BLEEDING LICENSE-HOLDERS.

The Times the other day denounced the methods of the local Tory party in squeezing money out of the liquor license holders of the city whenever those in charge of any Tory scheme needing money chose to make demands upon them. These demands have been frequent and rapacious, and the hotel men who found themselves obliged, under the lash, not only to contribute to election campaign funds, but to get out and work "to show themselves"—might make grimaces, but they knew better than to button up their pockets against the invitation to chip in whenever generosity was invoked in the name of the party. The senior local Tory organ now admits that there was occasion for our protest. It has, it says, investigated the matter, and it finds our statements true to the extent "that some gentlemen of the Conservative party, not in official position and possessed of more enthusiasm than good sense, have been in the habit of soliciting money contributions for picnics and other social affairs held under the auspices of the party, from hotel keepers." It admits that this lying on the license holders "is far from commendable," and says that rather than resort to that sort of thing the Tories "could better afford to miss the joys of picnic gatherings."

That is well enough as far as it goes; but do not let our contemporary seek to limit the existence of this evil to soliciting contributions for picnics. The scandal is much greater than that would hint at. If its "investigation" has discovered nothing more than that, it should take up the inquiry (if it really needs to inquire) again and pursue it further. It will find that the license-holders are regarded by the party workers as rich pay streaks which may be uncovered and drawn upon at any and all times of need; and that such times have not been few.

Our contemporary essays to lessen the force of the condemnation which its own confession brings to the machine, by saying that the men who have gone to levy tribute on the license-holders for the contributions of which it speaks were "not in official positions" in the party; that "the hotel keepers are extremely foolish to give up their good coin" in this manner, and that under Whitney rule, "as we understand the policy of the Conservative party in this city" (1), the liquor man "doesn't have to give in order to stand in, or if he does give he is just that much the greater a fool." Now this party taxation of the license-holders is more than the taking up of a collection to pay for picnic blow-outs; it is a regular system of organized extortion for party ends. It is not the less detestable because those "not in official positions" are sent to make the levies—is it to be supposed that the party would send Hon. John S. Hendrie or Sam Barker, M. P., or some of the lesser officials to extort the coin? No, no; the men who operate the machine are no such novices as to suggest that. Even the Spec. must have chuckled as it penned such a defence, or rather excuse. But the fellows sent to find the coin somehow get it. The license-holder may be "foolish," as the organ says, but he appreciates the circumstances, and the potent "reasoning" of the emissaries is generally convincing enough for the party's purpose. Of course, Whitney pledged the license-holders immunity from such rapacity, and promised them "a fair deal," and the Spectator pretends to think that they get it. The license-holders, however, have experience; they were not born yesterday, and they know that as they pay, so will to a great extent be their chances. And they grin and grimace and submit to the party extortion and rapacity practiced upon them. And those who profit by such practices ask the people to regard them as angelic purists!

RACING CHARTERS.

There has been a good deal of discussion about the incorporation of the Metropolitan Racing Association of Canada, and some attempt has been made to introduce the party element into the discussion. That was, of course, unworthy of any honest disputant. The charter was applied for just as any other charter is applied for, to the Department of State, and the officials granting it had no right to assume that those making the application intended to conduct business under it in violation of the law. Indeed, it is to be doubted whether the department has the right to refuse to grant a charter when the conditions of the law have been complied with. The powers of the Secretary of State are ministerial, not discretionary; and the Ontario Court of Appeal has already decided that the Provincial Secretary may be compelled by mandamus to exercise his ministerial powers.

So much for the political element sought to be introduced. H. Hartley Dewart, K. C., counsel for the Metropolitan Association, has written to the Globe calling attention to the fact that the charter "does not permit the incorporators to carry on the business of betting or to make books upon the races that may be run upon the race tracks of the Association." He says that the promoters intend "to conduct their business within the strict letter of the law, so as to give no ground for laying any charges against them." He alleges that "the outcry 'Great is Diana of the Ephesians' was to be expected when a Provincial Minister of the Crown represented interests that I am credibly informed, control the majority of the stock of the Ontario Jockey Club, with family affluence, so largely interested in Hamilton, Fort Erie and Windsor." This is something like what is referred to as "a la riposte" in fencing.

