CHANGE OF RESIDENCE

A Sermon by Dr. Talmage on Springtime Moving.

ITS VEXATIONS AND WORRIES.

-The Joy of Moving Into the Father's at this time of year, when many people are moving from house to house, and it teaches lessons of patience and equipoise in very trying circumstances; text, Philippians iv, 12, "I know both how to be abashed, and I know how to abound."

Happy Paul! Could you really accommodate yourself' to all circumstances in life? Could you go up without pride, and could you com down without exasperation? Teach the same lesson to us all.

We are at a season of the when vast populations in all our cities are changing residence. Having been born in a house, we do not have full appreciation of what a house is. It is the growth of thousands of years. The human race first lived in clefts of rocks, the beasts of the field moving out of the caverns to let the human race move in. shepherds and the robbers still live in caverns of the earth. The troglodytes are a race which to this day prefer the caverns to a house. They are warm, they are large, they are very comfortable, they are less subject to violent changes of heat and cold. We come on along down in the history of the race, and we come to the lodge, which was a home built out of twisted tree branches. We come further on down in the history of the race, and we come to the tent, which was a home built with a round hole in the center and skins of animals reaching out in all directions, mats on the floor for the people to sit on.

Time passed on, and the world, after much invention, came to build a house, which was a space surrounded by broad stones, against which the earth was heaped from the outside. The roof was made of chalk and gypsum and coals and stones and ashes pounded together. After awhile the porch was born, after awhile the Then hundreds of years passed on, and in the fourteenth century the modern chimney was constructed, The old Hebrews had openinge in houses from which the smoke might escape if it preferred, but there was no inducement offered for it to leave until the modern chimney. Wooden keys opened the door, or the keyhole was large enough to allow the finger to be inserted for the lifting of the latch or the sliding of it. There being no windows, the people dependent for light upon ticework, over which a thin veil was drawn down in time of winter to keep out the elements. Window glass was, so late as two or three hundred years ago, in England and Scotland so great a luxury that only the wealthiest could afford 1 hand mill and an oven and a few leathern bottles and some rude pitchers and plates made up the entire of the culinary departnt. But the home planted in the old cave or at the foot of a tent pole has grown and enlarged and spread abroad until we have the modern house, with its branches and roots and vast growth and height and depth of comfort and accom

Architecture in other days busies itself chiefly in planning and build-ing triumphal arches and basilicas and hippodromes and mausoleums and columns, while they allowed the people for residences to burrow like muskrats in the earth. St. Sophia's of Constantinople, St. Marks of Ven-ice, St. Peter's of Rome are only the Raphaeled walls against which lean the squalor and the pauperism of many nations. I rejoice that, while our modern architects give us grand capitols in which to legislate and grand courthouses in which to administer justice and grand churches in which to worship God, they also give much of their time to the planning of comfortable abodes for ou tired population.

Thank God for your home-no merely the house you live in now, but the house you were born in and the many houses you have resided in since you began your earthly residence. When you go home today, count over the number of those houses in which you have resided and you will be surprised. Once in awhile you find a man who lives in the house where he was born and where his father was born and his grandfather was born and his greatwas born, but that ot one out of a thousand cases. I have not been more perambulatory than most people, but I was amazed when I came to count up the number of residence I have occupied. The fact is there is in this world no such thing as permanent residence.

A day this spring the streets will be filled with the furniture carts and the drays and the trucks. It will be a hard day for horses, because they will be overloaded. It will be a hard day for laborers, for they will overlift before they get the family, furoverlift before they get the family, furniture from one house to another. It will be a hard day for housekeepers to see their furniture scratched, and their croekery broken, and thoir carpets misft, and their furniture dashed of the sudden showers. It will be u hard day for landlords. It will be a hard day for tenants. Especial grace is needed for moving day.
Many a man's religiou has suffered a fearful strain between the hour on the morning of the first of May, when he took his immature breakfast, and the hour at als. t when he rolled into his extemporized couch.

The grace that will be sufficient for the grace that will be sufficient for the first of January and the first of February and the first of March and the first of April will not be sufficient for the first of May. Say your prayers that morning if you find nothing better to kneel down by than a coal scuttle, and say your prayers at night, though your knee comes down on a paper of carpet tacks. You will want supernatural help if any of you move. Help in the morning to start out aright on the day's work. Help out aright on the day's work. Help at night to repent.

