With the Workers for Woman's Suffrage.

At the recent convention held in Oakland, the California Woman Shifrage Association attained the honor of adding to its list of honorary presidents the name of Mr. David Starr Jordan. It is characteristic of Dr. Jordan that he does not hesitate to identify himself with any cause the justice of which is apparent to him. The active workers in the cause of woman suffrage have had many noble names represented in their ranks, men and women who turned aside often from their other interests and work to help with word and pen this, at one time, unpopular reform. As in the case of Dr. Jordan, the greatest of these men have believed not only in the justice of woman suffrage, but in its expediency. Dr. Jordan is not afraid of the added responsibility of the suffrage for woman, as he said at a previous convention, for he believes that any dignified responsibility is a help to every life.

Realizing that preparation for the franchise is necessary, the suffragists are making a part of their work the are making a part of their work the study of economics and other public questions. At the convention the other day among the resolutions adopted were those in favor of the initiative and referendum, the doing away with child labor, the improvement of the public educational system by the addition of industrial training, the raising of a girl's legal majority from the age of 18 to 21, the protection of womanhood from the white slave traffic, and the substitution of arbitration for war. An interesting feature of the convention program was the debate for and against woman suffrage by four young men of the University. against woman suffrage by four young men of the University of California. Morris Harrison and Jesse Robinson were on the negative side, and Eustace men of the University of California. Morris Harrison and Jesse Robinson were on the negative side, and Eustace Peixotto and Sayre McNeil on the affirmative.

California suffragists are being strengthened in their work by presence of Mrs. Maud Wood Parks of Massachusetts, who has been prominent in the College Woman's Equal Suffrage League of the east. Mrs. Parks is of charming personality, and thoroly earnest in her belief that college women because of their great opportunities and training, should become actively interested in the suffrage reform. But it is plainly seen and emphasized by all suffragists that the women who should be reached and interested above all other women are the working women. They of all classes need the ballot the most, and can accomplish great good with it.

Paris Pattern No. 2119.

A charming evening gown in reseda taffetas is here portrayed. The fulness is plaited into the waist-line, and forms box-plait in the front. The three plaits on each shoulder and the wide mikado sleeve give breadth to the shoulders, which is a feature of this year's styles. The short puff sleeve is gathered into a tight band of applique lace in deep cream color, and bands of the same lace trim the square neck and mikado sleeves. A pretty finish would be a band of this applique lace around the foot of the skirt. The pattern is in six sizes—32 to 42 inches, bust measure. For 36 inch bust the dress requires 71-4 yards of 36 inch material in sweep length, with 51-4 yards of applique banding and 11-8 yards of edging.

This movement has become a wordwide one. The International Suffrage Alliance now publishes a paper called Jus Sufragil, by which the workers in the different countries may notify one another of progress made. It is published in Rotterdam, the editor being Martina G. Kramers. Martina G. Kramers.

Alice Stone Blackwell, in The Woman's Journal of Sept. 28, gives the following interesting information:
That one of the first measures introregular teaching of household eco ics to girls, at the expense of the state.
In Idaho, soon after women were given the ballot, they secured a law providing for a department of domestic science in the State University, and for a course for England this week by the Lusithe State University, and for a course of lectures on domestic science in the Academy of Idaho. In Colorado, Mrs. Helen L. Grenfell, who served three terms as state superintendent of public instruction, points out that the granting of the ballot to women was quickly followed by the addition of manual training departments to the schools. Mrs. Grenfell writes: 'Instead of thinking less of their homes, women began to consider them more carefully, and sought to bring into these close corpora-

He is managing transcontinental tour of that wellknown dramatic reader, Miss Edna Sutherland, who will appear at the Russell Theatre, Ottawa, on Oct. 30, under the distinguished patronage of their excellencies, Lord and Lady Grey, members of the government, Bishop Hamilton and other prominent people. Miss Sutherland, who has been living in the west for some time, is on the faculty of Manitoba College, and has played no inconsiderable part in raising her art to the high position it now holds in that part of the world. Dr. Kilpatrick wrote of her that "she is a deeply sympathetic interpreter of those masterpieces of literature which she reproduces with rare charm of voice and manner." Mr. Beaufort's name is not unknown to certain Torontonians, he having played the leading male role in "The Release of Allan Danvers," the play which won the governor-general's trophy, of which he was part author. Miss Edna Sutherland will be heard in Toronto the first week in November.
