INKOLEUM Geo. M. STANFIELD PATENTEE

THE LIGHTNING INK PRINTER for Printers, Lithographers and Bookbinders never fails to do all claimed for it, in reducing ink of any color, no matter how old or stiff, to any consistency required without affecting the color or shades of the most delicate tints, and makes all ink work clear, free and easy, without clogging the finest lines, on any press or block, the coldest day in winter without fire, or the hottest day in summer when rollers are obsolete and refuse to take or distribute the ink. INKOLEUM never dries on rollers, but makes the tints and tints dry quick and glossy on paper, and as it is never gummy, like varnish, enables second or third colors to follow at once, and rushed work to be delivered almost immediately from press without retreating. Don't ruin good soft rollers by washing, or put sticky ones from press, but soften the ink left on them over night or Sunday, or whenever too sticky, with a few drops of INKOLEUM put on with your finger, and your press is ready to run, whether it is 40 degrees below zero or 100 degrees above in the room. A trial will convince any person. Beware of infringements.

Accept no worthless imitation sold to be just as good. PRICE, ONLY 60 CENTS. For sale by every Type Foundry in the world. Put up only by Electric Manufacturing Co., Gwatkin & Co., Managers, 67 Bay St. Ter.
