not to treat with them at all, on any basis.

"But in this commercial warfare the German preparation provides an afternative and supplementary plan of operations which leaves no conceivable weapon, trick or contingency out of its calculations.

"At the outset, it naively admitted in Herr Herzog's illuminating book that German export trade must enter hatred as a liability and that it will meet the 'passive resistence of her present enemies, of whom there are to be sure, more than it necessary or profitable."

"To meet this German plan of con-be stre, more than it necessary or profitable.'

"To meet this German plan of conquest, Herzog declares that German houses are to open their campaign through neutral countries; the German 'make-up' is to be discarded for an american or English masquerade in appearance and in inscription—the German looms, presumably will be turning out the 'abraham Lincoln Liberty Petitcoat.' Great stress is laid upon the necessity for German agents not only speaking and writing English, but in disguising themselves as natives' down to the last mannerism.

"With this humorous suggestion and a chapter devoted to entirely praiseworthy emphasis upon the necessity for good workmanship, the best manerials and scrupulous honesty in commercial dealings, the program turns from legitimate to Teutonic methods of competition.

"The foundation of the offensive is to be a Bureau of Trade Statistics. Every German abroad, professor or workman, is to be enrolled in this service. Reporting upon uniform blanks the result is to be an accurate and up-to-date return from all fronts, showing exactly what German products are normally or ought normally to be, taken by every country and which are indispensable. The general staff can then tell every day 'whether and to what degree, the proportional amounts are being altered by the open or concealed attacks of foreign countries' or firms. And it can thereby decide 'what German products foreign countries cannot do without, and for what ones they substitute (openly or secretly) the produce of (other) foreign countries.

tries cannot do without, and for what ones they substitute (openly or secretly) the produce of (other) foreign countries.

"The very foundation and heart of the whole plan is based upon a military control of all industry and of every German by the government, Every single German is to be under orders from Berlin, and is to act as a spy and government agent. The success of the whole scheme depends upon immediate and accurate information from the front. Nor are trade statistics the least of it. Every German inventor and chemist, every laboratory and plant in the empire are to be under the orders of the general staff—the commercial federation—and are to be kept working constantly improvising substitutes for raw material and improved mathods and processes. Every individual connected with any of this work, including all workmen, managers, directors and financiers of the findispensable industries" are to be guarded under military authority, and absolutely prevented from giving er divulging shything whatever outside the empire. On the other hand, all members of the 'foreign brigade are to report in minutest detail every discovery, invention, innovation of process, or sign of progress in every foreign industry throughout the world. If it be true that the intelligence Service is the backbone of battle we are to be checkmated at the outset. They are to have all our plans—we are to tave none of theirs.

"With this information in hand, the general staff is to prepare for invasion by mobilizing under five great organizations the entire commercial strength of the country. This is not to be a trust or combination. It is to be an army of manufacturers and miners and bankers, under command of a staff composed of the heads of the industrics are to be made and maintained "indispensable." Under our system simply sannot be met by private business.

"Every business, in the empire will be cashed upon to contribute to a 'guarantee fund." This fund, which will be used to provide these offensive industries with a corps of technical expe stronger allies. If the threat is to be met—if knowledge of the enemy's intention thus put into our hands is to serve in any way in this struggle to free the world—we shall have to meet in joint action with all our allies."
