ARCHDEACON GRAY HAS

A NEWSBOY'S LICENSE

Head of Church of England in Western Canada Promoting Welfare of the Lads

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 12.—Rev. Archdeacon H. A. Gray, head of the Church of England in western Canada, today carries a newsboy's license, numbered 151, which was issued by the municipality of Edmonton when he outlined a plan to organize a club for the young street merchants.

Headquarters will be established in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., where the youngsters may have access to the plunge bath, gymnasium, games and library. Five boys will be appointed as a committee to frame a constitution and by-laws. Archdeacon Gray is to be treasurer.

A feature of the club is the establishment of a permanent fund to assist new boys in sickness and distress. The newsboys are enthusiastic over the project, and it is expected that fully 125 will have signed their names to the membership roll when the first meeting takes place, early in October. Archdeacon Gray, who was formerly head of the boy scouts here, has a warm place in his heart for the rising generation, "out of which," he says, "might one day be a premier of all Canada."

WORLD'S FOREMOST
COMEDY SUCCESS

Tribute to Bunty Pulls the Strings from English and American Critics.

There is one attraction soon to be seen at the Opera House that is awaited with eager anticipation. It is Graham Moffat's greatest of all character comedies, Bunty Pulls the Strings, which has brought the theatrical world to its feet and which is contracted to appear here next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. "Bunty" has been well named the world's greatest comedy success. Our sister provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and the west have already contracted the Buntyville force and have repeated the plaudits of New York and London audiences. "Bunty" is a simple play of Scotch village life, and what makes it so appealing and so powerful is the strength of its characters. It is not a one-man play, every part is of weight and superbly handled by a specially imported company of Scotch players, the pick of the leading theatres of Edinburgh and Glasgow.

GRIM TALE COMES OUT OF CANADIAN FOREST

Trapper's Death in Hunting Bear — Body Partly Devoured

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 12.—One of the most terrible of the season's tragedies among the trapping fraternity of the Canadian province is commemorated by a humble stake of unpainted pine erected only a few weeks ago over a crude and very small grave in the Alkamina valley, East Kootenay district, by Frank Rice, provincial land surveyor of Vancouver. James Gill, his assistant, and M. R. Kevill had been trapping in the Canadian Northwest when Gill was killed by a bear.

"Buried here July 6th, 1912; Killed in May, on the North Forks, by a bear."

The North Forks referred to is the north branch of the Flathead river and flows across the international boundary just east of the main Rocky range. Edward Link—this is the story told by his friend Rice, who gave him burial—had been trapping in the Canadian Northwest about two years. He was a man of popularity, charm and artistic grace. The originality of his black-and-white cartoons and drawings of backwoods scenes was marked and admirable. Early in May he left his two camp comrades and built for himself a squat log cabin near Kishinev Creek, which debouches into the Flathead valley, keeping in touch with the "outside" however, through the interchange, by courtesy of passing forest folk, of message with his friends.

Later on his remains were found and details were now conjectured. A bear must have approached the trap, tripped the wisp of rope attached to the trigger, and exploded the pistol. The noise of the explosion presumably brought Link to the scene, and in approaching he must have again tripped the trigger, falling a victim to mishap. The bullet must have pierced his waist as the holes in the garments mutually attest. Changing the trigger to a cure shelter, even if not protection, Link must have dragged himself while dying, into the cabin, and there succumbed. The body in the unbarred shack was exposed to whatever wild beast chanced to wander into the clearing. His friend Rice, finding the winding bear trail in front of the cabin and concluding that Bruin must have found the lifeless body, dragged it through the door and finally gorged upon it.

The bones were collected in a little heap and silently interred, a pile of stones being raised above them, and above the stones the big splinter from a fallen tree was placed. On a smooth-off portion the inscription quoted was pencilled.

MILLION AND A HALF
FOR BIG G. T. P. HOTEL

Edmonton is to Have it and Work Will Be Begun in Few Days

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 12.—One and a half million dollars is the estimated cost of constructing and equipping the Grand Trunk Pacific hotel in Edmonton, upon which work will begin in a few days with a view to having it ready for occupancy in the latter part of 1913. The structure of seven stories with full basement, 185 by 225 feet, will be of steel, concrete reinforced, and stone. The architecture will be of the chateau type, modified to conform to present day conditions. There will be 300 sleeping chambers, in addition to several dining halls, parlors and special rooms.

The building will occupy a plot of ground 330 by 400 feet, overlooking the picturesque Saskatchewan river in the heart of the business district, and directly opposite the Edmonton Club house. H. J. O'Neil, supervising architect, says that for location, style and completeness the hotel will rank with any of its size on the continent.

FACT AND FANCY.

It was the eve of their wedding day and he was bidding her good night. "Tomorrow, my darling," he whispered softly in her ear, "we begin our journey as bride and bridegroom—pilgrims of life together. Hand in hand we will journey down life's rugged road. We shall need to set out with a glorious equipment of faith and hope and courage, that neither of us may faint or fall by the wayside before the journey is ended. Will we not, darling?"

"Oh, yes, to be sure!" she replied. "Only I am really worried about the train of my dress. It didn't hang a bit nice when I tried it on today. What were you saying, dear?"

FURS WORTH $725,000

Fine Silver Foxes Among Those Brought Into Edmonton

All Transhipped to Markets of England, Europe, Russia and States—Trappers Make $1,500 to $2,000 a Season

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 13.—Seven hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars is the value of the furs brought to Edmonton from the north country and just transhipped to London, Paris, St. Petersburg, New York and Boston. The Hudson's Bay heads the list with $375,000 worth of furs. Revillon Brothers have $120,000, the Northern Trading Company reports $100,000 and independent fur traders make up the balance. The skins are of the highest quality and are in the best of condition.

There are several silver fox skins, each valued at from $1,250 to $1,500, and others ranging in value from $500 to $1,000. The catch of fox furs was larger than in former years. The other skins are marten, mink, beaver, fox, bear, deer of various kinds and muskrat. Most of the furs are from the country north and east of Slave lake and the Mackenzie river, and from the Peace River district and the northern portions of the provinces of Alberta and British Columbia.

Indians are the principal hunters at the northern posts of the trading companies, although some white men are engaged in the business. The average catch for an experienced trapper is valued at from $1,500 to $2,000 a season, though at times the hunter earns from two to three times that amount by taking silver foxes, which are not only rare but also difficult to lure to the baited traps.

The Chippewyan Indians, who are the chief hunters for the Hudson's Bay company, made their largest catches in the Great Slave Lake district, where the com-try is as wild and undeveloped as nature left it centuries ago. There is a fascination about the remote north, which insidiously works its way into the blood, and as a result the white men, who have lived there two or three seasons, find it difficult to leave and live in restricted civilization altogether.

At the present time the residents the far north travel about in car role dog trains. There are some horse-own in the country, but they are other "moose. Trapping and f-
