Opening of the Normal School

As modestly as the violet blows on some lone bank, the Normal School was opened in its new home on College Heights (the Parade Ground) on Monday morning, the 29th ult. There were present: Hon. W. S. Monroe (Prime Minister and Minister of Education); Mrs. Monroe, Dr. Burke (Deputy Minister of Education), Rev. Dr. Curtis (Supt. Education, Methodist); Rev. T. J. Flynn (representing R. K. Kennedy, Supt. of Education, R.C., who was unavoidably absent); Dr. Blackall (Supt. Education, Ch. England); and the following members of the Normal School staff: S. P. Whiteway, (Principal); Miss Betty McGrath, B.A. (Hons.), Toronto; Mrs. Schilling Fraser, Prof. Hutton and Prof. Murdoch, J. C. Hogg, B.A. (Hons.), Cambridge (Science Tripos), Lecturer in Science, and Capt. O'Grady, Instructor in Physical Culture, were unable to be present.

Some 60 students and teachers—nearly all Associates in Arts of the Council of Higher Education—are enrolled for the first half-year and most of them were present, enjoying the beauty of the building and taking inspiration from the fact that a big step forward in educational advance had been taken and at last a real Normal School established.

Principal Whiteway opened the ceremony in an address that he should commit to writing for publication. It dealt with the historical facts of educational growth in Newfoundland in a scholarly manner and showed beyond a shadow of a doubt that, backward though Newfoundland is in the field of education compared with larger communities, the progress made during the past one hundred years is wonderfully great, especially when the difficulties to be overcome are taken into consideration. It is not easy to give a précis of what Principal Whiteway said. It was all solid meat.

The Principal was followed by Dr. Burke, Deputy Minister of Education. He regretted exceedingly that Dr. Barnes was not present, for to this project he had given a great deal of thought, care and personal oversight. Principal Whiteway had referred to the fact that a century ago a great fish-merchant of Newfoundland, Samuel Codner, had devoted himself wholeheartedly to the cause of education and had established the Newfoundland School Society. Dr. Burke was of the opinion that a great fish-merchant of to-day was just as anxious to help forward the sacred cause of education as Samuel Codner had been; he referred to the Prime Minister, Mr. Monroe. He was delighted to be associated with the opening of the Normal School, for he was convinced that improved methods of teaching could accomplish much for the betterment of Newfoundland, and particularly if the children of to-day could be trained to look for the best that was in everyone rather than the worst. Constructive rather than destructive methods were needed. Dr. Burke was bright and breezy.

Dr. Curtis then addressed the gathering. He had been delighted with the statement of progress which Principal Whiteway had given and he recognized that, although to that day there had been no regular Normal School, teachers had done amazingly good work. Everyone, however, knew that still better work could be done with the help of greater knowledge and greater skill. A well known philosopher had said that the greatest thing in creation was man and the greatest thing in man was the mind. Yet how careless the world had been in the past as to the training of the mind—the most wonderful thing with which the Creator endows every child. No one would hand a precious stone to be moulded and finished to a tinker, yet many people were indifferent as to the qualifications of the person to whom the training of the child, infinitely more valuable than a precious stone, was to be entrusted. There were tremendous possibilities for good in the Normal School. The teachers would be trained to understand the mind and would be the better able to develop it. He was convinced that the bulk of the people of Newfoundland were behind the Normal School and improved education generally, and would demand the best possible training for their young people.

Dr. Blackall was called upon next. He was heart and soul for the Normal School. He regretted exceedingly that a large gathering of citizens had not been called together for the ceremony. The opening of the Normal School was a day of national importance. Flags should be flying and bands playing. He felt this for the simple reason that he regarded education as the one true foundation of rock on which citizenship could be built. Education was the most important thing with which statesmen, parents, churches, societies, all, could concern themselves. The evils of ignorance were terrible.

The building was none too good. In its dignity, beauty and simplicity, it symbolized for Newfoundland the grandeur of education. He thanked God that Dr. Barnes had been succeeded by a man of much vision and common sense as Mr. Monroe, for under him he felt assured that everything possible for education would be done.

The next step—and it should be taken immediately—was the inauguration of a Junior College. He knew of parents who had not the means of sending their sons and daughters abroad who were longing for the Junior College to come and he also knew that the teachers of the land were longing likewise for the opportunity of gaining greater knowledge.

The last to be called upon to speak was the Prime Minister. The best wine was kept until the end.

