the joining of St. John county and Albert would make a numerically fairer division and he understood the counties of St. John and Albert were much more closely joined in a business way than the counties of Kings and Albert. However, he understood the position of the people of St. John in voting for two representatives as the were doing at present and that consideration had might with him. He had not looked into the matter as deeply as he should like before taking final action.

The committee before adjourning completed the Northwest Territories. There are ten constituencies divided on lines already mentioned in this correspondence. The constituencies are Alberta, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatchewan, Humboldt, Mackenzie, Assiniboia East, Assiniboia West and Qu'Appelle and Strathcona. The only provinces that remain are: Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba.
