POOR DOCUMENT

Cough-Cures

Are abundant; but the one best known for its extraordinary anodyne and expectorant qualities is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For nearly half a century this preparation has been in greater demand than any other remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, and pulmonary complaints in general.

"I suffered for more than eight months from a severe cough accompanied with hemorrhage of the lungs and the expectoration of matter. The physicians gave me up, but my druggist prevailed on me to try

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

I did so, and soon began to improve; my lungs healed, the cough ceased, and I became stouter and healthier than I have ever been before. I would suggest that the name of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral be changed to Elixir of Life, for it certainly saved my life."—F. J. Olliden, Salto, Buenos Ayres.

"A few years ago I took a very bad cold, which settled on my lungs. I had night sweats, a racking cough, and great soreness. My doctor's medicine did me no good. I tried many remedies, but received no benefit; everybody despaired of my recovery. I was advised to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, as a last resort, did so. From the first dose I obtained relief, and, after using two bottles of it, was completely restored to health."—F. Adams, New Gretna, N. J.

OUR PUBLIC DEBT.

We referred the other day to the debt of Canada, which is now in process of being reduced by the surplus which the finance minister is annually able to show, but which necessarily must remain at a high figure for some time to come. We then expressed the belief that the statement of the finance minister that it was the policy of the government to reduce the debt, or at all events not to let it exceed its present figure, would be carried out. This is a course which is required in the interests of the Dominion and which is also proper at the present time, because the objects for which Canada has to a large extent, incurred its indebtedness are for the most part satisfied. The debt of Canada is not like the debt the United States struggled under some years ago, the result of a dreadful war, which sacrificed the lives of hundreds of human beings and destroyed an incalculable amount of property. The debt of Canada was incurred for works in the public interest, which although they may not all be immediately productive, are of great importance, and which in time inure to the benefit of the whole country. We have built with our expenditures the Intercolonial railway, which cements the Maritime Provinces with the original provinces of Canada. We have constructed the Canadian Pacific railway, which opens up a vast area of new territory in the Northwest and makes a highway through Canadian territory to the Pacific. We have enlarged and deepened the canals and made them more fit for that large traffic which now comes to them. We have subsidized numerous railways, which are developing the resources of the country in every direction and promoting its business. These are the objects for which the debt of Canada has been incurred, and no one can say that it has been wastefully expended. We believe that no money could have been better invested than the indebtedness of Canada. At the same time it is proper that a halt should be called now, and that no further indebtedness should be incurred, unless some absolute necessity should arise for it. The population of Canada will soon be increasing so rapidly that our public debt will not be a burthen upon us, and indeed it is not now. If allowed to remain at its present figure it will soon be regarded as an insignificant item and will be wiped out without difficulty when the bonds are due which represent it. The minister of finance is to be commended for his wise and statesman like declaration in regard to this matter and we trust that no circumstance will occur to prevent his pledge in regard to the public debt from being carried out.

THE BEHRING SEA TROUBLE.

The Brooklyn Eagle, which is the representative of the best quality of democracy in the United States, demands that the Behring Sea difficulty shall be settled by arbitration. This is a demand which is as sensible as it is just, for of what value is one civilization or one Christianity, if at this stage of the world a question which is simply a question of law cannot be settled without resort to arms. The principles of law which are established in regard to international questions are as clear in their operation as the principles which regulate the rights of individuals, and there is no reason whatever why these laws should not be applied by an arbitrator who desires to do justice to both parties. Nor can there be any good reason why Mr. Blaine and Lord Salisbury cannot find a basis upon which to found an arbitration. The questions are not of such intricacy, or for that matter, of such great moment that they demand more than an ordinary degree of skill to arrange for their proper settlement. The whole question is whether Behring Sea is a mare clausum or whether it is a part of the Pacific ocean. To find out the status of Behring Sea it is only necessary to compare it with the seas of like magnitude which are considered to be a part of the ocean to which they properly belong. Behring Sea is a thousand miles in width. It is larger than the Gulf of Mexico, ten times as large as the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and in no respect answers the requirements which are necessary to make a sea the exclusive property of one nation. It would be a shame if the present negotiations in regard to this question should not result in an amicable settlement by arbitration. It will show that our boasted civilization and our boasted Christianity have no effect when the evil passions of men, lust of power and hunger for territory, come between. It would cause those who advocate Christian foreign missions to enquire whether better missionary work could not be done among the statesmen of countries which profess to be civilized, than among the unenlightened heathen.

THE LESSONS OF THE SNOW.

