en the words:

[161]

“ straits as would give the Lands spoken of a sort of na-
“ nity or relation to Hudson's Straights, and not to lands “ commencing at the distance of 900 miles, and extending “ 2000 miles therefrom—that is to say, of the Coasts and “ Confines of the Seas, &c. within the Straights ; such a “ boundary must be implied as is consistent with that view,
“ and with the professed objects of a trading Company, in“ tending not to found Kingdoms and establish States, but to “ carry on fisheries in those waters, and to traffic for the “ acquisition of Furs and Pelties, and the other articles “ mentioned in the Charter: The enormous extension of “ Land and Territory now claimed, appears therefore to us “ not to be warranted by any sound construction of the “ Charter.

“ Indeed there is sufficient reason to suppose that the “ Territories in question or part of them, had been then vi“ sited, traded in, and in a certain degree occupied by the “ French Traders from Canada, and their Beaver Company
“ erected in 1630, whose trade in Pelties were considera“ bly prior to the date of the Charter of the Hudson's Bay “ Company. These Territories therefore would be excepted “ out of the Grant ; and the Right of British Subjects in “ general, to visit and trade in those Regions would follow
“ the national rights acquired by the King, by the Conquest
“ and Cession of Canada, as enjoyed by the French Cana“ dians, previous to that Conquest and Cession.”
