THE MONOLINE.

THE MONOLINE is a composing machine casting a single complete line at each revolution from matter composed by an operator on an ordinary keyboard, and requires only one man to work the same, the casting, distribution, and all other movements, being automatically performed.

The MONOLINE received at the World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, the highest award and medal given to any line-casting machine, and its inventor, W. S. Scudder, received a special diploma as marking the great advance made in the invention and construction of machines of this class.

The MONOLINE has now been in general use in Canada for nearly four years, giving in every instance complete satisfaction to the purchasers and users of the machine.

The MONOLINE machine has many advantages which commend it to printers and publishers, among which are :

SIMPLICITY.—Its mechanism is strong and compact, every movement being in sight of the operator, and its liability to derangement is thereby much reduced.

DURABILITY.—Machines which have been in daily use nearly four years show practically no sign of wear or depreciation.

ECONOMY.—Using only the minimum of gas, or gasoline, to keep the metal in a fluid condition, and only one-tenth horse-power for its operation.

ADAPTABILITY.—In the ordinary machine, the line can be readily changed from twelve to eighteen ems Pica in width and to any body type from Nonpareil to Long Primer. The matrix bars can be just as readily changed from one font to another without any material change in the machine, thus adapting it to a great variety of work other than strictly newspaper work.

SPEED.—The capacity of the machine is only limited by the expertness of the operator, it being mechanically constructed to be equal to the most rapid compositor.

FACES.—A great variety of faces in Nonpareil, Minion and Brevier are now ready, and others are being added as fast as may be required.

REPAIRS.—The machine is interchangeable in every respect. A separate catalogue of which is furnished to users of the machine, fully illustrated, for ordering, and our repairs carry the same guarantees as the machine respecting workmanship.

PRICE.—The price of the MONOLINE has been fixed in Canada at $1,100 f.o.b. Montreal, with terms which will bring it within reach of any printer or publisher.

GUARANTEES.—Certain fixed guarantees are embodied in every contract as to speed, durability of the matrix bars, and protection from imperfect castings or workmanship.
