hath 31 days.

I HAVE observed that those females who have abstained from alcoholic drinks during the period of pregnancy, have usually enjoyed an immunity from many of the most distressing symptoms incident to this period. My experience has convinced me that a large proportion of the disorders incidental to childhood may be obviated, or considerably mitigated, by the non-alcoholic diet of parents; and of these I may mention some species of eruptions, and glandular affections, and more especially those 'convulsions' which are so frequent in infancy.—Dr. Beaumont.
