The Public Health Act of N. S. Statutes now requires that every case of contagious disease be reported to the Health Officer and he is required Health Officer. Were this system carried out rigidly this notification process would of itself be a protection for we would know weekly just where to look for contagion, but unfortunately our medical men, on whom we must depend for this information are among the hardest worked in the country, and too frequently neglect Always bears this requirement of the law and we are therefore unable to get the full benefit of this provision of the Health Act. Were this carried out I would also be able to lay before you the number of cases of these various dis-
