Years in Behaif of His Pet Idea—
Is a Well-Known Journalist.

A most interesting and important movement for the benefit of the working class of every form of occupation has been going on foc over ten years in the Province of Quebec, and is now making its influence felt not only within that province but in other parts of Canada and in the United States as well. This is the movement for the establishment of co-operative credit societies which began with the founding of "La Caisse Populaire," or People's Bank, of Levis. The movement is an adaptation to Canadian conditions of one form of the credit societies which have done more than almost any other one thing to save the common people of a number of constructs and any other one thing to save the common people of a number of constructs and the conducted banks—personal character and an indestanding that the money loaned shall be put to good, profitable use. The societies are absolutely co-operative in character, and to preserve that quality in its purity they are made closely and exclusively local. Each society is, in reality, a group of neighbors who know one another's character and affairs. The smallest savings—down to a five-cent piece—are accepted by the society, and loans are made of any sum down to a dollar. The borrower satisfies it, escelety's committee on his good faith in the use of the money and his ability to repay the loan with interest, and the loan is made. So wisely has the movement been guided thus far that these co-operative institutions, are able to boast that not one dollar of principal or interest has ever been lost. Their effect in promoting habits of thrift and industr; among the people is beyond calculation.

The Levis institution, as the result of its twelve years of operation, has accumulated assets of $204,000. Its loans represent a total '$1,06,000. Public incredulity on the subject of this new system of banking was so general at first that it was not until the Levis bank was an assured success that others were willing to copy its plans. Five Rooms Over Which Mary Now this new system of banking was so general at first that it was not until the Levis bank was an assured success that others were willing to copy its plans. But now the movement is spreading with great rapidity, and especially so as economists and statesmen in America generally have noted this work in Europe and look to the Quebec exemplars of it to guide them in framing laws under which the system may be made to flourish generally on this side of the Atlantic. There are now 105 of these societies In Quebec, a number in Ontario. These societies this year will collect great sums in five and ten cent pieces, and will loan to their members probably as much as $10,000,000 for use in productive industry in small ways.

as much as $10,000,000 for use in productive industry in small ways.

The founder and prophet of this movement in America is Mr. H. Alphonse Desjardins of Quebec. Mr. Desjardins is now one of the official reporters of the House of Commons at Ottawa. He is a native of Levis and has lived there all his life, still maintaining his house there, though his duties keep him in Ottawa during the session. Beginning life as a journalist, Mr. Desjardins filled responsible positions on leading newspapers of Quebec city, of which Levis is a transfluvian suburb. For a number of years he was a colleague of the late J. Israel Tarte, recognized as one of the greatest fournalists Quebec has ever pro-

The result was "La Caisse Populare de Levis," an extremely small and unaggressive concern, but now flourishing, as just shown, and the parent of a great and growing brood. The "caisses" opened its doors for business on the 23rd of January, 1901. The record of the institution shows steady progress, small at first, but now going on with a good swing. Mr. Desjardins was manager, and, by common consent of his associates, practically dictator in the business. His careful preliminary study had given him knowledbe of the diffigulties that were to be met and how to meet them. There has not been one serious hitch in the work of the society, and there has never been a time when Mr. Desjardins' associates were not perfectly confident that his management would prove successful. tract attention, and he has met with gratifying success in the House of

When Mr. Horne was returned for Ipswich in 1910 he enjoyed the reputation of being the only active Congregational M.P., and in this connection he tells an amusing story against himself. One of his canvassers when going the rounds came across a work man intently studying the portraits of the two candidates "Well, what do you think of them?

From the first Mr. Desjardins has served without pay of any kind, and he has resisted—even to the extent-of threatening to resign — many attempts on the part of his colleagues to make some substantial acknowledgment of his services to the society. A Graves Story. Egg Circles.

