

hopeless. Let it rather strengthen and inspire you to valiant efforts in the future. I know and understand you as perhaps very few can, for have I not, since God sent me to you, entered into your lives and learned to love you? And I, who know many of your difficulties, temptations, and suffering, and something of what awaits you when you step out again into the world, can tell you that I am gaining fresh hope each day, and feel a stronger confidence that thousands of you are coming forth into the world new men in Christ Jesus, so that old things may indeed pass away and all things become new. The outside world has been discussing theories, collecting statistics, for
