

other State departments, and ending with the sums paid in each for education.

Having learnt how the public money is distributed in both cases, we should next like to know from what sources it is raised, i. e. what portion from the labouring-class, such as by taxes on malt, spirits, tobacco, tea, and sugar, and what from the upper. And when we have gone through this, we shall be the better able to judge which of the two Governments pursues as its end the common weal, and which the interests of a few favoured families.

Or is reasoning only to be applied when it makes against the people? Turn it against the privileged class, and then, in the language of the court-jester—

“Reason, philosophy,
Fiddle-de, diddle-dee.”

It is even a kind of wickedness to do so. “The age of economists and calculators has succeeded, and the glory of Europe is extinguished for ever.”

Upon the whole, the author has given a work full of valuable information to those who are interested in the subject of America.

THE END.