Discount rates were barely steady, despite the weakness of American exchange. American eagles amounting to £1,250,000 were received from Brazil and sold to America today. The gold, it is believed, will be transferred from Ottawa to New York. Active dealings in the old war loan overshadowed the other sections of the stock market, but copper shares were offered, and they closed weak. With the exception of selling Canadian Pacific to a lower level, business in the American section was confined to further sales of gold bonds at easier prices.
