CARVING UP NOVA SCOTIA.

OTTAWA, May 17.—Details of the government's redistribution proposals are gradually getting out. It is now known that the plan originally suggested for cutting down by two the representation of Nova Scotia has been partially abandoned. The old conservative county of Pictou is to lose one member, but instead of uniting Victoria and Richmond, the county of Cape Breton, which returns two members, is to be divided into two ridings, with one member each, north and south of Sydney harbor. The county of Richmond to be added to South Cape Breton.

ST. JOHN STAR.

THE ST. JOHN STAR is published by THE SUN PRINTING COMPANY (LTD.), at St. John, New Brunswick, every afternoon (except Sunday) at $2.00 a year.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MAY 18, 1903.

LOYALIST DAY.

This is the day we honor in memory of the Loyalist founders of St. John. It may be assumed that a very large number of citizens have spent a portion of the day in meditation in the Old Burial Ground. The loving care bestowed upon that sacred spot by the present city fathers attests more loudly than words how deeply the citizens are impressed by a sense of the debt we owe to the Loyalists. That there are sermons in stones is very apparent to anyone who goes through the Old Burial Ground. It is well to have a holiday in the schools today, but the board of trustees should go a little farther. They should insist that all the pupils visit the Old Burial Ground at some time during the day, and sit around on the broken monuments, or the dried up fountain, or the half dead grass, and listen to orations on the subjects of patriotic fervor, filial affection and civic pride.

THE LIBRARY.

The Star has been subjected to some criticism because of the views it has expressed with reference to the Carnegie library and the attitude of those citizens who wish to reject the millionaire's offer. This journal, however, still believes that Mr. Carnegie's remarks about Canada do not call for the repudiation of an agreement after it has gone the length of preparing plans and calling for tenders to construct the library building. Mr. Carnegie has referred slightly to Canada, and betrayed an ignorance that is rather surprising, but in view of the tempest aroused he is probably sorry for having spoken. He has intimated as much in his cable to the mayor of Sydney, and also took pains to say that his dream is the ultimate re-union of the Anglo-Saxon race. That is not a dream to be despised, however impracticable it may appear to Canadians. We may reasonably agree to let him have his dream, and hold what views he pleases on the general subject of international relations, and at the same time we may go on with the construction of the library building without any sacrifice either of independence or self-respect.

Andrew Carnegie made up his mind to spend millions of dollars on public libraries. He might have decided to spend it in promoting enmity between nations or in aiding capital to fight labor. He might have put it to any other use. It was his, to do with as he chose. The plan which he adopted was one which unquestionably confers benefit on communities, and it is a simple distortion of the facts to say that any city entering into an agreement with him appears in the role of a mendicant. His recent remarks do not alter the conditions at all. His personal opinions regarding the future of the Anglo-Saxon race or any branch of it, have no relation whatever to the founding of libraries. The best way for Canada to prove to Carnegie that she is a greater nation than he thinks will be to avoid going into hysterics over foolish remarks that may be made by himself or other persons concerning her. So far as St. John is concerned, there has long been a great need of a proper home for the public library. Such a home is now available, and there is no valid reason for undoing what has been done.

If Andrew Carnegie betrays some prejudice this city ought not to follow his example to the extent of making itself ridiculous in the eyes of other communities and the world at large. We might be able to lash ourselves into a fever of indignation, and even believe it justified; but later generations would probably conclude that we had lost a very promising opportunity to confer upon ourselves and them a great and lasting benefit.

THE RUSH OF IMMIGRANTS.

Americans are still pouring into the Northwest. The Winnipeg Telegram says:—
The latest report received at immigration headquarters at Winnipeg for the Regina district, shows that 295 homesteads were taken up in one week in April. This represents the settlement of 70 souls, of various nationalities and occupations, but with the American experienced farmer predominating. From Minnesota over forty farmers came during that week to this district, and besides taking up a homestead it is customary with them to purchase a quarter section of land adjacent to their free grant. North Dakotans and Iowans are about as largely represented as Minnesota farmers. The report shows homesteaders to have located in the Regina district from the following other American states; Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, New York, Wyoming, Oklahoma, Kansas, Oregon, and Washington Territory.

