NATIONAL DEFENCE—RECRUITING POLICY

Question No. 977—Mr. Forrestall:

1. Does the Department of National Defence now restrict the number of recruits accepted into the Canadian Armed Forces on a provincial or regional basis and, if not, is consideration being given to such a procedure?

2. If restrictions by provinces and regions are being considered, what is the total allowable number for each province or region and, if not already in practice, when will such policy be implemented?

3. By month, what has been the number of recruits by province or region up to and including January, 1971 for each of the past 13 months?

Hon. Donald S. Macdonald (Minister of National Defence): 1 and 2. Annual quotas for the recruitment of men into the Canadian Forces are determined on the basis of projections of the manpower requirements on a trade-by-trade basis within the manpower ceilings. Monthly quotas to be used as guides in meeting recruiting re-
