A FALSE REPORT QUICKLY SPREAD

It is remarkable how a report of an alarming nature can startle and cause anxiety among a crowd. It is likewise wonderful how fast the report can spread, especially if it contains news of some sensational happening. On Saturday evening at Camp Sussex, Lieut. Gutter, of the Army Service Corps, belonging to Fredericton, was abandoned for dead, owing to a report that he had been shot not far from the encampment. The news not only spread among the men under canvas at the time, but even reached the ears of his mother in Fredericton, who was naturally greatly perturbed over the affair. At least some woman's voice said to that of his mother anxiously inquired over the wires from the capital if her son was alive.

Financial Bureau.

New York, July 11.—Latest developments seem to point to an attempt by the manipulative element to raise prices. There is a remarkably unanimous optimism expressed in all the morning papers today. We suggested last morning that no thought was given to the possibility of a sharp drop in crop selling movement of Friday had run its course, Saturday rally operations were likely to be unavailing. They took place. The advance this morning gave an extension of such bullish operations, especially where the shorts were concerned. It appeared as though the market was well overdone for the moment. We see no good reason for climbing after, after the movement, if it occurs should be followed cautiously. Purchases on recessions should give the best results if preceded by a drop or a moderate rise. Reasonable returns should not be neglected. The most interesting news this morning is had in the Sunday and Monday Herald interviews with Paul Morton, who says American wheat prices are now attractive and that America is no longer dependent on one crop. He says, who expects good harvest, Reid, who is bullish in his view. He says, who says the drop was due to political unrest; Conant, who says they have dropped to the level of the market. It is noted that Vanderlip of the National City Bank, says the crop outlook on the Harlan line is not so optimistic. It will be seen, therefore, that representative of big interests and of the professional element are apparently agreed for the present on the long side and evidently plan improvement. As they generalize, they should be followed very cautiously. There is talk of a break between Roosevelt and Taft. The bank statement was better than expected. Crop weather seems about the same. The money outlook is still mixed. London settlement takes place to-morrow. Investment buying reported.

Cotton Letter.

New York, July 11.—The prospects were for a better weather may this morning and if the improvement is reported, there may be some further reaction as a result of realising. But the trade is nervous over the situation, there is a feeling that the crop has gone back considerably since the July bureau was compiled, that it has still to pass through a very critical stage of the growing season, that the bulls being in control of the old crop, stand between any old crop breaks that the new crop discount is still too great to be an increase in demand from trade sources. The sentiment in favor of a moderate recent season is strong in cotton seed oil circles, as well as in the market for cotton itself, and under the circumstances we do not look for any material change in prices, at least for some time.

W. W. PRICE.

Gibson.—In my opinion the much emphasized bull factors have been fully discounted. In many instances they have been over-discounted and a good market will soon appear. It is not possible to determine the exact turning point, but the next important move will be upward. It will be of course necessary to discriminate in buying stocks. Conditions are mixed. No change in position would buy good securities at this level on little dips.

J. S. Bach & Co's Letter.

New York, July 11.—During the last two weeks the market has passed through a period of drastic liquidation and stocks have declined from 15 to 20 points below the high of the year. The most pessimistic attitude has prevailed and bad news has been exaggerated and good news ignored. While at no time have panic conditions prevailed, many holdings have been sacrificed and liquidation has taken place. Many high class securities are at attractive prices of income yield on present dividends, and unless some unforeseen change brings about a great shrinkage of dividends, these securities must prove absolutely cheap for the investor who buys and holds on to them through the periods of political disturbance. The fear of reduction in dividends prevails, in view of the action of the Federal Reserve Bank at Atchison and St. Paul in announcing their regular dividends this week did something to allay this feeling. A SOCIETY WEDDING

Many Cape Breton Guests Invited to British Columbia Nuptials

The Victoria Colonist of July 3rd contains the following account of a wedding that city at which the list of invited persons contained the names of quite a number of persons from Baddeck and Sydney.
S. C.

At Christ Church Cathedral at 2.30 yesterday afternoon, a very pretty wedding was celebrated, when Miss Anita Anton of the late General Heyland, C. B., was married to David George William Mc-Curdy, eldest son of A. W. McCurdy. The wedding was charmingly decorated for the occasion by Mrs. Tilton, the bride-maid, Miss Rowe, Miss Nellie Newcomb and Miss Edith Lawrence. The Ven. Archbishop Scriven conducted the service, as looked by the Rev. Mr. Barton, and was assisted by the Rev. Mr. Heyland, who owned a son in the young bridegroom.
The bride wore a pale pink gown and went with lace. A Brussels net veil was worn over a tiara of white d'Almeida flowers, orange blossoms, and the also worn a necklace of flowers to match the tiara.