Mr. Dewart says his clients authorize him to give an undertaking as follows: "If Sir James Whitney will revoke and cancel the Provincial charters of the Ontario Jockey Club, the Hamilton Jockey Club and the Fort Erie and Windsor Racing Associations, or if the law of the Province is so amended that these race meetings and these tracks where betting takes place shall be put out of existence, they will accept the decision of the Provincial Premier upon the point as a declaration of policy in the Province of Ontario, and voluntarily surrender the charter of the Metropolitan Racing Association."

What the public, or that portion of it which is opposed to betting, seeks to accomplish is the abolition of the turning of the sport of horse racing into an organized carnival of betting, the making of every race track a headquarters for bookmaking, and a feeder for pool rooms. Perhaps some change in the law may be necessary to accomplish this; but in the interests of horse racing as a sport, nothing should be done which will aggravate the evil which is fast dragging it down. The public cares little whether the charter be Provincial or Dominion. It does not propose to promote gambling.

WASTE OF FRUIT.

A fruit-grower who has been giving the subject some attention is very much impressed with the great fruit waste of which the people of this rich district are guilty. Every year there is an enormous quantity of apples, early and late, which while unsuited to packing and shipping, would if properly handled yield the best of jelly or cider apple sauce. He says many thousands of bushels of such fruit are allowed to rot in the orchards, to their detriment, or are fed to the hogs. Why should a more profitable use not be made of them?

To illustrate, he says he got from a bushel of early apples, unfit for shipping, and not of the best quality of their kind, 42 small jars of jelly, such as are usually sold at 10 to 15 cents each. Deducting the price of the sugar and jars, there would appear to be a fair margin of profit in that. This man estimates that in Niagara district we allow to go to waste early apples, windfalls, imperfect fruit, culls from shipping lots and damaged apples enough to yield over two million glasses of jelly. If even only half that quantity, what a need for improved and economical methods it indicates! How much labor, too, manufacturing it might profitably employ.

A VICTIM OF HEAT.

That "amoosin' cuss," Jim Livingston, has taken time from lamenting the dryness of Grimsby to say a few things—several columns of them, in fact—which he fancies will tend to curry favor with Adam Beck and the Whitney Government, and make his readers look upon the Hydro-Electric scheme as the greatest piece of statesmanship since Solomon's time. Before the inspiration under which he labored evaporated, he said a few things in depreciation of the workers for Sunday observance; of the unreasonable farmers, who wish to be fairly paid for right of way for the transmission line through their properties, and interlarded a few Livingstonian references to the Times. Nothing, of course, from such a source is likely to receive much attention at the hands of the Spectator, as it had two reasons for fighting the Hydro-Electric scheme instead of one, the first was politics and the second money. As to the element of party politics influencing the Times' course in this matter, readers who know that we expressed the same views when a Liberal Government was in power will know what weight to give it. As to Livingston's statement that we were influenced in our course by money, it is probably a guess very natural to a mind like his; but it is very wide of the mark. Some cool day, in a calm, sober moment, the folly of uttering such falsehoods should engage his ratiocinative faculties, if he has any, when he will probably be heartily ashamed of what he has written.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It can hardly be true that there has been a great deal of illegal liquor selling in the city. Inspector Sturdy has been "on the job" every day.

Pistols and knives have been too often displayed in Hamilton of late. Those guilty of that sort of thing should be taught a few severe lessons.

But the license holder who toes the line—who lives up to the law every day of the week—does not need fear any corps of provincial detectives. His mind is easy.

The numerous drunken Indians which infest the city these days are ample evidence that the license laws are not being enforced with efficiency. Whose fault is it?

Employees of the sardine packing industry in France, and many of the farm laborers turn to lace making during the off season. There are no more thrifty people than the French laboring classes.

Robert Meighen, of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, thinks that if the Ontario farmer uses his position properly, he can dictate the price of wheat, under present conditions, to millers and dealers. He says future values will depend on how the farmer will delive, and he should deal out his wheat for the time being as he would medicine, and "make the boys climb." Mr. Meighen's opinion is not shared by most market traders.

The Windsor Record laments that the position of the average councillor "seems to be coveted and captured mostly by the unfit." A fine look out for municipal councils owning and managing so many of the businesses of the country!

