HISTORICAL SIDE LIGHTS ON GERMANY

(By Andrew Gillis, New York)

During the Spanish-American war the German Government, in conjunction with Austria and Spain, addressed Great Britain, inviting her to join with them in a movement against the United States to curb our dangerous attitude towards Spain, and to stop us from prosecuting the war. Great Britain, to her own credit, not only promptly refused to join this coalition but informed them that she (Great Britain) would see to it that none of them interfered with our fighting Spain, as we were engaged in a war of humanity. When Dewey defeated the Spanish fleet off Manila the German admiral with his fleet tried to interfere with Dewey, who stripped for fight. Britain's fleet assembled in those waters at that time, ranged alongside the United States ships and told the German admiral that Great Britain would support Dewey in his action. The hatred of Germany against England has become an obsession with them, and the worst feature of it all is that it is not based upon reasonable ground. I ask the question, "What harm did Great Britain ever do to Germany?"

In the Seven Years' War, 1756 to 1763, time of Frederick the Great, Russia and Austria declared war on Prussia; they captured Berlin, held it at their mercy, were prepared to sack it and put a heavy indemnity on it. Frederick looked to the Continental European Powers for assistance in vain. Who went to his assistance? Great Britain (now the "God strike England" of the Germans) who by forced marches got to Berlin in time and drove off the Russians and Austrians. Not only this, but Great Britain financed the Great Frederick with 7,000,000 thalers per year to enable him to carry on the war against the enemies of Prussia. This money by the way, was never paid back by Prussia to Great Britain.

SHELL FACTORY AT CHATHAM

Gazette:—The sills and the side wall timbers of the new shell factory in the rear of the Maritime Foundry were placed in position last week and by this evening it is hoped to be ready for the roof. After that progress will be rapid and by the end of the week the machinery will be placed. Seven carloads of this have already arrived and it is only a matter of a very few weeks before Chatham will be among the places turning out shells for the allies. The new plant will be run by electricity, a thirty horse power electric motor getting its power from the town plant. The new building will be a commodious one, forty feet by about one hundred feet.
