Eat more Candy

"CANDIES are among the attractive and useful forms in which sugar is used as a food."

—Canada Lancet.

Have you eaten your share of candy to-day?

There is a certain amount due to you, you know—for your system requires it to supply bodily needs.

Eminent authorities on food state that about 4 ounces of sugar are required by an adult every twenty-four hours.

Besides sugar, candy contains nuts, fruits, corn syrup, chocolate, some fats such as butter, and flavoring. All these ingredients are recognized as useful foods and essential to the maintenance of good health.

Candy has established itself as a wonderful food product. It is no longer considered a luxury. Men and women everywhere have found it to be an excellent food.

Because of its food value, candy was classified as a necessity for both soldiers and sailors.

While at the Front, General Pershing cabled: "Send candy if you have to omit oatmeal."

There are times each day when you feel the need for something to tone you up and restore your vigor—try candy.

Eat candy in rational quantities and nothing but good can result.

Serve Candy as a Dessert.
It is a Splendid Food.

THE CONFECTIONERY AND CHOCOLATE INDUSTRIES OF CANADA

Under- Currents By The Duchess

The paintings of the room alone would have shown any one that at least at one period of its existence the room had hardly known the word poverty. The very ceiling was painted—little Cupids riot amongst roses and lilies; the roses very much besmirched by time, the lilies terribly soiled, and the Cupids so clothed upon by the smoky grime of centuries as to be very much more decently habited than the original artist ever intended.

"What a terrible woman!" says Vera, alighting to the housekeeper. "What a cold, unfriendly creature! One might almost imagine that she hated us." As she speaks she looks up nervously at her sister, who is standing beside her chair, so silent as to be almost gloomy. The day is fast fading into night, and the sad twilight creeping into the room makes it more melancholy than it, in reality, is. Griselda's eyes are bent upon the ground; her lips are stern. "Speak, darling," says Miss Dysart hurriedly. "I don't know what is the matter with you, but I feel unbidden, frightened." She pauses, struggles with herself for a moment, and then bursts into tears.

"Oh! don't do that," cried Griselda horrified. "Don't cry on your first coming into a house, it is so unkind. If you do, you'll keep on crying all the time you're in it. There now! Cheer up, do. After all they can't eat us, and you have me always, you know."

She seems to think this a balm not to be equalled. "Fredo Gregory is a Tartar, I confess, worse than father. But, so far as Mrs. Housekeeper is concerned, I feel myself a match for her anyway."

"How old she looks, yet how strong," says Vera. "Griselda, have you noticed that every one here is old? Oh!" with a quick sob, "I don't think I like old people; they are so hard, so cruel, they never understand. At all events, what I mean, is I don't like too much of them; not altogether. And the man who opened the door, did you notice him? And the coachman, and this horrible woman, and Uncle Gregory himself, all—~~all~~ are old."

"Say mouldy, and be done with it," says Griselda, gloomily. "Why, the very house reeks of must, shouldn't wonder if a crime had been committed in it, it looks so dark, so forbidding; a house of evil repute."

"Oh, don't, Griselda, don't!" cries Miss Dysart, with a nervous glance over her shoulder and a perceptible start, as at this moment a knock comes to the door.

"Will you be pleased to come downstairs or to have your tea here?" demands the harsh voice of the housekeeper from the threshold.

"Here" is on Vera's lips, but Griselda the bold circumvents her. "Downstairs," she says coldly, "when we get some hot water, and when you send a maid to help us to unpack our trunks."

"There are no maids in this house," replies Mrs. Grych sullenly. "You must either attend to each other or let me help you."

"No maids!" says Griselda.

"None," briefly.

"And my room? Or—is this mine, or Miss Dysart's?"

"Both yours and Miss Dysart's; sorry if it isn't big enough," with a derisive glance round the huge bare chamber.

"You mean, we are to have but one room between us?"

"Just that, miss. Neither more nor less. And good enough, too, for those of us—"

"Leave the room," says Griselda with a sudden sharp intonation, so unexpected, so withering, that the woman, after a surprised stare, turns and withdraws.

"I wish you had let us have tea here," says Vera. "To face that old man again, to endure his cruel speeches, is more than I feel equal to."

"As we have to live here we must face him again sooner or later; the sooner, then, the better," says Griselda. "And would you have that woman think we were afraid? No, no, Vera; let us meet the foe with a bold front, and without delay. The longer you shrink from it the harder it will appear."

HAVE YOU NICE HANDS?

You can have if you use Zam-Buk regularly. Women who do their own housework, and constantly have their hands in water, say nothing equals Zam-Buk for keeping the hands in good condition. Or, if your hands are chapped, one thorough application of Zam-Buk at night will bring ease by morning, and continued use of this balm will heal the cracks and roughness.

Miss Della Martel, of 35 McKay St., Ottawa, says: "For two winters I suffered acutely from cracked and chapped hands. I tried various salves, which seemed to do them good for a time, but as soon as I went out doors my hands would become just as bad as ever. A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk, and it was really wonderful how even the first application of this balm stopped the smarting and drew out the soreness. In a very short time my hands were quite smooth again. Now I rub Zam-Buk on my hands occasionally all through the winter, and never have any trouble from cracks or chaps."

For frost-bites, chilblains, cold sores, eczema, boils, ulcers, blood-poisoning, cuts, burns and scalds, Zam-Buk is equally good. All dealers, 50c. box.

Stomach Troubles

Are Due to Acidity

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief

For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-

ache and inability to retain food are,

in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach,

causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes

that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritation and burnings the deli-ciousness of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development

or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a successful of neutralizing agent, a mild and effective corrector of acid acidity, should be taken in a quantity of a glass of hot water after eating or whenever gas, sour-ness or acidity is felt. This sweetens

the stomach and neutralizes the acidity

in a few minutes and is perfectly harmless and harmless remedy to use.

An antacid, such as bicarbonate magnesia which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet

form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisulphate Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

But after all they had not to face the foe in any form. Mr.

Dysart it appears, on a closer knowledge of his habits, never eats in public, and indeed for several days

after their arrival the girls do not
