

Sir Arthur Currie.

26 September 1931.

I find it necessary to leave here in November for California, sailing direct by way of the Panama Canal to Pasadena, probably reaching that place about Christmas time.

Please regard your volume of the Introduction and Catalogue as a Christmas card.

With the compliments of my wife and myself to Lady Currie and yourself

I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Casey A. Wood

This work has cost a large sum in money, energy and grinding work on the part of McGill officials in particular. They ought to have credit for it. If after all the bills are paid there is any money left from the special Blacker fund I intend to expend it mainly on periodicals which, to my mind, are the foundation of all literary research.

I have little time to attend the meetings of the British Association for the Advancement of Science but with my brother-in-law - Professor Greenwell Shearer of Cambridge - I attended the Conversations of the Royal Society and there met Ross Frank Adams and quite a few other former and present McGill professors in addition to numerous illustrious fellows of the Society.