Mr. Monroe expressed great pleasure at being present on such an important occasion. With Dr. Blackall, he regretted that many were not present to share the joy and he was particularly sorry that Dr. Barnes was not there, for he had, had pretty well everything to do with the erection of the building. People might criticize the expedition; but at all events, there was something to show for it and something good. The building, however, would not be of much service without the teacher. He felt particularly glad because he took the Normal School to symbolize a willingness on the part of the people of all denominations to co-operate in educational effort.

There was one thing needed to complete the organization and that was the Junior College. The building invited it, the education of the people demanded it, the Carnegie Foundation was willing to subsidize it to the extent of Fifteen Thousand Dollars, ($15,000.00), a year.

There was little doubt that the enthusiasm and zeal of the three Superintendents of Education had done much to make the Normal School possible and to secure the help of the Carnegie Fund towards the Junior College.

He had much pleasure in wishing Professors and students alike a Happy and Successful year.

Famous Recipes for Home Cooking

THANKSGIVING PUMPKIN PIE.

2 eggs.
1½ cups strained pumpkin.
1 cupful sugar.
1 level teaspoonful cinnamon.
½ teaspoonful salt.
1½ cupfuls milk.
1 level teaspoonful ginger.

Mix the sugar, ginger, cinnamon and salt together until there are no lumps, then add to the pumpkin and mix thoroughly. Beat the eggs until light and add to this mixture. Last add the milk. Mix well together.

Make a pastry using:
1½ cupfuls flour,
½ cupful or 4 ounces Crisco.
½ teaspoonful salt.

Sift the flour and salt together. Cut the Crisco in with a knife until it is about the consistency of coarse meal. Add enough ice water—about four to six tablespoonfuls—to make a paste which will clear the bowl. Cover a pie tin, building up the edges, and add the filling. Bake in a moderate oven about one hour.

Had a Narrow Escape

An item appears in the Halifax Herald, Sept. 27th, saying that Joseph Keeping, one of the crew of the Newfoundland schr. Ellen F. Rose, now at Gloucester discharging a cargo of salt from St. John's, had a narrow escape from fatal injury when he fell from the rigging of the schooner. Keeping was clinging to the hoist and one of the crew turned it over by hand. In some manner Keeping had his head too close to the cog wheels of the machine and they clinched his scalp, mangling it and causing a bad wound.

Ask Grandma She Knows—

Years ago, before the Fire—before the Crash, farther back than many of us can remember, the favourite washing powder of sensible women was Pearlina. There are very few articles in daily use now that were popular at that time. Pearlina seems to be the outstanding example, for this great washing powder which is to-day the favourite with millions of modern women, was undoubtedly the choice thirty and forty years ago. Pearlina has stood the test of time, and has more friends now than ever. For ten cents you can get a big package of Pearlina at most grocery stores. oct.1st

Star Ladies' Card Party and Dance

At the Star of the Sea Hall to-night a card party and dance will take place, which promises to be on a line with the successful ones held there last year. The affair, which is in aid of the C.O.C. Band is being held under the auspices of the Star Ladies' Association. For the card party good prizes are being offered and a special prize will also be awarded for the winners of the elimination dance. Supper will also be served.

Ice small sponge cakes, and while they are still moist, roll them in macaron crumbs.

To-Night's Dance at Gaiety Hall

The Prince's Orchestra are holding a dance in the Gaiety Hall to-night, and preparations are being made to have it a very enjoyable affair. The dance was first to be held, following the Citizens' Ball for the Special Service Squadron, but like the Ball, was postponed. The decorations which were up for the Strollers' Dance have been left standing, and with the special program of music prepared a good night is promised to those who attend.

Motor Car Smash-up

About 8 o'clock last night an Overland motor car, owned by ex-Constable Pike, which had been parked at the top of Flower Hill, suddenly dashed down the incline, scattering pedestrians in all directions. Due to the steep incline the car gathered speed very quickly and it was a miracle how people using the thoroughfare at the time escaped injury. As soon as the car left the road it ran down the sidewalk and collided with the steps leading to the Roberts' residence. It then spun around and ended up by crashing side-on into the house. The Roberts family received a bad fright. When the crash took place some chinaware on a sideboard in the front room was scattered all over the place and smashed in pieces. The damaged car was later carried away on Lester's sledge to a garage for repairs. Luckily there was no one in the car at the time.
