

but was not too sure of Mr. Thomas's address, but may have a chance of 'phoning or seeing you at some other time in the near future. Though I do not ring or write very often, I would like you both to remember that you are always much in my thoughts.

Please let me know how the supply of vitamins is holding out; also I should be glad to hear, at any time, how you are both getting on in your little home, and what the prospects are like for the New Year.

I hope it will bring to you both much in the way of added strength and happiness.

I would not be surprised to hear that you had rung up your Mother at this Christmas Season. If not, you will be sure to have written her and to have heard from her at some length. I think perhaps she was wise in not trying to come East this Winter but to wait for the Summer months, when it will be so much pleasure to share out of door enjoyments together.

I received from her a book which I was indeed delighted to have. It is entitled "Human Destiny" - a book that I have heard much about, and which I am much looking forward to reading as opportunity from time to time may present itself.
