SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 20.

THE WOMEN WINNING OUT. One need not to be in sympathy with the methods or even with the cerned, with the exception of those imaims of the militant suffragettes to mediately involved and their intimates. appreciate the value of the concession the matter is settled and should be they have wrung from Prime Minister Asquith. They have obtained a hearing. The first great principle for which those who seek justice must Gray, who is handicapped by five years always struggle is the right to petition for redress of grievances. That society is reactionary is largely due to the fact that those who seek to change the existing order are brushed aside and denied a hearing. In all times the right of petition has been denied to the oppressed. When that always struggle is the right to peti-simply because she is a woman, it denied to the oppressed. When that right has once been admitted further relief has not been long delayed.

this to be true. For years the congress of the United States refused to receive petitions from the negroes in

of the human element which makes the whole world kin. The women of England have labore for centuries under conditions which justified revolt. Probably in no country has the merely masculine so asserted its authority over the merely feminine. The common law of England was extremely harsh, the wife not being regarded as the equal of the husband, but treated rather as his servant or his child. To this day discriminations against women exist, unknown in many other countries. Among the poorer classes women have suffered heavily from masters and task-masters. Among the shabbygenteel, and even well-to-do, the women, by absurd social traditions, have been debarred from exercising their talents and making the most of titude in London since the effort has their lives. They have been largely excluded from the professions, and in other ways discriminated against; and even among the more fortunate, English women have been peculiarly subject to the domination of their husbands, and, if unmarried, the domination of their fathers, brothers, and other male relatives. It is not surprising that many women in England are struggling for the political equality which has been so freely accorded in many of the daughter nations, and in many of the American states. They desire this equality to help their sisters, to lift them from distressful conditions, and to elevate and advance the sex. Their cry has been the appeal of Themistocles at Salamis: "Strike, but hear me." Their courage and persistence may seem to many to be fanaticism, but it often happens that the fanatic, however despised by those in authority, brings about great social reforms and changes. His methods may seem to many unwise, dangerous and deserving of condign punishment, but his soul goes marching on. And of all the wrongs of women and children in England that cry for redress what is there to equal that of the sweat shops, where women work, the places where children toil, and

the servitude of girls in shops? NO POLITICS IN SELF-HELP.

One point in the co-operative movement in Great Britain that is commonly overlooked is its separation from local and sectional differences. It strove to cultivate the sentiment that each for all and all for each represented the highest practical field for human activity. It thus cut directly across the order cult of individualism, just as it did across the old political lines. For with co-operation as with municipal ownership and operation of public services, the dividing line is not that of party affiliations. For altho it is

The Toronto World true generally that private monopol look for more support from the Br look for more support from the British Conservative party than from the Liberal, it is also undeniable that cooperation and public ownership are as much sustained in Conservative as in Liberal communities.

Why not, indeed, when these have fundamentally nothing to do with party politics in their wider field? As The London Morning Post recently remarked editorially, "The co-operative movement has no politics; it is open to will pay for The Daily World for one year, delivered in the City of Toronto, or by mail to any address in Canada. Great Britain or the United States. tion are concerned in the movement Yet, notwithstanding this extraordin ary expansion, it has still to be show that even the private interests that opposed the movement have been the sufferers. Displacement to some extent there has been, but it has been more than compensated by the general uplift that has followed and the consequent larger amount available for other purposes than the mere sustainment of physical life.

SUPERANNUATION.

It was very evident from the proeedings in the board of education on Thursday evening that the attempt to reinstate the principal of the Jarvis Street Collegiate Institute was illjudged. So far as the public is conallowed to stay settled. If any ex-sive European possessions of the Sulinvidious age distinction against Miss not too strict for Toronto, which is islands in the Aegean, now rather notoriously overridden by old-men-of-the-sea. Nothing is worse for the teaching staff than to feel that promotion is indefinitely blocked by avarislavery, praying for freedom. It was argued by northern members that merely to receive the petitions would commit congress to nothing; but the sale management of siave-holders knew better. This siave-holders knew better. This promise to hear a sultor involves the obligation to consider his claim and pass upon it justly. Mr. Asquith, with his trained legal mind and innate conservatism, realized that more was involved in the demand of the women for a hearing than the general public appreciated.

It is a weakness of the lawyer in politics to be unduly influenced by precedent, and to shrink from any precedent, and to shrink the second rank to feel that their temptation would be strong for that country to join in th in the hydro-electric policy development. When he speaks on Tuesday next in Massey Hall it will probably be not so much a merely political utterance that may be expected as a plain statement of facts. That these facts are open to a political color from the apathy of the Liberal party in the past need not be too unduly pressed on young Liberals, who are as eager supporters of Mr. Beck as any Conservative voter could be. It will be ungracious to attribute the determination not to oppose Mr. Beck in London merely to a feeling of party weakness. It seems to be a genuine tribute to a man the whole province delights to honor. We all the more gladly recognize this non-partisan atbeen made in Toronto to give a political turn to hydro-electric affairs. And we the more readily join in the recognition of Mr. Beck's great services since we have had occasion to differ with the policy of the Ontario Commission in dealing with local matters. The latest announcement of the work of the Hydro Commission is the splendid piece of development which is being undertaken at Eugenia Falls for the supply of power to the municipalities of Owen Sound, Markdale. Durham, Flesherton, Chatsworth, Meaford, Thornbury, Walkerton, Hanover, Chesley and Mount Forest. The ultimate development will reach eight thousand horsepower, and the conditions are of such an economical character that the cost of power will be notably low.
