Irish Railwaymen May Abandon Refusal to Carry Military Traffic

Dublin, Nov. 9.—A police motor patrol which was amused Monday afternoon, reversed the usual result of such attacks by the policemen killing two of the attacking party, wounding one and taking two prisoners, according to the official report of the occurrence. The police suffered no casualties.

There seems to be a possibility that the Irish railwaymen will abandon their hitherto uncompromising refusal to carry military traffic. A joint conference of railwaymen and labor executives today adopted a resolution that in view of the likelihood of railway stoppage throwing the support of idle men on the country, the question be referred to public opinion. A conference of representatives of the municipalities and county councils will be convened Friday and a trade union congress of all Ireland the following Tuesday to consider the matter.

Ireland Suffers Most. London, Nov. 10.—The Daily Mail's Dublin correspondent, referring to the conference on the railway situation, says that it is evident Ireland is suffering more from the railway fight than the government, and that this is admitted in Nationalist quarters, where funds heretofore have been freely subscribed for the support of the distressed railwaymen.

MONTREAL STREET SEES QUEER SCENE

Well-Off Man Proposes Marriage to Strange Lady— Latter and Bills Gone.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—What is described by the detectives who settled the case as the strangest experience they have had in fifteen years, occurred at an early hour last night at Dominique street. Briefly, the facts are as follows: A young lady was walking quietly along the street when a well-dressed man drove up beside her in a cab. When they were opposite each other he alighted and, after courteously approaching her, he calmly asked her to marry him. For some unknown reason she consented to do so, and therefore, they immediately embraced each other. It looked like a case of love at first sight.

Hands Off of Bills. The prospective groom then handed his newly affianced the sum of $200, saying that they were about to be married. She had better keep the money. The young lady accepted the roll of bills, but refused to drive in a common cab, insisting upon a taxi, which she agreed to get from a nearby stand. This she set out to do, leaving her future husband standing on the sidewalk, blissfully awaiting his bride's return. Meanwhile this unusual incident had attracted the attention of the detectives. The episode to this short romance is that the young man's fiancée did not return, so the officers of the law and the unsuspecting groom went in search of her. She was finally discovered in a nearby house celebrating her coming marriage with a quart of beer. However, the wedding bells did not ring, for the bride, after recovering his money, departed, leaving behind him at least one broken heart.

Calder talk on the public issues of the day. It was the largest audience the prime minister has met on his western tour. Dr. W. E. Spankle of Calgary was called to the stage. The prime minister spoke first and received a cordial reception from the crowd. He asked that the party lines be forgotten during the discussion and the questions at issue be approached with minds open to conviction. He asked that in the work of the Union government in prosecuting the war and dealing with after-war problems, Demobilization has been completed very successfully under General Newburn, to whom, he said, the people of Canada are indebted. The establishment of the government then had set itself, and their plans had been followed almost identically by other nations. He did not say all had been done which could be done, and he would not say more could not be done. "The door," he said, "is now closed, and the whole resources of the nation are behind the returned man, in so far as he can be helped to make of himself a real success in life."

Why Burden Your Friend? WOULD you like to neglect your business to attend to the affairs of someone else? That is what the Old-Fashioned Executor often had to do. To appoint a friend as executor used to be risky. Many estates suffered from unavoidable neglect by their executors. Nowdays to appoint an individual is also unfair. Telegraphs, telephones, railways and postal facilities have served only to increase the scope of a man's own business and its pressure upon his time. Asking a friend to be your executor has become unnecessary. Trust companies render a service more complete and no more expensive than the most able and conscientious personal executor supplies.
