

Business of the House

start on that subject, of course, you speak of the work not only of those particularly associated with us within this chamber. It is always a matter of wonder to me, the manner in which the Hansard secretariat and those who print it and make Hansard available so soon after the words are spoken. To each and all of them, I extend the warmest good wishes for Christmas.

Mr. Speaker: Before announcing the adjournment of the house, may I express the hope that those members who feel strong enough will pause at room 16 for a word of farewell. May I wish each of the members a holiday free from all thoughts of points of order and questions of privilege. I wish all members of the staff, to whom our thanks have been expressed already, a happy Christmas and New Year.

(Translation):

I also wish a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to the hon. member for St. Denis (Mr. Denis).

(Text):

It being eight minutes after six o'clock the house adjourned, without question put, until Monday, January 16, 1961.
