

Canadian hotels, but the bell captain, chief porter or reservation clerk usually are happy to answer any questions you may have. Consult the house-keeper for service such as extra towels, bed boards, extra blankets or pillows, and the like. Canadian hotels usually supply ice for beverages free of charge in ice machines on every floor of the building.

Most hotels in Canada do not include the price of meals in their rates. Thus a breakfast in the hotel will be added to your bill. As hotels do not have a service charge, you should tip for individual services rendered (see page 31). All hotels provide soap and linens, and a bag for laundry. Most hotel rooms have telephones, television sets and private baths. If you wish to be awakened at a particular hour, notify the hotel

Shoes should not be left outside your room for overnight polishing.