Long In Business.

Robert Jones, grocer at the corner of Main and Acadia streets, celebrated yesterday the forty-second anniversary of his entry into business in this city. He purchased the business from the late Anthony Woods and has conducted it successfully ever since that time. Previous to the union of the cities, Mr. Jones took a keen interest in civic affairs and was for a number of years a member of the old Portland council where he held the position of chairman of the police committee.
