONIC. The morning cold sponge or plunge in a warm room, followed by a hard rub with a coarse towel, acts as a fine nerve tonic, and is an extremely useful measure in preserving good health.

TO REMOVE SPLINTERS. The following is clipped from the London Times. It is well worth remembering to try in case of emergency: When a splinter has been driven deeply into the hand, it can be extracted without pain by steam. Nearly fill a wide mouth bottle with hot water; place the injured part over the mouth and press it slightly. The suction will draw the flesh down, and in a minute or two the steam will extract the splinter and the inflammation together.

"Let me kiss those tears away!" he begged tenderly. She felt for it, and he was busy for the next fifteen minutes. And yet the tears flowed on. "Can nothing stop them?" he asked breathlessly sad. "Nops," she murmured. "It's hay fever, you know. But go on with the treatment."—Cleveland Leader.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

A coincidence happened here recently which is worthy of note. Some time during the summer a gentleman in Boston received a remittance from a young lady of this place, among it being a Canadian ten cent piece. A couple of weeks ago, this gentleman came to Bear River to spend a few days, and on Sunday went to the Baptist church. As the contribution plate came around, he looked for his "mit" and here was this same ten cent piece, which he dropped upon the plate. Nothing strange about that, but, sitting in the seat directly ahead of him was the same young lady from whom he received it.