My first word ,then, in this part

Washington, April 29,—This discourse is to all those who course of Dr. Talmage is pertinent move out of small houses into larger ones. Now we will see whether, like the apostle, you know how to abound. Do not, because your new house has two more stories than the old one, add two stories to your vanity or make your brightly polished silver doorplate the coffin plate to your buried humility. Many persons moving into a larger house have come arrogant and supercilious. They swagger where once they walked they simper where once they laughed, they go about with an air which seems to say, "Let all smaller craft get out of these waters if they don't want to be run over by a regular Cunarder." I have snown people who were kind and amiable and Christian in their smaller houseooner did they go over the doorsill of the new house than they became a glorified nuisance. They were the terror of drygoods clerks and the amazement of ferryboats into which they swept, and if compelled to stand a moment with condemnatory glance turning all the people scated into criminals and convicts. began to hunt up the family coat of arms, and had lion couchant or unicorn rampant on the carriage door; if they had the appropriate when, coat of arms, it would have butter firkin or a shoe last or a plow or a trowel. Instead of being like all the rest of us, made out of dust, they would have you think that they were trickled out of heaven on a lump of loaf sugar. The first thing you know of them, the father will fail in business, and the daughter will run off with a French dancing master. A woman spoiled by a finer house is bad enough, but a man so upset is sickening. The lavendered fool goes around so dainty and so precise and so affected in the roll of his eyes or the whirl of his cane or the clicking of the ivo s handle against his front teeth or his effeminate langour, and his conversation so interlarded with "oh's" and "ah's" that he is to me a dose of ipecacnanha. Now, my friends, if you move into a larger house, thank God for more room—for more room to hang your pictures, for more room in which to gather your friends, for-more room in which to let your children romp and play, for more filled with room for great bookcases good reading or wealth of bric-a-brac. Have as large and as fine a house as you can afford to have, but do not sacrifice your humility and your common sense; do not lose your balance; do not be spoiled by your successes.

Years ago we were the guests in an English manor. The statuary, the ferneries, the botanical and horticultural genius of the place had done all they could do to make the place attractive. been an amassing of plate and costly surroundings. At half past 9 o'clock

> The ervants came in to prayers. proprietor of the estate read the Scriptures, gave out the hymn, his daughter at the organ started the music, and then, the music over, the proprietor of the estate kneeled down and commended all his guests, all his family, all his employes, to the Lord Almighty. God can trust such a man as that with a large estate. He knows how to abound. He trust-ed God, and God trusted him. And I could call off the roll of 50 merchant princes as mighty for God as they are mighty in worldly successes. Ah, my friends, do not be puffed up by any of the successes of this life, do not be spoiled by the number of liveried coachmen that may stop at your door or the sweep of the long trail across the imported tapestry. Many of those who come to your house are fawning parasites. They are not so much in love with you as they are in love with your house and your suc cesses. You move down next year to 320 Low Water Mark street and see in the morning the proprietor of the estate had the bell rung, and some 20 or 30 man-servants and maid-

how many of their carriages will halt at your door.
But I must have a word with those who in this Mayday time move out of larger residences into smaller. Sometimes the pathetic reason is that the family has dwindled in size and so much room is not required, so they move out into smaller apartments. I know there are such cases. Marriage has taken some of the members of the family, death has taken other members of the family, and after awhile father and mother wake up to find their family just the size it was when they started, and a large house, hence they move out of it. Moving day is a great sadness to such if they have the law of association dominant. There are the rooms named after the different members of the family. they would be lonesome and lost in bers of the family. I suppose it is so in all your households. It is so in mine. We name the rooms after the persons who occupy them. And then there is the dining hall where the festivities took place, the holiday festivities; there is the sitting room where the family met night after night, and there is the room sacred because there a life started or a ter night, and there is the room sacred because there a life started or a life stopped, the Alpha and the Omega of some earthly existence. Scenes of meeting and parting, of congratulation and heartbreak! Every doorknob, every fresco, every mantel, every threshold meaning more to you than it can ever mean to any one else! When moving out of a house,
I have always been in the habit, after everything was gone, of going into each room and bidding it a mute farewell. There will be tears will not be able to understand. It is will not be able to understand. It is a solemn and a touching and an overwhelming thing to leave places forever—places where we have struggled and toiled and wept and sung and prayed and anxiously watched and agonized. Oh, life is such a strange mixture of honey and of gall, weddings and burials, midnoon and midnight clashing! Every home a lighthouse against which the billows of many seas tumble! Thank God that such changes are not always going to continue; otherwise the nerves would give out and the brain would founder on a dementia like that of King Lear when his like that of King Lear when his daughter Cordelia came to medicine his domestic calamity.

