SECOND EDITION.

Methodist Times : "There is a mighty sermon in it. The close of the last act is tremendous, and I feel that the Lord Chamberlain has done a wrong to religion by forbidding this play."

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW (The Nation) : "Mr. Zangwill, regarding literature as before all things a spiritual force, writes a powerful and interesting play."

WILLIAM ARCHER (Morning Leader) : "And now, to complete the evidence that the intellect of the country is setting towards the theatre, we have Mr. Zangwill's great play, 'The Next Religion.' It is a splendidly vivid epitome, one may almost say, of the spiritual struggles of the age. It is noble as thought, it is powerful as drama —and of course it is mown down by the Censorship."

W. L. COURTNEY (Daily Telegraph) : "Mr. Zangwill has followed his very remarkable play, 'The War God,' by a drama very nearly as remarkable. It is of extreme significance, as showing how the modern dramatist claims the whole sphere of human ambition and faith as the material for his fearless art."

SIR HARRY JOHNSTON (Daily Chronicle) : "One of the most remarkable dramas which have ever been put on the stage. The play was followed with a rapt attention, flattering alike to actors and author. I accorded the play a most careful and unwavering hearing, a feat rendered possible, not to say easy, by its unflagging interest and its vivid and natural dialogue. There is absolutely nothing said or done by the players in this remarkable piece which merits the play being pronounced by the Censor as unsuited for representation. I sincerely hope that some adjustment may take place which, without in any way marring the full force of 'The Next Religion,' may permit of its being acted everywhere, inside and outside the Censor's sphere of influence."

H. W. MASSINGHAM (The Nation) : "In the line of drama Mr. Zangwill is trying to do what Matthew Arnold, or Dr. Martineau,
