There were two charges against abbe, one of having sold whiskey to Fat John on December 17th and one of having sold whiskey to Billie on January 1st. To both charges he pleaded not guilty and asked that the cases be enlarged until Friday to enable him to prepare for trial. The request was granted and Labbe was released on $1000 bail.

The next case was that of Maggie Cookson a young white woman who was charged with having assaulted Samuel Cropper, a full-blood negro. Maggie looked like 30 cents and in a porcuuine husky tone of voice pleaded guilty. Samuel informed the court that he had loaned Maggie a $35 pin and she had refused to return it when he asked for it; instead "she welt me on de head wid a dus' pan."

Maggie admitted having had samuel's pin but said it was lost. JOHN L. LABBE ARRESTED She was given an option on paying $1 and the court costs, total $6, or of performing hard labor for two days, boarding and room at the jail in the meantime. The court also instructed her to return Samuel's pin but she declared it was lost. She paid her fine in legal tender.
