

It is no doubt an even greater source of pride that the love of freedom and the broad tolerance, which are characteristic of Winnipeg, reflect the spirit of the Board of Trade.

It is well to view events in the perspective of years. While the times are still difficult, we may gain fresh courage by comparing the Winnipeg of sixty years ago with the Winnipeg of today. On this significant occasion, all Canada will wish for the Board of Trade, in its contributions to civic well-being and national development, a sphere of usefulness, ever broadening, and long continuing.