Go on with the ice cream test cases, and let us know just where we stand. If the law does not effect what the Legislature intended it to effect it can be remedied. If the public want a "wide-open" Sunday, it is for them to say.

The by-law against running traction engines over paved streets is one that should be enforced. It is well that the fact that it exists should be made widely known. This sort of traffic is not conducive to the good condition of asphalt pavement.

Congratulations to Dundas cadets, who won the team prize yesterday at the Ontario Rifle Association meeting. It was rather ungracious on the part of those Toronto fellows to seek to deprive them of their winnings by that protest.

Toronto's appropriation of $5,000 for destroying tansook moths is about exhausted, and a further grant will be asked for. Perhaps the Hamilton authorities will get to work next year, when the pest has got more firmly established.

The Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association reported itself at the Brant House Park yesterday, and enjoyed a good time in games and oatory. They are a very comfortable looking lot of people, representing the money and brains of a very fine territory.

Director Stratton, of the United States bureau of standards of the Department of Labor, is going to co-operate with the steel rail manufacturers in experiments intended to lead to better rails. Very many of the railway accidents have been due to rail faults, and complaints made abroad are so numerous as to threaten the ruin of the United States export trade in that line. The inequalities, flaws and splitting of ends have become so serious a drawback that the trade is alarmed and seeks Government aid in finding a remedy.

Many experiments have been made in the effort to obtain satisfactory milk bottles which would be so cheap that they would not be used a second time. A Chicago company now announces the manufacture of paper single service milk bottles in three sizes—quarts and pints and half-pint size for cream. They are made of pure fibre paper and refined paraffine. The idea is to have them absolutely sanitary. The bottles are to cost half a cent each, and it is expected that at this price their use will be economical, as there will be no breakages, no washing or sterilizing, and they will be exceedingly light to transport. This is the paper age.

Mr. Bernard M. Baker, who is largely interested in a number of important public service corporations, is a consistent advocate of the regulation and control of all monopolies by the people. Monopolies, he says, are usually dangerous, and all public service corporations should be under the authority and regulation of a public utilities commission. That is not an unreasonable view, but such regulation would not meet the views of Toronto socialists of the W. F. Maclean stripe. Their idea is that all these concerns, and goodness knows how many more, should be paid for by the people's money and operated by whatever petty politicians may for the moment get into power.

The "arm chair militarist" of the Hamilton Herald who has sworn eternal enmity to any scheme of Canadian participation in imperial defence which leaves Canada a say in the management of her ships and soldiers, unloads its "mind" of some cruel, cruel sarcasm aimed at our Minister of Militia, and then attacks the Globe's statement that "the ideals of the Canadian militia are civilian, not military."

It is true that the ideals of the Canadian militia are civilian and not military; that its purposes are peace and not war? Is not such a claim nonsensical? To say that the ideals of a military organization are not military and that it does not exist for purposes of war is surely no compliment to that organization.

And why not? We had so long heard these yappers for a great expenditure on military and naval forces arguing that the object of such was to secure peace—to head off war—that we had come to think that perhaps they really entertained that idea. Was it all make-believe?

WHITE SLAVERY.

(Rochester Gazette-Times.) There are pitfalls everywhere for the unwary, but especially for girls and young women inexperienced in the ways of the world and trustful of glib-tongued persons with whom they have slight acquaintance or none at all. Eternal vigilance on their part and on the part of all the good intentioned is the price of more than liberty. It goes without saying that society and its constituted agencies owe it to themselves to find and punish all who are doing the devil's work in this way; but it is no easy matter to detect, and unfortunately the law does not provide adequate punishment.

White slavery or death, it is feared, is the fate of the girl who disappeared from Monongahela City. Better death.

DAY'S RECORD.

(Guelph Herald.)

Hamilton is quite stirred up with the record of Dave Irvine, to whom the greater Hamilton motto will no doubt be extended, "Hamilton is the Place for You."

BACK TO THE BAKE BOARD.

(St. Catharines Standard.)

Will it have to come to this, that the high prices of bread will eventually drive the women of St. Catharines back to the bake board? Perhaps it will be a good thing for many a man's digestion.

THE LEMIEUX ACT.

(London Free Press.)

