

Above all things it is the exquisite quality of the tone that has given the Bell Piano its great reputation. This fine tone effect is the outcome of incessant study of tone-production for years, with the result that the scale in the Bell Piano is as near perfection as we think it is possible to go. The Bell tone is truly magnificent. It is powerful and sweet, and pure and singing.

The construction is carried out along lines that make for exactness. The illimitable, quick-repeating action, the strings and the many various mechanical processes are of the highest possible grade. We have tried to make an instrument that would be worthy of our great reputation, and that we have succeeded in a wonderful way is admitted by all musical experts who examine Bell Pianos.

Bell Pianos are made, guaranteed and built to last a lifetime by the largest makers of pianos in Canada.

"The trouble in of the board of trade. "The trouble in the present controversy as it affects Fisher had no mandate from the farm-danada and the old country is that all the adverse criticism of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals is being done by arm chair philosophers—men who have never even, if I may say so bluntly, "smelt trade," men who have never sat down at their business desks and come into contact with practical trade conditions. Annual Meeting of Heintzman & Co., Limited, Canada's Bi^y Plane Manufacturers-Most Successful Year in the Long History of This Canadian Firm—Presentation of Address to Mr. Geo. C. Heintzman, President of the Company-An Interesting Story of Canadian Commerce.

Canada is yet a young country—in some respects just beginning to feel her feet—and yet old enough to find among her commercial kings those with the successful record of fifty years behind them.

This fact finds illustration in an event of the past week, when the annual meeting of the old firm of Heintzman & Co, Limited, 115-117 King-to the business section, no serious objection was raised until the company started to put up their boards in the residential centre. The citizens in the vicinity of Pacific avenue and Annette street, where one is being erected, are asking the council to put a bylaw thru preventing such things in future.

During the last week A. M. Wilson has made the following sales of houses: From S. Wormersley, 166 Humberside-avenue, $2600, to Isabella, Walker of Caledon Township, and 13 McMurray-avenue, owned by C. George, to James Anderson, price $100.

Wallage Lodge, Orange Young Britons, will hold their annual concert in St. James' Hall on Tuesday evening. No. 5, Toronto Junction Company, 12th York Rangers, held their annual banquet at the Sergeants' Mess on Queen-street to-night.

The Weston Euchre Club held a dance at Eagle Hall, Weston, to-night, About eighty couples, many of them from the Junction, were present.

Business Humstration in an event of the plactage of the lod farm of Heintzman & Co., Limited, 115.117 Kingstreet West, Toronto, was held.

It is more than fifty years since this firm commenced the manufacture of planos. Curiously interesting facts are brought out in the story of this required nineteen years to manufacture the first thousand planos bear. Ing the name of Heintzman & Co. The growing popularity of this famous Canadian instrument is in evidence in the contrasting fact that during the year just closed—in a space of twelve months—2140 of these famous planos, the most costly plano in Canada, were made and sold. Testimony like this places beyond question, surely, the high character of this well-known, made. Instrument Fame in the commercial world only becomes enduring when the foundations are solidly built, and genuine merit exists. This is the success of the Heintzman & Co. plano during these fifty years.

The report to the directors of the company at this last annual meeting of the object of the contrasting facts are brought out in the story of this famous Canadian instrument. Fame in the commercial

Few houses can tell of more loyal associates in their business than can Heintzman & Co. In this day of change and labor troubles, it says volume for a business that can point, as can this firm, to a score and more employe who have been with the one firm for from twenty to thirty-five years.

> The feeling of the large staff of employes of Heintzman & Co. to their president, Mr. Geo. C. Heintzman, is eloquently displayed in an event of this annual dinner. The latest production of Heintzman & Co. is their quarter grand plano. To the business aggressiveness, untiring industry, high mechanical skill, and musicianly talents of Mr. Geo. C. Heintzman is due this newest and most important addition to the list of this house. Occasion was taken of the annual meeting to mark this event by the presentation to Mr. Heintzman of the following address, beautifully engrossed and framed and which reads:

To Geo. C. Heintzman, Esq. President Heintzman Co., Limited, Toronto.

We the undersigned, comprising all managers of departments and foremen of the firm of Heintzman & Co., Limited each being a practical plano man whose experience extends from twenty to thirty-three years and representing the employes of said firm, desire to tender you our congratulations man whose experience extends from twenty to thirty_three years and representing the employes of said firm, desire to tender you our congratulations upon your latest and greatest achievement, namely the successful completion of the Heintzman & Co. quarter grand plano. The first successful plano was made in 1709, and from that day to the present inventors have striven after great deals in the art of plano building.

The history of their lives tells of self-denial and patient investigation; of daring, of toil, of hope, alternating with despair, and their goal not the accumulation of wealth but because of their love of art. They have sought to produce an instrument by means of which the very souls of the great composers might be interpreted.

You sir, although only yet in the prime of life, have long been widely known as one possessing genius in a marked degree as an inventor of improvements in the modern pianoforte. Actuated by the love of art, and possessing that nthusiasm which allows of no rest till the object sought is obtained you have completed a grand piano representing the very highest pinnacle of artistic success. It excites alike the wonder and the admiration of every musician who has seen and examined it. In size only five feet eight inches, it is indeed a dainty production, at the same time it is capable of a tonal result equal if indeed not superior to the present boudoir or concert grand. This wonderful tone so sweet and true, its great singing quality, its responsive touch and with all this its beautiful lines and chaste design, place it in a niche secure to itself and above and beyond anything that has yet been produced in the world of artistic plano production.

Here we have an instrument wherewith the artist can reproduce the very thoughts and feelings the soul's desires of the great composers; an instrument which when used by an artist seems to possess a soul, and elevates the listener to a higher plane that savors of the spiritual rather than the temporal.

Mr. McCall refused to avail himself of an opportunity to make a scapegoat of Hamilton, and, according to young McCall, he entertains higher respect for his friend to day than ever before. This public revelation of Mr. McCall's attitude toward one generally believed to have aided in bringing about the crisis which has wrought such havoc came as the most significant development in this one of the last days of his life, for no one doubts that he is in the life, for no one doubts that he is in the final stage of his illness and his death is only a matter of a short time—hours, perhaps, or days.