About fifty of the remaining homestead seekers are from Ontario, and several from Quebec.

Hungary leads among the European nations, twenty having crossed the Atlantic to homestead in the Regina district during the week reported. Few English and Scotch were among the homesteaders, the majority of the Britishers preferring to hire out as farm hands in Canada for a few months in order to gain an acquaintance with American agricultural methods.

An English syndicate has bought 10,000 acres of land in the Battledoff district, just west of the Barr Colony.

There were at Fort William the first of last week enough vessels to carry 1,500,000 bushels of grain away from the elevators.

RUSSIAN AND JEWS.

There is a Hatred Towards the Whole Race and Soldiers Sympathize With Mob.

ODESSA, Russia, May 14.—Advice from Kishineff tell of a state of terror. The streets are filled with wounded Jews and the massacre has by no means ceased although its open prosecution by men who cried for the blood of Jews, has been checked by the soldiers, unwilling enough, for they too, would have joined the rioters had they dared. The hospital vans are slowly gathering the wounded for removal to Odessa, but each day fresh victims are found, who are attacked during the hours of darkness, when even the presence of the soldiers did not serve to prevent new outrages.

It is now said that the outbreak was originally caused by a rumor from Dubossari that a Christian child had been slain by a Jew. There is not, however, a scintilla of proof that such a child was slain by a Jew. The real underlying cause of the massacre is undoubtedly the hatred felt toward the whole Jewish race, in connection with the Russian revolution.

For the extent of the outrageous cruelties practised and fiendish torments heaped on the hapless people, the inactivity of the soldiers is largely responsible. Before the soldiers, Jews were struck down in the street, tortured and slain. Jews who fled to tram cars and sought refuge there, were not permitted to get out until they were again driven to death. Children were stoned to death or had their necks broken with halters. Some children were swung by the feet, and their brains dashed out on the pavement. One young Jewess was found with two nails driven through her temples. A man had his tongue torn out and lips cut off, while other victims were literally stamped into shapeless masses.

CHINESE AID JEWS.

(New York Times.)
Most people will be sensitive to the paths of the movement in the Chinese quarter to raise money for the oppressed Jews of Russia. The bond of sympathy in the circumstances of the two races is obvious enough. They have had in too many instances like treatment. Massacres are fortunately far less frequent in the United States than in Russia, but they have occurred and they are different from the holocausts of them, to our great disgrace. Nor is the ground of animosity among the lower classes—lower in intelligence and humanity—of Americans toward the Jews, any different from the basis of the Russian peasants' hatred of the Jews. In the one case as in the other race prejudice and difference of religion are pleaded as explanations; but in both cases it is largely jealousy of the Jewish industry that drives them to work harder, live on less, and lay up money where natives will not, accounts for more of the spite and cruelty shown toward both races than is generally admitted.

DR. GEO. R. PARKIN.

Loudly Cheered at Colonial Institute Last Week.

Major Harold Parsons, chief ordnance officer at Natal, read a paper before the Royal Colonial Institute recently, in which he held that the colonies should not expect to share the sea power of Great Britain until they were willing to assume industry at their own cost.

Sir John Colomb, who followed, discussed the paper and argued strongly in favor of the Mother Country and the colonies combining for Imperial defence.

Dr. Parkin, of Toronto, was given a great reception. He spoke for twenty minutes beyond the usual ten minutes allotted each speaker, and was asked, amid cheers, to continue his address.

He was strongly in favor of the colonies contributing towards the cost of naval defence. His remarks were chiefly confined, however, to a comparison of the United States and the British Empire. In the former each state had its own government at Washington. A similar arrangement was suggested for the colonies and the mother land.
