SWIMMING.

Lost Life in Swimming Feat. Montreal Star.-"Chick" Murray, well-known local athlete, who lived for a long time in Wyoming, received a paper here which said: Arthur Cavill, former swimming instructor of the Malmhorn Amateur Athletic Club, was practically frozen to death during his attempt to swim across Seattle Bay. This statement was made by the physicians who attended the famous swimmer after he had been taken from the water. A strong current carried Cavill out of his course, and he swam fully four miles during the hour and ten minutes that he was in the water. He was but 500 yards from the finish when those who were following in a rowboat noticed that he was getting weak and tired. As the boat came close to him, Cavill grabbed it and then became unconscious. He died soon after reaching the shore and without regaining consciousness.

Cup Series Likely Ended. Ottawa, March 20.-Stanley Cup trustees Forum terminated today that the board would take no part in the matter of arranging games against the Sydney team for the trophy. He said that everything had been left with the president of the N. H. A., but added that the trustees would not likely order the Toronto to defend the cup against the maritime champions should they desire to do so. Consequently it looks as if there would not be any games. Nothing has been heard from the Sydney club since early in the week when they requested, under threat of disbanding their team, assurance that there would be games against the winner of the Victoria-Toronto series.
