THE RIGHT KIND OF EDUCATION. Education is falling so signally to meet the needs of rapidly advancing civilization because it is not calling forth the best powers of the boys and girls. It is not getting at these powers because it is not appealing to the real interests of the children; and it is not appealing to these interests because it is not taking the children whole; it is trying to educate pieces of children. Under an educational regime that should do no violence either to the nature of children or the nature of nature, I am convinced that much of the latent curiosity, lively imagination, automatic attention and spontaneous acquisition characteristic of early childhood could and would be carried up into the later inevitable strenuousness and anxiety of advanced scholarship and "sufficient" life. Emerson somewhere exclaims, "The earlier generations saw God face to face; we through their eyes. Why should we not also enjoy an original relation to nature?" The kernel of the educational problem, at least as regards nature, is here in only "earlier generations," but our own children enjoy "an original relation to nature." That they ever lose that relation is largely chargeable to defective education. Professor Wm. E. Ritter in "The Popular Science Monthly."

As a matter of fact a lot of people have no use for you because they can't use you.

BIG NETWORK OF HIGHWAYS IS PLANNED.

Including Roads in Canada as well as The United States

ABOUT 15,000 MILES

From Atlantic to Pacific, From Vancouver to Mexico, and From Montreal to Florida—Would be Great Thing for Automobile Tours

(Johnson City, Tennessee Paper)

Illustrating the tremendous impetus that lately has been given to the nation-wide movement for improved public highways, the United States office of public roads has just prepared a chart which shows that nearly 15,000 miles of transcontinental, interstate and trunk line roads are contemplated by various sections of the country. The chart prepared by the office of public roads shows the extent to which the good roads movement has taken hold of every part of the United States, North, south, east and west, the improved roads, some merely planned, others actually under construction, literally make a network covering the whole country.

If all the plans contemplated are carried out by the men and committees back of them, it will be possible to drive wagons and automobiles from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and from Vancouver, British Columbia, to Tijuana, Mexico, and from Montreal, Canada, to Miami
