

THE WINE CUP.
Shun, shun ye wine cup,
For madness is there;
Tis the ruin of all things
That's glad and fair;
Tis the blight of affection,
The downfall of fame,
And no hope can survive
The breath of its shame.

O, shun it when glad ones
In revel are high—
When the song and the jest
Are bright'ning each eye—
When the tempter is waiting
To blast with his smile—
Then heed not his seeming;
'Tis falsehood and guile.

And quaff not the goblet
To absent ones now—
'Twill tarnish the laurels
That wreath round their brow:
Per better in silence
Their names should remain,
Than their inebriety should bear
On their impress that stain.

And banish the wine cup
When banquet is near—
'Tis the siren that strips them
Of all they hold dear—
'Tis the monster that lustrous
Their friends to their doom,
And sings in his triumph
His songs on their tomb.

Then hasto to the rescue—
The banner is seen—
'Tis as bright as the halo
Of night's burning queen.
On, on to the battle,
Bold-hearted and brave;
And this is the watchword:
We conquer to save.

LONDON and its EXTENT.—London, which extends its intellectual, if not its topographical identity from Bethnal green to Turnham green (ten miles); from Keenish town to Briton (seven miles); whose houses are said to number upwards of 2,000,000, and to occupy 20 square miles of ground, has a population of little less than 2,000,000 of souls, or rather more. Its levithian body is composed of nearly 10,000 streets, lanes, alleys, squares, places, terraces, &c. It consumes upwards of 4,500,000 lbs. of animal food weekly, which is washed down by 1,600,000 barrels of porter annually, exclusive of other liquors. Its waste is at least 27,000,000 a year; it pays for luxuries it imports at least £12,000,000 a year, duty alone. It has 273 churches, 507 dissenting places of worship, and upwards of 5,000 public houses, and 10 theatres.

BONAPARTE ON THE COVARDISE OF SUICIDE.—"Suicide is a crime the most revolting to my feelings; nor does any reason or plea to my understanding justify it which it can be justified. It certainly originates in that species of fear which we denominate cowardice. For what claim can a man have to encourage who trembles at the frown of fortune? True heroism consists in becoming superior to the ill of life, in whatever shape they may challenge him to the combat." On another occasion, when talking on the same subject, Bonaparte observed: "If Mirabeau had slain himself on the Marquis of Minton, he never would have stood the seventh time for consul."

PREST PRIDE.—It is to be lamented that the national character of the English pride, and the very essence of all pride—pursure pride. Even a poor Lord is despised, and to increase his fortune a necessary part will conduct to marry to a rich citizen's family. An overbearing affection for money, an idolatrous worship of gain, have absolutely confounded the general intellect, and warped the judgement of many to that extent that, in estimating men as things, they refer always to "What is worth?" or "What will it fetch?" Were you to point out a person as he passes, and say, "There goes a good man, one who has not a vice," he would scarce be noticed; but exclaim, "that man is worth £20,000," and he will be stared at all out of sight.

ANECDOTE OF CONNELL MERRING.—The above named learned gentleman being retained to defend a person who had been committed for trial at the Court-martiny party residing in a dingy room, and of common in the neighbourhood, met with the following smart retort from the prosecutor in the case, whom he was cross-examining. Mr. Merring—"You maintain that the doctor was your property?" Prosecutor—"I do."—"And you say that the ass was stolen from the common in question on a certain day, as has been stated?" Prosecutor—"No, I never stated any such thing, but I will say the ass was Missing. The court was convulsed with laughter.
