GREATER SHOE SALE.

The End

Will soon come-unless E. R. C. Clarkson grants another extension-and it depends on you whether he will or not.

Guinanes are in liquidation-the liquidator is appointed, and his instructions are to clear out the stock, sell it quick, get the most money he can for it, but above all else sell the whole stock quick.

The liquidator (W. J. Guinane) has asked for another extension—of a fortnight or a month—he has still on the shelves-and he claims to be getting nearly 76 cents on the dollar of cost

The highest tender received for the stock was 75 cents-and it is a question whether the odd cent on the dollar will weigh much when the dissolving partners meet to decide whether the sale will go on.

Don't you wait. Sale goes on anyway until Tuesday next. Greater grow the Shoe Bargains each day.