Woodsmen, and even the most careless observers, have remarked with what assiduity Nature employs herself in obliterating the scars which are left upon her face by the ravages of decay. Over the tree trunks that are enfeebled by age and the fences that have grown frail through the disentigrating effects of many changing seasons, she hastens to throw a mantle of many colored mosses and lichens which renders them beautiful so long as they retain a feature of their former selves. And when at length they fall prostrate she hastens to bury them deep in greenery and plants violets and adder tongues about them that find life in their death, and in which, with the mosses and lichens and grasses, they live again. Once there were those, and such there may be yet, though it seems as if the dreams of the young were no longer the dreams of many years ago, who saw in every woodland "hummock" a red man's grave, for those who walk the world are but a handful to the tribes that slumber in its bosom, and whose hearts went up in thankfulness that Nature should be so mindful of those whom by the world had been so long forgotten. In spring how alert are the grasses to come creeping along the gray water courses and the brown and verdureless hills, the leaves to swell on the branches that seemed shrunken and dead and the birds to return to their deserted haunts. Though men talk of untoward and backward Springs, for a hundred years such a mishap has never been known. The season comes with the regularity of clock-work, with unvarying promise and unvarying fulfillment. And as Spring goes Summer comes, followed by the season of garnered fruits and grains, and then Nature spreads over the gray landscape her coverlidof snow just as over the fallen tree, the riven rock or the dismantled homestead she bids the grass go creeping and the mosses to spring up in miniature forests. Thus it is seen that while Nature is ever active in hiding her scars, in repairing the ravages of unfriendly elements or forces, she revivifies the dead and has no occasion for the use of new material. No less beautiful in painting, in poetry, in the cultivated eye, is the season of snow than the season of green leaves. And no less necessary is it for the furtherance of those processes by which the youth of the world is annually renewed. In the budding, blooming, fruitage, repose and death of the tenants of the woods and fields and from the fall of the snow the moralist might find many a lesson.

Provincial Points.

T. Carleton Allen was re-elected mayor of Fredericton Saturday by acclamation.

A year old child named Legg was scalded to death in Halifax last Friday by tipping a pot of boiling water from the kettle over itself.

A company is being formed to run a steamship line between Annapolis, Digby and Boston. Stock is being offered for sale in Yarmouth.

Parrsboro holds second place in Nova Scotia in the shipment of deals to the United Kingdom, and third in the quantity of tonnage constructed in 1890.

Westmorland in the past two years has collected from Scott Act fines $2,285, and expended $2,479,22, leaving a deficit of $193.98. The pay of Inspector has been reduced from $2000 to $5.

The death is announced of Mrs. Wallace, wife of John Wallace, collector of customs at Hillsboro, and for many years the representative of Albert county in the dominion commons. Mrs. Wallace was well known in St. John and was very highly esteemed.

Hon. W. Richards, of Bideford, P. E. I., director of the P. E. I. Steam Navigation Co., when in England contracted at Burrow-on-Furness, for the building of a new steel propellor steamship to go on the route between the mainland and Island next spring.

On Friday last the Lunenburg & Halifax S. P. Co's. new steamer was launched at Mahone Bay, from the yard of Titus Langille. She is called the Luneburg. The rest of her woodwork will be completed during the next five or six weeks, after which she will be towed to Halifax to receive her machinery.

The total shipments of plaster from Windsor last year amounted to 147,685 tons – the highest point reached by the trade in ten years. The smallest year's work was in 1885, when it sunk to 82,637 tons. Last year's business exceeded that of '89 by 2,327 tons. With the exception of four cargoes, the Windsor shipments were made by Mr. E. W. Dimock.

Tuesday of last week Mr. Isaiah Hachey drove his son from Dumfries to Bathurst station, a distance of eight or nine miles, and in returning called at the residence of his eldest son, within a mile and a half of his own house, where he warmed himself and started, apparently in good health. Towards evening the horse, which had returned home, was noticed, but his master was invisible. A search was made and the poor man was found lying in his carriage, dead. He was 70 years old and the father of a numerous family. He died of heart disease.—Chatham World.

Being upon an exploring expedition today amongst my old folks' papers I met the 'Acadian Recorder' of 1816 with D. Doran upon it. As he was my mother's father, I may be placed amongst your old friends. In it there is an account of an intercepted letter from Old Bony to Paris, and an account of his being fired at by the sentinel for exceeding his limits. The soldier was tried by court martial and acquitted, for being a man obeying orders. I also found:

AN OLD SUPERSTITUTION.

Do Clocks Stop When People Die, or People Die When Clocks Stop.

The sentimental and superstitutions who are given to tracing the laws of coincidences will find an interesting subject for their attention in the recent death of a jeweller in Bucyrus, O. For many years it has been the office of a skilful German watchman, named Frank Kehrer, to attend to the town clock. During the past few months the health of Mr. Kehrer has been poor and the clock, deprived of his careful attention, has been keeping indifferent time. One Monday morning recently the time-piece struck 5, and a few moments later it stopped. Early risers who heard the chime affirm that there was something indescribably weird and peculiar about it. Later risers noticing the clock hands pointing to 5.05, commented upon the subject and its aged guardian. Later in the day the news spread that Mr. Kehrer's condition had suddenly become worse and that he had died at 5.05 that morning.