The Lemieux Act may not have the virtue of pleasing both sides. But any move that has conciliation in view is not lightly to be frowned upon. Let us hope that labor will henceforth be more fortunate in the choice of arbitrators.

HAMILTON FIRST.

(Grimshy Independent.)

Let every dollar and every hour of time and every effort of Christians along missionary lines in the city of Hamilton be devoted strictly to the city of Hamilton. Let no boy or girl in the city run wild without an earnest, honest effort being made to save them.

ALL NIGHT DRUG STORES.

(Toronto Star.)

Surely there ought to be at least a certain number of drug stores, known to the public, where medicines can be obtained at any hour of the day or night, and where special night clerks are employed. Sickens knows no business hours, and a drug store cannot be conducted upon the same lines as a grocery.

PREFERS GERMANY.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

Those Englishmen who have been pluming themselves that in the event of trouble between Great Britain and Germany the sympathies of the United States would be with them have had their illusion dispelled by Medill McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune, who in a letter to the Daily Mail asserts Americans care a good deal more for Germany than for England. And yet Mr. McCormick, when he visits Canada, is very pleasant spoken!

MEN'S BARGAINS.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

But there really should be no reason why men shouldn't attend bargain sales. Merchants do not, as a rule, advertise for fun, and if they have formed the habit of advertising men's bargains it must be with the expectation, and behind that, the experience, of making sales. The head of the house, should be as keen on getting his money's worth as anybody else. The men's bargain day is as much a necessity to merchants as to the male portion of the purchasing public.

THAT RACE TRACK CHARTER.

(Toronto World.)

As the incorporation of companies is governed by statute a charter cannot be refused to any applicants who request one for a lawful purpose. Horse-racing in Canada is perfectly legal and the matter of betting and gambling, however close its association with the race track, does not enter into the question as far as the Dominion administration is concerned. The proper authority to which appeal should be made for the prevention of race track gambling is Parliament, and the proper course for those who desire to see it prohibited is to secure the passing of an act declaring it illegal.

GOOD OUTING.

Jewellers Made Merry at Oaklands Park Yesterday.

The jewellers held their annual picnic and sports at Oaklands Park yesterday, and a large number of them and their friends enjoyed the outing. They left the Terminal Station on a special car, which was decorated with banners. Not only did a piper attend, but a drummer supplied music on a silver tray. After arriving at the ferry dock and being conveyed across the bay in the ferry boats, a couple of games of soft ball were played for the possession of the annual trophy. The first game, between George H. Lees & Co. and Levy Bros., was won by George H. Lees & Co., and in the playoff between them and the retailers the Lees team was again successful, winning by a score of 9-8. A programme of races was run off and resulted as follows:

100 yard race—Wallace Lees, A. Ward.

Potato race—T. Murphy, C. Angus.

Walking race—Wallace Lees, Mack Hastings.

Boot and shoe race—A. Forster, H. Wilson.

Three-legged race—Mack Hastings and Eddie Sage.

Pick-a-back race—F. Stone and T. Murphy.

The officials were as follows: Starter—Stewart Lees.

Judges—C. A. Andrews, Marshall W. White.

Umpires ball games—Chas. Hall and F. Boushall.

After supper had been served, A. Lees presented the prizes.

300 baskets of them, 150 picked Thursday afternoon to sell Friday, 150 picked Friday afternoon to sell Saturday, and all of them choice, firm, ripe stock. Next week the canning factories will start to take tomatoes, and prices will likely be higher. It looks like a low price for tomatoes under present conditions. Potatoes, good clean stock, per basket 35c; per peck 30c.

FLOUR

Millers are still holding prices firm, but we think it is time for a change, so here goes: Gold Medal Flour, per bag $3.20, per ½ bag $1.60, per ¼ bag 80c. Royal Household Flour, 14 bag 85c, ½ bag $1.70, bag $3.35. Present cost does not justify this cut, and we may have to go back to the old figures on Tuesday. Meanwhile it is up to you.

SUGAR

Mysterious Outbreak in Herd Near Campbellcroft.

Port Hope, Ont., Aug. 18.—A mysterious cattle disease has broken out in the herd owned by Mr. James Dickson near Campbellcroft, and much alarm is felt in that neighborhood. Inspector