But there are others who will move out of large residences into smaller through the reversal of fortune. The property must be sold or the bailing will sell it, or the income is less and will sell it, or the income is less and you cannot pay the house rent. First of all, such persons should understand that our happiness is not dependent on the size of the house we live in. I have known people enjoy a small heaven in two rooms and others suffer a pandemonium in 20. others suffer a pandemonium in 20.
There is as much happiness in a small house as in a large house.
There is as much satisfaction under the light of a tallow candle as under the glare of a chandelier, all the burners at full blaze. Who was the happier, John Bunyan in Bedford jail or Belshazzar in the saturnalia? Contentment is something you can nei-ther rent nor purchase. It is not extrinsic; it is intrinsic. Are there few-er rooms in the house to which you move? You will have less to take care of. Is it to be stove instead of furnace? All the doctors say the modern modes of warming buildings are unhealthy. Is it less pier mirrors? Less temptation to your van-ity. Is it old fashioned toilet in-stead of water pipes all through the Less to freeze and burst when you cannot get a plumber. Is it less carriage? More room for robust exercise. Is it less social position? Fewer people who want to drag you down by their jealousies. Is it less fortune to leave in your last will and testament? Less to spoil your children. Is it less money for marketing? Less temptation to ruin the health of your family with pineapples and indigestible salads. Is it a little deaf? Not hearing so many disagreeables.

I meet you this springtime at the door of your new home, and while I help you lift the clothesbasket over the banisters and the carman is getting red in the face in trying to transport that article of furniture to some new destination I congratulate you. You are going to have a better time this year, some of you, than you ever had. You take Gcd and the Christian religion in your home, and you will be grandly happy. God in the parlor—that will sanctify your sociabilities. God in the nursery that will protect your children. God in the dining hall—that will make the plainest meal an imperial ban-quet. God in the morning—that will launch the day brightly from the drydocks. God in the evening—that will sail the day sweetly into the harbor. And get joy, one and all of you, whether you move or do not move.
Get joy out of the thought that we are soon all going to have a grand moving day. Do you want a picture of the new house into which you will move? Here it is wrought with the of the new house into which you will is guaranteed to cure all troubles of the Thro t. Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1. Trial bottles free at A. I. Our Father is going to give it as a free gift. When are we going to move toto it? ing to move into it? We are moving now. On moving day heads of fam-ilies are very apt to stay in the old house until they have seen everything off. They send ahead the children, off. They send ahead the treasurer and the valuables. Then, after awhile, they will come themselves. On almost the first load, we, the children, were sent on ahead to the new house, and we arrived with shout and laughter, and in an hour we had ranged through every room in the house, the barn and the granary. Toward night, and perhaps in Toward night, and perhaps in the last wagon, father and mother would come, looking very tired, and we would come down to the foot of the lane to meet them and tell them of all the wonders we discovered in the new place, and then, the last wagon unloaded, the candles lighted, our neighbors who had helped us to move—for in those times neighbors helped each other—sat down with us at a table on which there was every luxury they could think of. Well, my dear Lord knows that some of us have been moving a good while. We have sent our chil-dren ahead, we have sent many of our valuables ahead, sent many treasures ahead. We cannot go yet. There is work for us to do, but after awhile it will be toward night, and we will be very tired, and then we will start for our new home, and those who have gone ahead of us they will see our approach, and they will come down the lane to meet us, and they will have much to tell us of what they have fliscovered in the "house of many mansions," and of how large the rooms are and of how bright the fountains. And then, the last load unloaded, the table will be spread and our celestial neighbors will come in to sit down with our reunited famin to sit down with our reunited families, and the chalices will be full, not with the wine that sweats in the wat of parthly intoxication, but with "the new wine of the kingdom." And there for the first time we will realize what fools we were on earth when we feared to die, since death has turned out only to be the moving from a smaller house into a larger one, and the exchange of a pauper's hut for a prince's castle, and the going upstairs from a miserable kitchen to a glorious parlor.