Co-operative Egg Circles have proved a great success in Ontario County, and other counties are organising on similar lines. Is your chest "wheezy?"
Tightness and wheezing means your trouble is deep-seated. To delay is dangerous. Inflammation must be drawn out at once. Rub the throat and chest with Nerviline, and put on a Nerviline Porous Plaster. Relief comes in an hour. The counter-irritant effect of the plaster relieves the tightness and strain, draws out the soreness, eases the pain. The penetrating qualities of Nerviline enable it to soak to the very core of the trouble, and you experience a feeling of warmth and relief that proves the danger is pact. For weak chest, sore throat and tendency to colds, the Nerviline Treatment beats all others, try it.

APARTMENTS OF A PRINCESS.

Reigns as Mistress.

With the letting down of her frocks resently Princess Mary, of England, attained that state which may be termed almost young womanhood and at the same time a still greater dignity was conferred upon her. She was given a set of apartments of her very own at Buckingham Palace. Her rooms are a charming suite and were those occupied by her aunt, Princess Victoria, in the late King Edward's time. They have been considerably altered, of course, to suit their young occupant and Mary was allowed a certain amount of liberty in the choice of colors and wall papers for her new domain. There are five rooms altogether, one of which is occupied by her governess. Then there is the princess' bedroom, which has a pretty rose-patterned wall paper, pink hangings at the windows, a white bedspread embroidered in pink roses and a pale rose-colored carpet. Out of this is the schoolroom, a nice, large, light room, which will be converted into her boudoir when she outgrows the school-girl stage. Here the walls and carpet are a particularly restful shade of green, while the furniture is covered with a chintz gay with roses. The princess' books, that fill the bookcases round the room, are bound in rose-colored leather. Prominent among these volumes are the works of Ruskin, which her majesty likes her daughter to read. Besides Ruskin, there are volumes of memoirs of famous people, biographies, history and travel and a few-very few-likes her daughter to reed. Besides Ruskin, there are volumes of memoirs of famous people, biographies, history and travel and a few-very few-novels. The little princess has probably read less fiction than any other girl of her own age in England. There is hardly any time for them, for there is no much that the poor child has to know.

Near one of the windows stands the princess' desk and in it lies the diary that she has kept with the greatest regularity every day for the last five years. As she has already assisted at many ceremonies and met a great many famous folk this dary, should it ever be published, ought to be most interesting reading. A piano stands near another window and in one corner of the room are a pair of light clubs and a pair of dumb bells, with which her royal highness does an hour's light exercise every morning. This is her father's idea.

Out of this room is yet another which Princess Mary calls her "workshop." Here is a small gas stove, where she cooks cakes and other light dainties, about which her brothers chaff her mightily when they are at home, but which they never fail to devour all the same. A table stands near on which she makes her pastry.

In the furthest corner from the window is a table devoted to her photography, at which her royal highness may most often be found in her spare time. No need for dark rooms now, and Mary does all her own developing and printing.

One other room—and the one least inhabited by her royal highness—is a small drawing room, in which she entertains her friends when they come to see her, for "playing hostess" is regarded as part of her established the part of her if the same and the s

"What candidate do you intend to vote for?" persisted the canvasser.

"Don't know anything about none of them," replied the elector. "But what I seen of 'em, I thank Eaven as only one can get in."

It is interesting to note that Mr. George Graves had been selected to appear at the command performance at Knowsley Hall, Lancashire, held recently during the visit of the King at knowsiey Hall, Lancashire, held recently during the visit of the King and Queen to Lord Derby.

Mr. Graves tells innumerable funny storles. One of them is about an enthusiastic wife who was boring a friend with tales of her husband's elegence.

Now it runs as well as ever."

"Really," said the bored friend, "it goes all right again?"

"Yes, indeed," was the reply. "But we're a bit worried about the cuckoo; it will persist, when it calls the hours, in putting the 'oo' before the 'cuck'."

The "homeless" population of Lon-on, according to the latest census don, according to the latest census of the county council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police give lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the ambankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who get tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.
