CIGAREITE COMBINE.

Controlling the Entire Business of Canada in This Line.

Montreal, July 2.—The American Tobacco Company of New York, with a capital of $35,000,000, has finally acquired control of the cigarette business of Canada by the purchase of the house of D. Ritchie & Co. and the American Cigarette Company. The companies monopolize the entire cigarette business of Canada. There will be seven directors, two officers of the New York company, and enough Canadians to make up the seven.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED.

Whereas, the license commissioners have by their recent action violated the prohibition pledge of the Ontario Government, and,

Whereas, the mind of the people was known (first by the 7 o'clock movement, and afterwards by the plebiscite vote) to be for curtailment of hours, and,

Whereas, a deputation from the people waited on the commissioners, asking for shortening of hours, and as neither petition nor deputation (save of liquor dealers only) asked for extension,

Therefore, resolved, that we, the Y. P. S. M. C., condemn the action of the license commissioners as against the people and for the saloon. That we believe the commissioners have forfeited the respect and confidence of the people, and request the Ontario Government to replace them with others in sympathy with the moral sentiment of the city. Carried unanimously.

The following was also adopted:

Whereas, the recent action of the license commissioners was prompted by the belief that in this city there is no such thing as Christian citizenship—no "conscience vote" to be dealt with,

Whereas, it is indeed true that if the followers of Christ were as careful for the upbuilding of his kingdom on earth as the saloon-keepers are for the establishment of their own interests, no such action would have been taken,

Therefore resolved, that we urge upon the membership of the Methodist Church the responsibilities of their Christian citizenship, and we call upon them to use the power which they possess to have this enormity of legislation rectified. (Signed),

WM. JEFFERY, President; W. G. YOUNG, Vice-President; R. KEENLEYSIDE, Secretary; J. MANVILLE, Treasurer.

BURNED OUT.

The Scrap Bag.

Vive le London's Young Liberal Fleet! Some seven hundred white duck legs, ditto sailor collars!—Squads of lusty drummer boys rub-a-dub-dub! rub-a-dub-dub! all the way to Queen's Park, and thither attended by a body-guard of self-appointed young gamins oozing grime, happiness and excitement at every pore. London possesses more small boys at the present moment than there are cats in Europe to look at kings. The owners of "beautiful white legs" have no need, like Captain Good, to go to Africa to have them admired; nor yet to Sarnia or Port Huron. We can't spare you, "Young Libs." We want you right here along with us. You can't parade the streets too often to please this town. Why, bless you, everybody loves you! The girls love you; babies cry for you; the small boy pants to have you wipe your boots on him. Hop Sing's affection for you, or rather for your nether garments, is something too deep for words. He stands in his low doorway gazing with the calmest satisfaction at the spectacle of long undulating lines of trousers of snowy whiteness on which the dust has already begun to cake. He says nothing, only his porous mouth waters pleasantly, and already in imagination he—well, never mind the rest.

One suggestion I have to make, and that is that some enterprising confectioner shall now get out an effigy of one of these sailor laddies in ice cream, to sell to good Grits.

The Salina (Kan.) girl who telegraphed invitations to her wedding, knows what to do with a bird in the hand when she gets him.

What if some day
I opened wide the door between
Your life and mine, and came
And kissed you softly at your work?

What if that day,
Perplexed and burdened with your cares,
You greeted me half-absently, as if
You wished just then I had not come?

Ah, no! there dawns no day
To you, dear Love, where I am not,
In all your work and rest,
Like music sounding through the play!

ANNIE SEARING.

The English woman shines out more resplendently in ball dress than at any other time, says an American writer abroad. She usually has fine shoulders and neck, and one is frequently amazed to see at dinner or dance some young girl who three hours before had looked actually dowdy and commonplace in her street attire. There is nothing dowdy now. The queen-like head and neck, the strong, graceful shoulders and the well-rounded bust, all glistening pink and white, make her seem a different woman, and fit in every way to inspire the poets from Herrick to Dobson who have delighted to sing the praises of the English maiden. If the English women always looked as well as they do in evening dress, I fancy the American girls would not have found conquests so easy in English society.

I would I were a river!
'Twould be pleasing unto me,
Those red-hot days of summer,
To be flowing toward the sea.

"What's the matter, maior?"
"The matter, Miss Tomson?"
"Well, why are you so sober?"
"G—g—gracious, Miss Tomson! you wouldn't like me to be always intoxicated, would you?"—The Sketch.

Anything which makes us more pleasing to the eye should be cultivated, that is, if the means be legitimate. Thank goodness! we now read hints on bathing and steaming and digestion, instead of horribly complicated prescriptions for face washes, and the chic woman wears the color she can, instead of painting up to the one favored by the mode.

Undoubtedly, it's the well-groomed woman who gets there, and if her purse be lean, woe be unto her if she succumbs to the fascination of frivolous fripperies which become dowdy with a wearing or so! And deliver us from the sight of taggy finery. A worn shoe may often command respect and sympathy, but a dirty, draggled white chiffon parasol, never, No, not even in Trilby weather. Don't know what Trilby weather is? Why, the sort which makes us sigh for her profession, and deem the altogether an ideal costume.

"You are engaged, I hear, Harkaway."
"Yes, to Miss Boston."
"Indeed. Charming woman. I suppose, like all the Boston girls, she can converse in Greek?"
"I suppose so."
"Suppose so?"
"Certainly."
"Don't you know?"
"I do not, my dear fellow: for candidly I don't know Greek when I hear it."

A delightful and simple and soothing lotion for the skin is witch hazel and cold cream, and as the summer girl's complexion must be as soft and clear as her skill at athletic sports, she should carry some of the cream in a dainty china box when she goes away.

DAILY HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

A house is no home unless it contains food and fire for the mind as well as the body.

BREAKFAST—Bananas with Lemon Juice. Breaded Lamb Chops. Browned Hominy. Orange Marmalade. Graham Muffins. Coffee.