When the late State Senator B. J. Smith, of Hanoock County, W. Va., passed away, his family looked at his watch to see the time. The hands pointed to 12.02. When S. G. Smith, son of the late Senator, began housekeeping in Wheeling, his father gave him a family clock which he had always attended to himself. After the funeral Mr. Smith returned to Wheeling. As soon as he saw the clock Mr. Smith turned to his mother and sister and asked them if anything in the room had attracted their attention. "The clock," said the sister, and the mother nodded assent. The clock had stopped at 12.02.

What Makes a Man Old.

To himself a man is as old as he feels; to others as old as he looks. There is nothing strikingly new in this observation, but it applied well in an amusing case the other day. On a train that was coming into Boston there were two gentlemen, sitting in contiguous seats. One of them was gray and bent. As the train approached the station the white-haired man rose, took up his overcoat, and glanced nervously around. Then he said: "Young man, I will be much obliged if you will help me on with my overcoat."

The other rose quickly and gave him the assistance that was ask for.

"There—ow! I'm a little stiff. Thank you," said the old man. "You are kind. Some time you may be old yourself, and then you will be glad of a young man's assistance."

The other laughed. "Perhaps, sir," he said, "you wouldn't object to telling me how old you are?"

"I? Oh, no!" said the old man. "I'm 63 years old—almost 64," he said with a sigh.

"Indeed?" said the "young man," and now I'll tell you how old I am. I shall be 71 years old my next birthday."

It was his actual age, but the first man flatly refused to believe it, and went off with an air as if he thought the other was trying to play a rather bad joke.

Water Colder Than Lover.

Miss Jessie Gilmore, a handsome young society lady of Augusta, Kan., having a misunderstanding with her betrothed, wrote farewell letters to all her friends in town and her lover in Burton, mailed them and started for Walnut River to jump in and put an end to her misery. She carefully prepared herself for the fatal plunge, but first tested the water, and finding it too cold, her nerve failed, and she shiveringly readjusted her attire and sadly returned to her home. The letters had been read during her absence and a search party organized to recover the body. She seems much crestfallen.

A Sensible Man.

He—You remember you said last night that you would be a sister to me all my life?

She—Yes, I did.

He—Well, I proposed to your sister Kate this afternoon and, judging from what she said I rather think you will.

The Amateur Farmer.

Johnson—The dealers have put up the price of milk. It's terrible to think that people have to pay eight cents a quart for it.

Moneybags (who has a hobby for amateur farming)—Humph! Mine costs me about $2 a quart.

Good News.

Mrs. Slowpay—Here's a letter from Dunham, the tailor, Henry, about that money. He says it's the last time he will write for it.

Slowpay—I'm glad to hear that. I'm sure he's annoyed me about it quite enough.—Light.

Here is a delicious almond sweetmeat. Blanch one-half pound sweet almonds and pound them with one-half pound lump sugar. The sugar must first have been rubbed upon the rind of a lemon. Add a glass of sherry, one-fourth pound butter and the yolks of four eggs. Mix to a stiff paste, roll out and cut into stars with a cake cutter. Bake in a quick oven, dip for a minute into boiling sugar and let them drain till cool. They will keep for months, and are of the ever-ready sort to be brought out as an accompaniment to the glass of wine that etiquette permits one to offer to the cherished guest.

Purify The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, the water we drink. There is nothing exclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

Who have used the various Emulsions of Cod Liver Oil, with which the market is flooded, and after prescribing ESTEY'S COD LIVER OIL CREAM, unhesitatingly pronounce it the finest preparation of the kind they ever used. Being made with Glycerine instead of sugar or other Saccharine matter in any form, renders it far less liable to fermentative changes in the stomach, and prevents and overcomes the flatulency and eructation so often occasioned by the plain Cod Liver Oil.

FROM DR. J. F. BRINE, RICHIBUCTO, N. B.

I have prescribed your Cod Liver Oil Cream extensively during the past three years and am prepared to state that no other preparation of the kind has met with equal acceptance at the hands of my patients. It is easily taken and pleasing to the stomach. Children like it, and it does not decompose in warm weather, a most important desideratum."

Price, 50 cts. Six Bottles, $2.50. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Prepared only by E. M. ESTEY, Manufacturing Pharmacist, Moncton, N. B.

NO WEAR AND TARE. It will be of advantage to know that clothes are not worn out by sending to a laundry; there is no rubbing to wear out, no scalding to rot out; but it is done by a process that takes all the dirt out without injury to the clothes. UNGAR does the rough dry business, that is, he washes your heavy pieces rough dry for 25cts per doz.; returns them to your own door when done.

OATS. OATS.

Our faith in high prices led us to purchase very largely early in the season. Our stock is now coming forward rapidly, and can offer dealers at lowest prices, with the advantage of having a large number of cars to select from. We predict sixty cents per bushel later and would advise our friends to put away all they require for winter and spring,
